Johnson, Cowboys enjoying early success

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING—The Dallas Cowboys, off to a 2-0 start for the first time in Jimmy Johnson's NFL coaching career, are having to relearn how to handle prosperity.

Johnson

The Cowboys overcame their Meadowlands malaise by defeating the Giants 34-28, giving Johnson his first victory in the Big Apple. He had lost to the New York Giants three times and the New York Jets once in previous visits to the stadium.

quarter lead, Dallas had to hang on for the six-point victory.

"We've got a young team and when we got a big lead against New York (Giants) we didn't know how to react," Johnson said. "Maybe we'll know how to handle it the next time."

Said quarterback Troy Aikman, "I think we learned a big lesson. We took things for granted and it almost came back to get us."

Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt said the Cowboys relaxed and couldn't regain intensity.

"We all felt it was in hand, the coaches, the players, all of us," Wannstedt said.

"We thought it was over," Aikman said. "This could be a good thing for us in the long run. It was a good lesson for us."

The Cowboys are back at Texas

Stadium Sunday and the odds-makers have made Dallas a 13-point favorite over Phoenix, which lost starting quarterback Timm Rosenbach with a shoulder injury against Philadelphia.

Johnson said the Giant comeback should serve as a positive learning experience.

"It tested our character," Johnson said. "We came out of it alive."

Although the Cowboys were 11-5 last season, they never had many big leads. The biggest margin of victory was 27-7 over Phoenix.

"We just got tight when the Giants started their comeback," said offensive coordinator Norv Turner. "I guess you can't help a let-down when you get up 34-0. We weren't going conservative on offense but we just couldn't get things going. It was a strange game."

Dallas was spared the embarrassment of blowing the big lead in NFL history. The New Orleans Saints once blew a 35-7 lead to San Francisco.

"We were glad to get out there alive," Johnson said.

"This is good a lesson about losing intensity as you are going to get," said wide receiver Michael Irvin.

After meeting Phoenix on Sunday, the Cowboys will have off-week before meeting the Oilers in Dallas' second Monday night game of the year.

The Cowboys, 2-0 for the time since 1986, haven't started season 3-0 since 1983.

"I feel good about this team," Johnson said. "I really feel like starting to come together."

Dykes impressed with Tech's comeback win

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUBBOCK—Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes said Monday he's proud of the way his team overcame an early 10-point deficit to defeat Wyoming.

But he doesn't want coming from behind to become a habit.

Texas Tech fell back 17-7 early in the first half against the Cowboys but rebounded with a 49-32 shootout victory Saturday night.

"It was impressive to me that when we fell behind by 10, we didn't start blaming and finger-pointing. If you're not careful, you get down and start feeling sorry for yourself," Dykes said at his weekly press conference. "The guys relaxed and showed the confidence and leadership it takes to win."

Dykes added, "But we have got to get a lot better early in the ball game."

Tech's sixth-year coach had plenty of praise for standout offensive performances by quarterback Robert Hall, receiver Lloyd Hill and running back Byron "Bam" Morris.

Hall threw for 349 yards and two touchdowns without an interception. Most of the passes were going to Hill, who caught 12 for 222 yards, tying the school record for receptions in a game. Morris ran for 107 yards and three scores.

"Offensively, we played a heck of a ball game," Dykes said. "We overcame 100 yards in penalties and just kept plugging. We had way too many penalties (12). We need to get better in that area."

Dykes said he wasn't worried about his defense right now.

"You are going to have games where you are going to have to just outscore people," Dykes said. "If you have got some mastodons on defense that are fast mastodons, you might be able to shut some people out. But I don't see you're going to see many 50-0 games."

Tech improved to 1-1 and faces Oregon (0-2) on the road Saturday. The Ducks, of the Pacific 10 Conference, defeated the Raiders 28-13 in Lubbock last year.

Dykes said his players have forgotten the loss.

"Having played them a year ago makes a lot of difference," Dykes said. "Them beating us in Lubbock even makes more difference and then us knowing we as we played, you know, we don't play very well."

chasing Babe Ruth's career home run record, he received mountains of ugly, hateful letters during a time when our country was supposedly evolving into a more harmonious state.

If possible, Robinson's experiences were even worse than what Aaron went through, due to the magnitude of the majors during the late 40's. The 16 teams in existence at that time were the primary focus of many Americans, who fanatically followed the sport in a way not seen very often today. To have Robinson come in and cause a disruption was a heinous act, and many fans vilified Brooklyn general manager Branch Rickey and his newest star as a result.

Thankfully, Robinson and those who followed in his footsteps—Larry Doby, Roy Campanella, Don Newcombe—inched their way into the good graces of the public, not to mention their teammates. Ex-Negro Leaguers helped teams win pennants, a trait that helped break down locker room prejudice. In this regard, the Dodgers, as well as Doby's Indians, became standard bearers for how major league teams should be run.

So how can Robinson's accomplishments go unappreciated less than a half-century later? Ignorance is the only feasible answer, for many people have absolutely no inkling as to what Robinson means to baseball.

Perhaps no other instance better illustrates this ambivalence than what Aaron described in his book about the 1972 World Series between Oakland and Cincinnati. Robinson was recognized for his brilliant career during a pre-game ceremony, only to be shunned by many of the Oakland players, blacks included, as he waited to meet them in the dugout.

Whether those players realized that they were effectively spitting in his face or not, Robinson's death a short time later should have emphasized to them how much their playing lives were affected by one of the few men to buck the baseball system in a good way. But like so many other positive events in professional baseball, it would have been too little, too late.

Blair leads Houston past San Francisco, 5-0

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON—Willie Blair made his case for more work as a starter. Roger Craig, for one, was impressed.

"I liked him. He's got a good arm and we had him clocked at 90-93. He's got a good slider and a good cutter too. He shut us out once before in relief," the San Francisco manager said after Blair allowed only an infield single in six innings to lead the Houston Astros over the Giants 5-0 on Monday night.

Darren Lewis beat out an infield roller in the fourth for the only hit off Blair (5-6), who was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth after striking out seven and walking two. It was Blair's first win as a starter this season in five starts.

"You can see this guy's got good stuff and he was around the plate. His record isn't too good but you can't always go by that," Craig said. "We've seen a lot of Willie Blairs this season."

Lewis' roller was fielded by third baseman Ken Caminiti whose throw barely missed Blair.

"It was a close play and I'm sure if he had been called on Blair said. "I feel capable of finishing a game but I did feel I was starting to lose a little bit."

Xavier Hernandez allowed three hits over the last three innings for his seventh save.

Blair wouldn't mind more work as a starter, but realized he has a lot to prove.

"I feel comfortable doing either (starting or relieving)," Blair said. "Everywhere I've been I've done both. I'm used to it, I don't get disgruntled. I don't want to get locked into one role. I try to think about a preference."

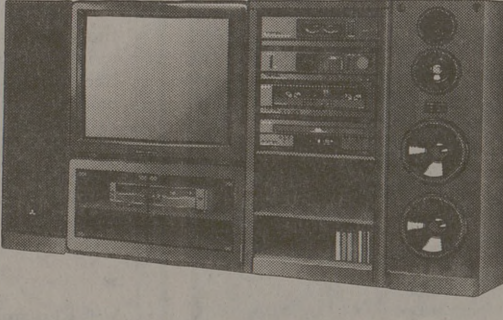

"To be considered a starter you have to put a string of games together, I haven't done that yet."

San Francisco rookie Ken Rogers (0-1) gave up four runs, six hits in five-plus innings. He struck out five and walked one.
