Barly fall is there. cool fronts have held tures in the

during the hours and only the JEFF GREGG Outdoors Writer low-80s in dry afternoons.

And if you enjoy hunting and fishing, you're probably already geared for what can be the most productive time of year for overlapping the two sports.

It's a really tough to choose between hunting and fishing during the early fall, a problem that everyone wishes they had. For it is the early fall season when all of the following take place: 1) dove season opens, 2) squirrel season opens, 3)largemouth bass creep into a fall pattern, 4) flounder and golden croaker make their way out of the bays into the Gulf of Mexico, 36 inches) strip surf fishermen of miles and miles of monofilament.

Viewing it on paper, it sounds almost too good to be true doesn't it? Well it all happens, and the toughest part about cashing in on the action can be deciding which species to pursue.

The state's dove hunting season thus far has received mixed reviews depending upon which camp you wish to get your information from. The season which lasts through Oct. 31 and runs again from Jan. 2-10 (Central Zone dates) has seen excellent numbers of birds pushed into their migratory pattern by the early cool fronts. The best reports have come from plowed fields and stock tanks, and croton fields, further south.

Keep in mind that even though these first few cool fronts will push good numbers of birds our way, a 20 mph north wind can make the tiny target very difficult to hit. In other words, remember to take plenty of shells.

For counties that have a season on squirrels, euphemism for a strong population of the critters, the season opens today and runs through Jan. 15. The daily session limit of 20. This is where a Type II permit can come in handy for poor hunters like students

The permit allows the holder to hunt over 100,000 acres of state land managed by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. At a cost of $35, it's affordable, and it allows access to land in East Texas which is literally crawling with squirrels. Check with the local TPWD office if you have any questions about the permit and its benefits.

That other outdoor sport cur-rently heating up is fishing, and on the coast, it will continue to get hotter as water temperatures fall from bathwater high 80s into the mid-70s.

The flounder run will be spurred by each cool front, and the fish will be concentrated in the passes that lead to the gulf. They can be taken with hook and line or with a gig, an easy way to fill a freezer. The flatfish travel in large schools as they migrate, and by using a gig and night light or lantern, good numbers of them can be taken during the surf this time of year. Big bul redfish run the surf in schools and will eat just about anythin on the end of a hook. These are not the same fish caught in the bays by any means. These are catch-and-release only becaus most of them will far exceed 28 inch maximum. But dor let that stop you from doing but tle with a 30 pound fish.

If jabbing fish with a gig is not your cup of tea, don't forget

Toss a coin, draw straws or close your eyes and point if you're having problems decidir which species you want to put sue. The action won't last long so get while the gettin's good!

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

THE WOODLANDS - Second-day rounds of 73 by Morgan Brown and Ryan Dreyer helped the Texas A&M golf team earn their first tournament win of the year Wednesday in the 18-team Woodlands Intercollegiate Tournament held at the Tournament Players Course of the Woodlands.

The Aggies were without their top returner, Marco Gortana, who was busy representing his home country of Italy at the 1992 Eisenhower World Amateur Cup in Vancouver, Canada.

A&M head coach Bob Ellis said that a tournament win of this magnitude without Gortana's presence was a prime example of overcoming the odds

"This was really a nice win," Ellis said. "It was very important that we did it without Marco.

"It was really a struggle out there today. I am very encouraged about the way we played in the tough (weather) conditions and on fast greens.

Brown's consistency helped ease the pain of losing Gortana, as he shot a two-day total of 147 to tie for third in the individual standings, four strokes behind medalist Matt Mocniak of Stephen F. Austin.

'I was really pleased with the performance of Morgan," Ellis said. "He did not hit the ball that well, but he had a great day with the putter.

Dreyer and Anthony Rodriguez each carded totals of 150 to tie with four other golfers for seventh in the individual race. A&M's Brent Brown finished the tourney at 155 strokes, good enough for 27th. And newcomer Dru Fenimore's total of 159 placed him in a seven-way tie for 40th.

The Aggies' team total of 601 barely nipped Houston, who finished second with a 603. SFA rounded out the top three with 604 strokes.

Ślocum also said he felt wi the early start the Aggies got to and playing three of the fir four games on the road, last wee end's break in the schedule was necessity before starting confi ence play this weekend again

"We had real good practice last week," Slocum said. "We had four full days of pads with no injuries, plus we had unseasonably cool weather which makes it more sidered fun to work out.

ANAHEIM. Calif. - George Brett, who fought through an in-

And the Steelers, who were the most hated group of individ-uals to all those in Dallas, have started 3-1 but are sure to falter before mid-season.

Pittsburgh will have trouble building another 'Steel Curtain' defense without Thomas Everett, who is, of course, now a member of the Cowboys camp.

Haley and Everett are just the final pieces of the puzzle that will lead the Cowboys back to 'Super Sunday. Everett could be the kind of player that excels for the Cow-boys because he may feel more comfortable playing in the state of Texas, and more specifically, in Dallas, which is less than two hours from his hometown of Daingerfield. And when Dallas gets there, all the fans can thank the Steelers, the Niners, and most of all, the Minnesota Vikings Were it not for Minnesota, Dallas' entire lineup would consist of Herschel Walker, and no one else. That's because a large number of the players in skill positions for the Cowboys came ei-ther directly or indirectly from the Walker trade.

Brett, who returned to the lineup after sitting out two days with a sore shoulder, had a slicing dou-

After singling on 1-1 pitches

And what did Minnesota get for it? Three mediocre seasons and the agony of seeing Walker go to Philadelphia this season and start off with a bang. Now, after reaping the benefits of trading Walker, the Cowboys get the chance Monday night to show Herschel how much better off the team is without him. Not only that, but at the same time, Dallas gets another shot at taking down the lowest-class team wit the lowest-class fans at Philadel-phia's Veterans Stadium.

A win over the Eagles would move Dallas to 4-0. And after the 1-15 Cowboys of 1989 received the kind of treatment Philadelphia fans can dish out, any winin the state of Pennsylvania is especially sweet.

Almost as sweet as singing ...Houston Oilers three-and-one.' Or almost as sweet as meeting a woman who is a diehard Cowboys fan. And having her sing with you.
