'You can't have it both ways," the president told Clinton.

Bush repeatedly hit Clinton for his stewardship of Arkansas, at one point calling the state "the lowest of the low" and asserting "it's about time I started putting things in perspective."

"Bush was more passionate,

'We never set out to have the defining moment come during the debates," said Mary Matalin, Bush's deputy campaign manager. Instead, the debates are a package deal. "At the end of them, voters will understand the nature of the choice they'll be making," she said.

The four debates did offer voters a chance to get a clearer view of the differences between the

HOUSTON - A Harris County official on Monday predicted more than 1 million county voters - the largest turnout ever — will go to the polls Nov. 3. County Tax Assessor-Collector Carl S. Smith, whose office is responsible for registering voters, said more than 1.3 million Harris County voters have registered to vote in the November general election. And his office was still counting.

I predict more than one million will vote," Smith said. "I think it's a reasonable prediction."

His staff has not yet completed its tally of how many of the county's 2.8 million residents signed up to vote this fall.

During the registration period his office has re-ceived an average of 15,000 calls daily, an all-time high. And people are still calling.

"They're calling and asking where do they vote and checking on their voter's application," he said. More than 100,000 new applicants met the Oct. 4 deadline for registering to vote, he said.

"We are making a supreme effort to have all applications processed and certificates in the mail by Oct. 21," Smith said.

Justices review conditions for admittance to state facilities

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether states may commit mentally retarded people to state facilities against their will more easily than the mentally ill are commit-

Kentucky officials told the court they want to use a lower standard to commit the retarded, because people who suffer from mental retardation have different needs from those who are mentally ill.

A federal appeals court struck down the lower standard on ground that the issue is one of personal liberty, not differing medical treatments. The case stems from a 1982 class-action lawsuit filed on behalf of all mentally retarded adults in The suit sought to give them the right to the same pre-commitment court hearings required for
