President Bush views hurricane aftermath

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOMESTEAD — People still awaiting help more than a week after Hurricane Andrew shattered their lives greeted President Bush with cheers and jeers Tuesday as officials spoke cautiously about aid efforts taking hold.

"I think we've turned the corner as far as getting food and clothing to the people," Barbara Gothard, a spokeswoman for Homestead city officials, said. "Now we'll address shelter and new housing."

Meanwhile, state officials sharply lowered their estimate of the number of homes destroyed, from 85,000 down to about 10,000 or less.

Bush flew to southern Florida for the second time in a week with a pledge that the federal government would pay 100 percent of most recovery costs and rebuild Homestead Air Force Base, which contributes $190 million annually to the local economy.

"This has nothing to do with partisanship. It has everything to do with helping the families," Bush said outside Homestead City Hall. State leaders welcomed the news.

"We're delighted," Gov. Lawton Chiles said. Republican Sen. Connie Mack called it "the greatest news this community could have."

But Bush got mixed reviews from hurricane victims. A half-dozen young women heckled him as he left.

"I have no lights, cold water, it's disgusting," said Lizzie Hawkins, 28, who lost her apartment to the storm. "He didn't do nothing."

But Gerardo Paz of Homestead shouted: "We appreciate what you're doing, Mr. President. Keep it up."

Bush left without acknowledging either boos or cheers. Frustration has run high among residents who feel the government was sluggish and inefficient in the days after the hurricane swept across the region on Aug. 24, in what could be the nation's costliest natural disaster.

Although military personnel worked through Monday night and Tuesday morning erecting three tent cities, officials said it could be Wednesday before people would be allowed to move in. Mud and rock slowed efforts to drive tent stakes.

The Army's chief of staff, Gen. Gordon Sullivan, said at the Pentagon that he may put up to 25,000 federal and National Guard troops in the area. Sullivan said he'd ordered military personnel to help residents find relief supplies, substitute housing and meet basic needs of sewage, power and debris removal.

There was disagreement among various agencies on the estimated number of houses destroyed. The Red Cross initially estimated 85,000 were damaged or destroyed; the governor at one point gave that as the number of houses destroyed.

Tom Herndon, Chiles' chief of staff, said Tuesday that 6,000 to 10,000 homes are now estimated destroyed; an estimated 25,000 suffered major damage and not all of them may be repairable; and an additional 45,000 to 50,000 have damage that can be repaired.

Dade County officials insisted Tuesday that an estimated 63,000 were destroyed. Herndon said the number of destroyed houses was going down as homeowners reassess damage and decide to make repairs.

Ex-airlines' chairman gets probation

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Former Continental Airlines Chairman Fred Lorenzo was sentenced to two years probation Tuesday after pleading guilty to a drunken driving charge.

Lorenzo, 52, was sentenced during a brief court appearance around noon before visiting Harris County-Court-at-Law Judge Gerald Payte.

A patrol officer stopped Lorenzo on July 28 after he saw him driving the wrong way on Houston street, according to court records. Lorenzo also admitted he had his driver's license with Officer C.W. Jones said.

Lorenzo was given two breathalyzer tests, blowing a .09 and .10 level, respectively. A person with a .10 blood-alcohol level is considered legally drunk. Texas. Jones has said Lorenzo's performance on motor skills tests resulted in the driving while intoxicated charge.

Lorenzo and his attorney, Paul Moen, did not immediately return telephone messages left at the offices Tuesday evening.

Lorenzo, who came to symbolize a tumultuous decade of airline deregulation in the 1980s, stepped down as chief executive officer of Continental Airlines Holding Co. in 1990. He remains on Continental's board of directors.

He built Continental into what was once the nation's largest airline company by merging the long Texas International Airlines with Continental and then buying Eastern Airlines and People's Press.

Eastern Airlines has since filed for bankruptcy protection in the midst of bankruptcy reorganization.

Compaq introduces printer

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Compaq Computer Corp. unveiled its first printers Monday, saying they are the fastest on the market.

The laser printers are designed to be connected to networks of personal computers, allowing the PC users to share the same machine.

"It's a major new business we're getting into," said Eckhard Pfeiffer, president of Compaq, which until now has made only personal computers and related gear. "Compaq is today no longer a one-product company."

Compaq said one of its printers, the Pagemarc 20, produces 20 pages per minute. The machine is twice as fast on average as Hewlett-Packard Co.'s LaserJet III printer when used in PostScript applications, Compaq said.

PostScript is the popular software from Adobe

Systems Inc. that allows printers to reproduce pages of computerized text.

Pfeiffer said it could take many months for competitive response from Hewlett-Packard, the leading maker of laser printers. He said Compaq also is working on other printers, including standalone models designed for single PCs.

Compaq designed the circuit boards that control the printers, while Fuji Xerox, a Japanese affiliate of Xerox Corp., makes the printer "engine," or the heart of the device. The printers are assembled by Compaq by Xerox.

The Pagemarc 20 carries a list price of $549 while the second model, the Pagemarc 15, which produces 15 pages a minute, lists for $399.

Pfeiffer became president and chief executive officer of Houston-based Compaq in October after the company's board pushed out co-founder Rod Canina, who apparently opposed the low-price PC strategy the company has since pursued.
