Pacers down Mavericks

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WACO — Reggie Miller scored 30 points and Detlef Schrempf added 20 points and 12 rebounds as the Indiana Pacers routed the Dallas Mavericks 143-120 in an NBA exhibition game Wednesday night.

Miller had three 3-pointers for the Pacers in a game that drew 2,786 at Baylor University.

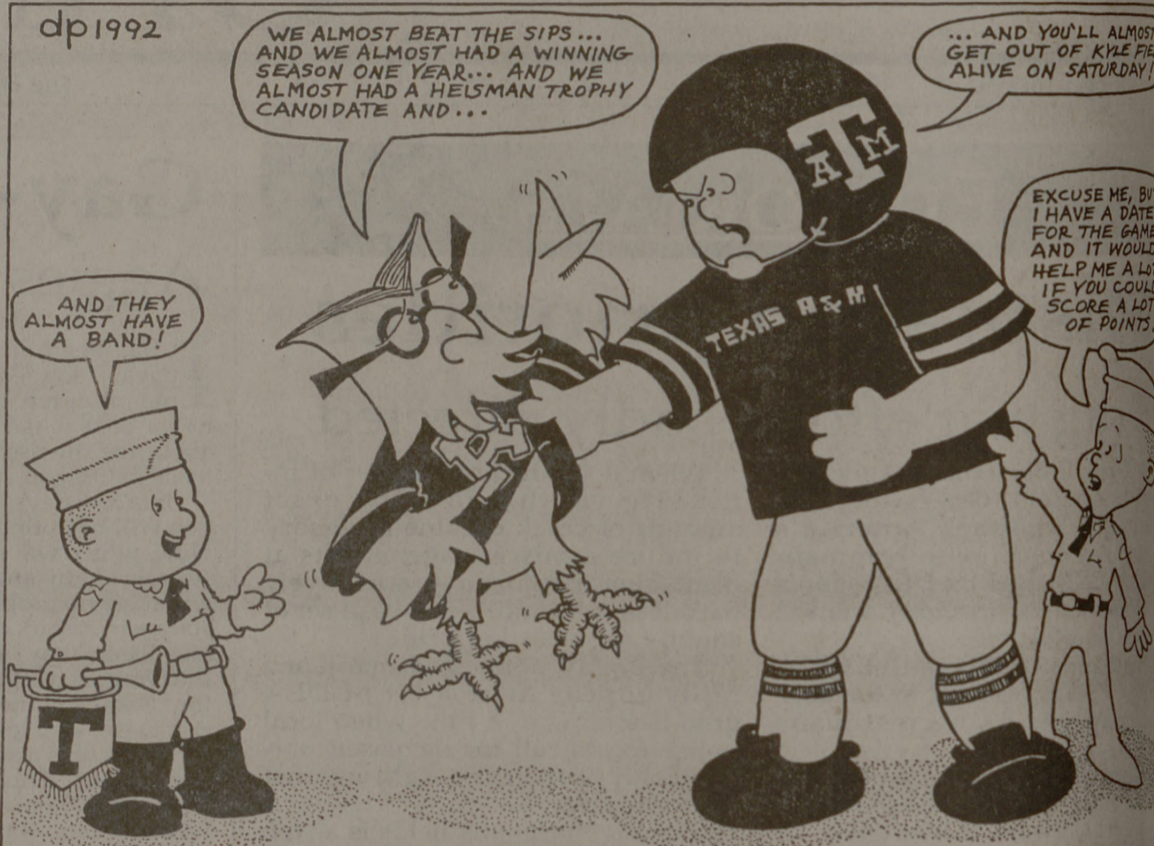

Walter Bond led Dallas with 15 points.

The Pacers ran away early, building a lead of 38-23 by the end of the first quarter. Dallas shot only 24 percent and didn't hit a field goal in the final four minutes of the period.

Dallas found its touch early in the second quarter and the Mavericks pulled back to 42-36, with 8:54 left in the half, but Indiana pushed the margin back to double figures in the next two minutes and Dallas got no closer than 10 after that.

Malik Sealy, the Pacers' first-round draft pick, scored eight points in nine minutes in his first NBA outing.

Hawks edge Rockets by 2

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Travis Mays' 16-foot jumper snapped a 122-122 tie with 1:12 to play and the Atlanta Hawks marked Dominique Wilkins' return with a 127-125 victory over the Houston Rockets Thursday night.

Wilkins, who missed the Hawks' last 40 games last year with a ruptured Achilles tendon, missed his first seven shots, but ended up scoring 21 points in 20 minutes of play.

He made seven of 17 shots and had four rebounds in the Hawks' first pre-season basketball game.

After Mays broke the tie, Lonmon Wiley added a pair of free throws before Matt Bullard countered with a 3-point shot. Duane Ferrell made one of two free throws with nine seconds left.

Then as the Rockets maneuvered for a last shot, Kevin Williams stole the ball from Hakeem Olajuwon to save the victory.

Ferrell led the Hawks with 23 points, 11 of them in the final seven minutes. Hawk rookie Ronnie Coleman added 12 points in 10 minutes.

drilled Texas Tech in Lubbock. That's the beauty of college football. On any given day, any team can show up and beat anybody.

Don't expect Rice to win here in College Station, though. A&M has too much to lose, and they should be pretty hot at kickoff time. That's the great thing of watching a top-ranked team; every game is a big one and rest assured the Aggies realize it.

Check this out. The University of Michigan has a stadium which holds over 100,000 fans, and they pack it to the top week after week. The University of Washington's student body was making enough noise to push a decibel meter to a reading of 120 decibels (which is above hearing impairment level) when they hosted Nebraska a few weeks ago. Talk about home field advantage.

This is not to say that playing at Kyle Field is a picnic for visiting teams, but since we have Texas Aggies ever been second to anybody in anything?

So tell your pals that you're canceling your road trip and invite them to Aggieland for the weekend. Maybe they'll tell you the same thing my friends from Tech told me when they visited College Station two weeks ago.

"Man, that Yell Practice bit was the most incredible thing I've ever seen," one Tech friend said.

Yeah. We know.

It's been a long week around campus. Let's make it a good weekend.

Just think, one day we'll all be parked in our RV's out at Olsen Field, gummy on fajitas and slurping gin and tonics over a game of cribbage and we can say, "These kids are almost as enthusiastic as we were."
