Goldsmith, Owls try to look Mitchell past early season setbacks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Rice coach Fred Goldsmith tried to smile away his troubles Monday. He was almost convincing. "We're very disappointed but we're not too many points away from 2-0," Goldsmith said. "Nothing is as good as it appears or as bad as it appears."

Rice started the season with its highest hopes in years of breaking the cycle of 30 years without a winning season. Now they're looking uphill at an 0-2 record and will face their home opener against Sam Houston State Saturday with quarterback Josh LaRocca sidelined for the year with a broken collarbone.

"It's been an emotional experience but in reality we're only 14 points away from 2-0," Goldsmith said.

The Owls lost to Duke 17-12 Saturday and they were beaten 30-21 by Air Force in their opener. A loss to NCAA Division II-A Sam Houston on Saturday could be a killing blow to the Owls' hopes of salvaging the season.

"You try not to think like that," Goldsmith said. "I remember in 1990 we had a stretch where we lost three in a row and then finished strong. I believe no matter what happens, this team has character and something good will happen."

LaRocca will be replaced by Bert Emanuel, who played in one series against Air Force and came off the bench against Duke. Goldsmith prepared for the worst and it happened early in the fourth quarter when LaRocca was injured.

"That's why I told him (Emanuel) that he would play regardless," Goldsmith said. "You hate to see LaRocca get hurt but we planned for it and I think the playing time helped Bert."

Emanuel ran 57 yards for a touchdown that brought the Owls back from a 17-6 deficit but two more Owl drives ended without any points.

Sam Houston State is 2-0 after beating Angelo State 20-0 on Saturday and the Owls won't be taking the Bearkats lightly.

"We have no reason to take anyone lightly," defensive end Sean Alberding said. "We're supposed to be the Rice team that does something and here we are 0-2."

with it." Mitchell seems to be dealing with her play on the court fine. She leads the Lady Aggies in blocking average with a 1.3 per game, and leads the team in service aces with 15.

She has already eclipsed her previous career highs of two aces and eight digs in a game three times, and equaled her nine seven block assists in a game against Texas-EI Paso.

With accomplishments like that, it's no wonder she is more than pleased with Aggie quick start this season, which the Lady Aggies' best since the last NCAA Tournament year in 1986.

"It's all just starting to click Mitchell said. "I find that the way things work with me is to keep working hard and don't get complacent, things will work out for me, and the team as well."

And Dykes has proven that you need a defense to win, no matter what the conference. So where, if anywhere, is the SWC's saving grace?

Try Houston, where the Cougars bounced back from their season-opening loss to Tulsa by cruising past Illinois in their Astro-dome opener Saturday.

The pleasant surprises for UH were many. Donald Douglas claimed the starting quarterback job for himself, whether John Jenkins will give it to him or not.

Douglas sliced through the Illini defense repeatedly, both passing and running, giving them twice as much to worry about, and proving that Jimmy Klingler will have to do more than ride his big brother's coat-tails to become the Cougs' full-time starter.

But much more impressive was the Houston defense, which for the past few years has been a contradiction in terms. Linemen Kevin LaBay, Steve Clarke, Stephen Dixon and Allen Aldridge terrorized Illinois quarterback Jason Verduzco from the first snap.

That freed up linebacker Ryan McCoy and allowed him to show glimpses of his previously-hidden talent.

And as any Cougar fan will tell you, a little defensive talent is much better than none at all.

If the Cougars survive this weekend's game with Michigan, they get to coast through the worst of the SWC before they host A&M Nov. 12.

And although the Aggies seemed to figure out how to defend the run-and-shoot last year, the Dome seems to cast the Aggies into a mysterious funk that seems to often leave them spellbound.

Just to add suspense, the A&M-UH game will be on ESPN. And yes, Nov. 12 is a Thursday. The Aggies can only hope that Houston doesn't come out in the old Bill Yeoman vein. That would really be weird.

As for the rest of the conference, the remainder of the season could turn out to be a foolproof cure for insomnia. SMU and TCU are as lowly as ever, and Rice and Baylor seem to be trying as hard as they can to join them.

The only consolation is that Arkansas is gone. All we need is the Citadel walking around claiming to be the best team in the Southwest Conference.
