Rockets whip Spurs, 90-83

HOUSTON (AP) — Vernon Maxwell scored 14 points in the final 4:17 of the third quarter, sparking a 16-5 scoring run that carried the Houston Rockets to a 90-83 victory Sunday night over the San Antonio Spurs.

Matt Bullard sank a pair of crucial baskets in the final minute to preserve the victory.

Maxwell finished with 25 points, followed by Hakeem Olajuwon with 18 points and 14 rebounds, Kenny Smith with 17 points and Bullard with 15 points.

Olajuwon had 7 blocked shots for a career total of 2,006, becoming the sixth player in NBA history to block 2,000 or more shots.

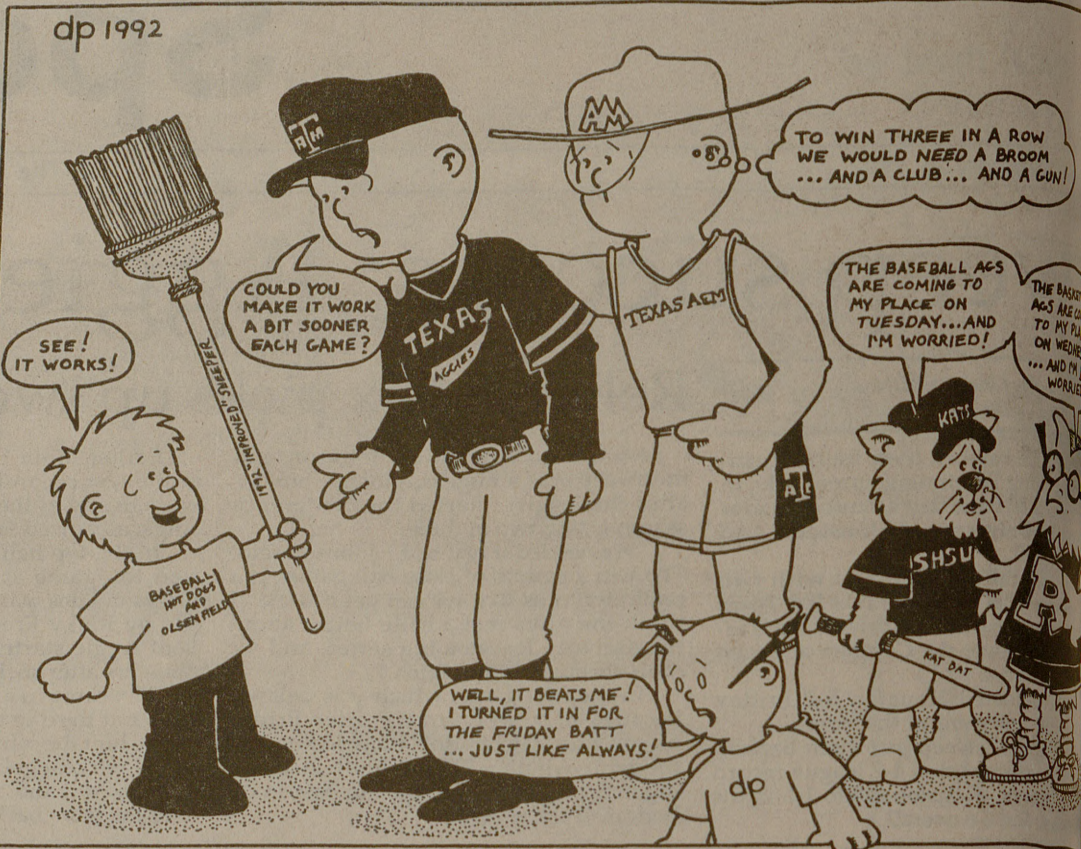

David Robinson led San Antonio with 16 points and 10 rebounds, with Antoine Carr adding 14 points and Sean Elliott 13 points for the Spurs.

The Rockets led 56-44 before the Spurs scored 15 straight for a 59-56 advantage with 4:41 left in the third quarter. Maxwell then went on his scoring explosion, leading his team back to a 72-64 lead going into the game's final 12 minutes.

Houston led by as many as 12 points in the fourth quarter before a pair of free throws by Robinson concluded a 9-1 scoring run that brought the Spurs within 85-81 with 1:26 left.

Bullard then sank a 3-point shot, and after two free throws by Elliott, Bullard added a slam dunk to widen the edge to 90-83.

The Rockets led by as many as 14 in the second quarter, and it was 49-38 at halftime.

Aggies beat USL, lose to Clemson

Men's tennis stops Cajuns, stays unbeaten

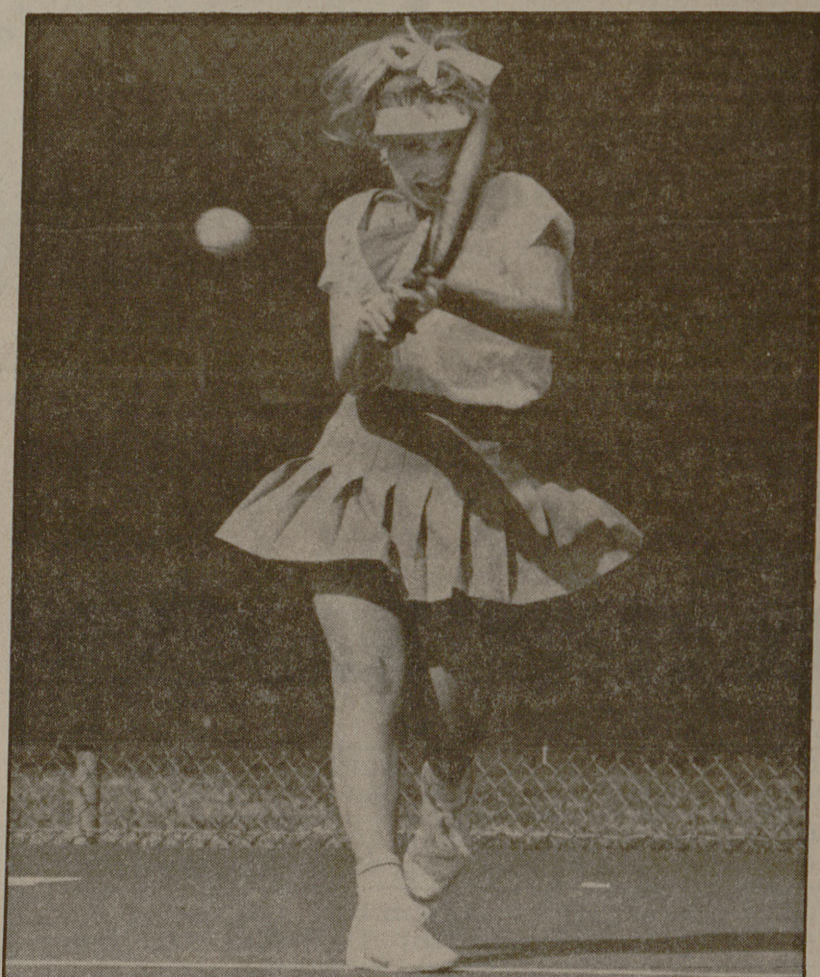

From Staff and Wire Reports

The Texas A&M men's tennis team continued its quest for an undefeated season Friday by defeating the University of Southwestern Louisiana, 5-4 at the Omar Smith Tennis Center. The Aggies are now 6-0 on the season.

A&M and the Rajin' Cajuns finished the singles competition deadlocked at three matches each. The Aggies won two of the three doubles matches, including a come-from-behind win in the last match by Mark Weaver and Bernardo Martinez that secured the victory.

After losing the first set, Weaver and Martinez came back to record a 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 victory. A&M head coach David Kent said Weaver and Martinez, as they have all season, came through for the Aggies in the clutch to secure a win.

"Mark and Bernardo have been phenomenal all season," Kent said. "They always manage to find a way to win the match." Rick Flores and Blake Barsalou also pulled in a doubles win for the Aggies. Doug Brown and Scott Phillips were defeated in doubles competition 7-6, 1-6, 6-4.

BILLY MORAN/The Battalion

A&M's Lynn Staley was defeated 6-2, 7-6, by Clemson's Amy Young on Saturday. The A&M women's tennis team lost 7-1 to the Tigers.

A&M women fall to Tigers

From Staff and Wire Reports

The Texas A&M women's tennis team lost their second match of the season Saturday as the Clemson Tigers, ranked No. 22 in the nation, defeated the Aggies 7-1.

The only match the Aggies won was a singles win by freshman Christine DiNardo. She defeated Janice Durden 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

A&M head coach Bobby Kleimke said DiNardo played well and has the potential to be a future star for the Aggies.

"Christine is one heck of a player right now, and she's just going to keep improving," Kleimke said. "She's still a little bit up-and-down right now, but she's only a freshman."

The Aggies lost the other five singles matches.

Lynn Staley lost 6-2, 7-6, Janice Durden was defeated 6-4, 7-6, and Marga Valera lost 4-6, 7-6.

A&M's Anna Schlumpf and Nicole Monsul also came up short in their matches Saturday.

In doubles competition, Clemson's Mimi Burgos and Mimi Weiner defeated Schlumpf and Monsul 6-2, 6-1, and Young and Hise beat DiNardo and Joanne Maki 6-4, 6-3.
