Clinton calls recent attacks 'low

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Clinton said Thursday that President Bush had "sunk to a new low" in making a campaign issue of his college trip to Moscow and overseas war protests of two decades ago. Bush said he'd merely "expressed what was on my heart" and wasn't about to stop.

"I just think he's desperate," Clinton said before leaving Little Rock, Ark., for Missouri to prepare for Sunday's leadoff presidential debate. "I felt real sad for Mr. Bush yesterday. Here we are on our way to debate the great issues facing this country and its future, and we've descended to that level."

Bush said Wednesday night on CNN that Clinton should "level with the American people on the draft, on whether he went to Moscow, how many demonstrations he led against his own country from a foreign soil." He steered clear of the subject Thursday but said, "I'll probably have more to say about that later."

The Democratic candidate has said he did protest the Vietnam war and did visit Moscow on a college vacation, but he has bristled at

"Here we are on our way to debate the great issues facing this country and its future, and we've descended to that level."

-Bill Clinton

Bush's attempts to suggest there was something wrong in his actions.

Clinton, then 23, was studying in England when he took a 40-day trip by himself through Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia in late 1969 and early 1970, according to his campaign.

He took a train from Helsinki to Moscow arriving on New Year's Eve and staying about a week, the campaign said.

Clinton said Thursday he "mostly was just a tourist" in Moscow. He said he visited a friend of a friend at a Moscow university and talked to American tourists.

He said he did not talk to government officials. The reference to Soviet security forces was in answer to Republican Rep. Robert Dornan, who has wondered aloud whether Clinton's visit was "handled" by the KGB.

Dornan had been trying for more than a week to make the Moscow trip a campaign issue when Bush did just that on CNN's "Live King Live."

"Most of the people I met over there were very anti-government, anti-communist folks," Clinton said.

Texas' views hurt Bush, professor says

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Texans claim to be as conservative as ever but want the government to create more jobs and provide health insurance, possibly signaling trouble for President Bush, a Rice University sociologist said Thursday.

Rice professor Stephen L. Klineberg said results of his second Texas Environmental Survey showed Texans also want to preserve a woman's right to abortion and strengthen civil rights for homosexuals.

"These results point out why support for President Bush and his policies seems to be eroding, even in his adopted home state," Klineberg said.

Klineberg and Telesurveys of Texas polled 1,004 Texans between Sept. 16 and Sept. 30 for the survey. The margin for error was plus or minus 3.5 percent. He conducted a similar survey in 1990.

"The survey findings indicate support among Texans for more government, stronger poverty and jobs programs, federal health insurance and more progressive taxation," Klineberg said.

"Respondents disagreed with the suggestion that government regulation of business always does more harm than good. And they are opposed to greater restrictions on abortion rights," he said. The most-recent poll, taken before Dallas businessman Ross Perot reentered the presidential race, showed 38 percent favored Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton for president, while 32 percent favored Bush, 12 percent another candidate and 15 percent remaining undecided.

Some 80 percent of the respondents identified themselves as registered voters who were likely to cast ballots in the Nov. 3 election. Although 42 percent again said they considered themselves conservative in their political beliefs and only 18 percent claimed to be liberal, fewer professed an allegiance to the Republican Party today than two years ago.

This time, 26 percent called themselves Republicans compared to 32 percent in 1990, while 33 percent claimed to be Democrats now compared to 31 percent two years ago. The number of independents rose from 25 percent to 28 percent, while those claiming to be other or undecided rose from 12 percent to 14 percent.

"On this wide variety of critical issues, the data suggests that the positions taken by Republicans are failing to resonate with the majority of Texas voters today," Klineberg said.

Dave White, a junior English and philosophy student from Beaumont, stops to take a break and catch a little sun yesterday at Rudder Fountain. The comfortable weather should continue throughout the weekend.

Study links low 'good' cholesterol to disease

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Patients with acceptable levels of total cholesterol may remain at risk for heart attacks if they do not have enough of a lipoprotein that doctors call "good" cholesterol, according to a new study released Friday.

In coronary heart disease patients and heart attack survivors with desirable total cholesterol, low high-density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol is "strongly indicative" of future attacks and cardiac death, doctors concluded in the study in an American Heart Association journal.

Low HDL levels were "ominous" for study participants, who had double the risk of suffering a new cardiovascular event compared with those having high HDL levels, said researchers at Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions in Baltimore.

Their findings appear in the October issue of "Circulation," the Dallas-based AHA's scientific journal.

USAir, striking workers reach tentative accord

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — After a marathon 24-hour negotiation, USAir reached tentative agreement with its striking ground workers Thursday on a package of temporary wage cuts to help the airline deal with swiftly mounting losses.

"We are recommending a yes vote," said union negotiator Bill Scheri, who said the tentative contract protects the jobs of 8,300 USAir ground employees who are members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

The strike, which began early Monday, caused the cancellation of hundreds of flights around the country.

Perot to rerun campaign ad on economics Friday

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Ross Perot will rerun his half-hour campaign ad on the nation's economic problems Friday night instead of a new one that discusses solutions, aides said Thursday.

The campaign will broadcast the solutions ad sometime after Sunday's presidential debate, spokeswoman Sharon Holman said. It is expected to include painful prescriptions he has proposed in the past, such as tax increases and cuts in government spending programs.

Travis County now has 'killer' bees, officials say

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — State officials say they have confirmed that "killer" bees have arrived in Travis County.

The discovery prompted officials to ask Travis County to a quarantine restricting the movement of beekeeping operations and to warn Austin residents again about the highly aggressive bees.

A farmer encountered the bees, which are descended from an African strain, last week near Garfield southeast of Austin. As he was shredding weeds on his 50-acre farm, James Foradory said he noticed a small swarm in a tree beside his well.
