Cougars too big for Aggies

Houston's size, tempo disrupt chances for upset

By Chris Whitley The Battalion

HOUSTON — At the end of the first half of A&M's battle with Houston, Aggie coach Tony Barone pumped his fist in the air in anticipation. At the end of the game, he sighed in frustration.

The Cougars exploded in the first few minutes of the second half and never looked back to gain a 79-69 victory at Hofheinz Pavilion Saturday.

A&M's record dropped to 5-19, and 1-10 in Southwest Conference play. Houston stayed on its track to the NCAA tournament, upping their record to 20-5, 9-3 in the SWC.

The Aggies' loss was not the fault of sophomore Chuck Henderson. The walk-on racked up a career-high 29 points to lead all scorers. He also tied a school record with seven three-pointers in the game.

Henderson had 16 points in the first half, including eight of A&M's first ten points, which spurred the Aggies to a 36-31 advantage at intermission.

Henderson opened the second half with a three-pointer to put A&M up by eight, but that would be their largest lead. The tempo quickened, and the Cougars took advantage of it with a 16-3 run.

"Instead of controlling the tempo, we tried to do things too quickly," Barone said. "We tried to throw too many quick passes. "We tried to do things that we can't do anyway. We tried to make a big play instead of making a smart play."

"And it's not from a lack of effort. We want to get it done so

Aggies host Baylor

The Aggies will play a unique Monday night game tonight against Baylor at 7:30 in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

The series between the two teams was rescheduled after the first game was postponed due to carbon monoxide poisoning at Waco's Ferrell Center.

On Feb. 19, the Aggies won their first and only SWC game over the Bears, 63-61.

The Bears are 4-9 in SWC action, 12-14 overall. A&M is 1-10 in SWC play, 5-19 overall.

quickly that we try to do it right now instead of taking our time."

Houston won the game in the middle. Senior forward Craig Upchurch had 20 points and center Charles Outlaw had nine blocked shots.

Though A&M only had one less rebound than Houston, the presence of Outlaw and Upchurch, both 6-foot-8, made it difficult to compete under the basket.

"They're the most physical team that we play," Barone said. "We just don't have the kind of physical stature that Outlaw or Upchurch has. We have a real tough time with that."

Shedrick Anderson, who had 21 points and seven rebounds, said A&M lost key rebounds during Houston's big run which was the key to the game.

"We were flat the second half in the first six minutes," Anderson said. "They outrebounded us in the second half, so the momentum changed into their hands."

The Aggies had a chance to come back late in the second half. With Houston's lead cut to eight with 2:40 left in the game, Chuck Henderson turned the ball over to Upchurch. The Cougars eventually converted two free throws and never let the Aggies get any closer.

Houston hit 84 percent of their free throws, including 19 of their last 22 to ice the victory.

"You play the percentages against us," Barone said. "The percentages are that at some point in time we're going to struggle in the game."

"It just so happens we struggled the first six minutes of the second half, and that was the difference in the game."

The Aggies shot selection improved Saturday. A&M hit 56 percent from the field and 58 percent from three-point range.

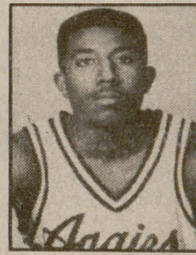

A&M had been shooting 43 percent from the field this season, 31 percent from three-point range.

Henderson's best not enough for A&M

By Steve O'Brien The Battalion

HOUSTON — Chuck Henderson's best wasn't quite good enough Saturday afternoon.

The Texas A&M sophomore guard scored a career-high 29 points against the Houston Cougars, but the Aggies fell, 79-69.

Henderson

A graduate of Houston Lee High School, Henderson tied a school record with seven 3-pointers in a game, including four in the first half. He was 11-of-14 from the field for the game.

"I just go out there and play my hardest," Henderson said. "There was the hometown crowd and all my friends and everything — it just felt good being home."

Henderson, who is a second-year walk-on, connected on nine of his first 10 shots, including seven of eight 3-pointers.

"I just have a feeling sometimes," he said, "that I can hit the shot in the game. I just had one of those feelings today."

"Coach was telling me against the zone to spot up and shoot. I was hitting in warmups and had one of the feelings again. I was getting the ball in the right place, and I just tied it up."

A&M center Shedrick Anderson added 21 points for the Aggies and pulled down a team-high seven rebounds.

Anderson said Henderson's shooting helped to free up room under the basket.

"I feel very excited for (Chuck)," Anderson said. "It helps open things up inside for me. It gives me a chance to maneuver. It just gets so congested out there.

"His outside shooting is a definite positive for the team."

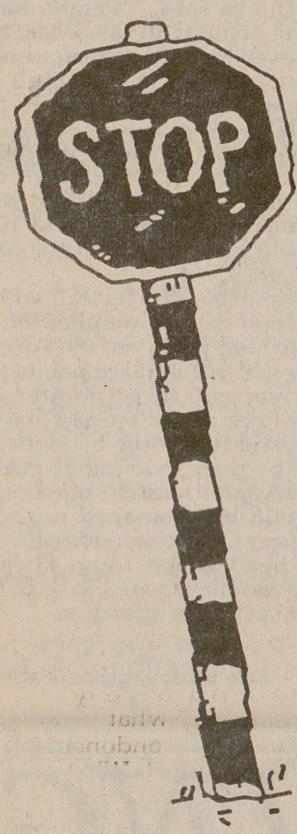

Henderson, who jammed his thumb in practice last week, was forced to play the game with a taped right hand.

"I was thinking about it when the game started," he said. "But after I made my first (basket), it felt pretty good."

"My shots starting falling, and I got the ball in the right places at the right times and just tied it up."

A&M head coach Tony Barone said Henderson's attitude has contributed to his success this season.

"Chuck is the kid who comes to practice every day wanting to play," Barone said. "He shows that if you want something bad enough, you can go out and get it. "He's certainly been a surprise for us in terms of production, but he's never been a surprise for us with his attitude."
