the hands of one of his tailbacks.

"Our backs are good enough that I felt if we kept running them up in there, somebody could hit one of those cracks," Slocum said.

On the next play, Hill rumbled through another big hole opened by the A&M offensive line at the Baylor 40 and darted towards the end zone, breaking tackles along end zone, breaking tackles along the way, to put his team ahead.

"As soon as I got the ball, the hole just suddenly blew open, and I said, 'man, I need to get this ball in the end zone,' and things worked in my favor," Hill said.

Thomas said it it could be the best run he has ever seen.

"When he had to score he went right through a guy for the touch-down, that's the difference between a great back and an average one," Thomas said.

Teaff again gave credit to the play of an A&M running back.
"I thought the run that Hill made was just a great, big-time run," Teaff said.

And what is beginning to mean more to both A&M runners is the relationship between them as they pace their team this season.

"We're two totally different people off the field," Hill said.

Smith, Cowboys run by Raiders, 28-18

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES - Emmitt Smith ruined the day for the largest crowd of the NFL season.

Smith rushed for 152 yards and three touchdowns Sunday as the Dallas Cowboys maintained their one-game lead in the NFC East with a 28-13 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders.

Smith, who carried 29 times, scored on a 6-yard run in the first quarter, a 4-yarder in the third period which put the Cowboys (6-1) ahead for good, and a 26-yarder with 3:26 left in the game.

The Raiders (3-5), cheered on by a crowd of 91,505 at the Los Angeles Coliseum, had won their previous three games

Smith's second touchdown run capped a 75-yard, five-play drive and made it 14-13. It came immediately after the Raiders had gone

Big play of the Cowboys' march was a 52-yard pass from Troy Aikman to Alvin Harper to the Los Angeles 21-yard line.

The Cowboys, playing on grass for the first time this season, extended their lead to 21-13 on a 3yard run by Aikman with 10:06 left in the game, capping a 64vard, 12-play march, and held the Raiders in check thereafter.

In fact, Los Angeles didn't after Smith's third scoring run.

The Los Angeles touchdown came two plays after Tim Brown returned Mike Saxon's 29-yard punt 29 yards to the Dallas 33-

Aikman completed 16 of 25 passes for 234 yards without being intercepted. He was sacked five times - twice each by Howie Long and Aaron Wallace. Marinovich struggled, com-pleting only eight of 23 passes for

117 yards without being intercepted and was sacked three times. He was relieved by Jay Schroeder

The Raiders, who entered game having scored only 14 quarter points in their pr seven games, took a 6-0 le driving 83 yards on 11 play receiving the opening kin Marcus Allen scored thet down on a 1-yard run.

The conversion attem aborted when holder Jeff G was unable to handle a lows from center Dan Turk and p kicker Jeff Jaeger's desper pass was incomplete.

The Cowboys responded moving 80 yards on 14 pus take a 7-6 lead, scoring on 5 6-yard run. The Raiders had lowed a touchdown in the previous quarters.

Aggies

Slocum said. "You're in a situagoing to get down the line, you have to get out from the center pretty quickly. Sometimes when you get in too much of a hurry, you wind up leaving the ball.

The game also marked the first time this season that a reserve quarterback has seen a substantial amount of playing time for the Aggies, as true freshman Corey Pullig replaced starter Jeff Granger on A&M's second offensive series and played the rest of the first half and the opening series of the second half. Granger returned after that and played the rest of the game.

Slocum said the Aggies got some bad breaks in the first series, and that since he had wanted to get Pullig some playing time, he felt that was a good time to put

"I went into the game wanting to get Corey more playing time so he could get a feel of things, so after the first series I decided we did," he said.

Slocum said he felt Pullig performed well in only his third appearance of the season, considering the scope and intensity of the

"I thought he did good considering his experience and the amount of playing time he has had," he said. "Going into a big game like that the way he did, I thought he did exceptionally Pullig's appearance in the first quarter came after a goal-line stand from the A&M defense at their own one-yard line. Slocum said one reason he put Pullig in such a tough position was to demonstrate that he had con dence in his abilities. "I have a lot of confident

Corey, and I wanted to demon strate that to him," Slocum said Pullig finished the game co Pullig finished the game of pleting 3-for-11 for 41 yards of Granger was 3-for-6 for min Tammy Tr

Corey handed the ball to Rodney, the running back, who promptly steamrolled 84 yards for the team's first touchdown And the fair citizens of College Station cheered.

In the next drive, Corey again pleased the crowd with passes of 25 and 11 yards. He looked like the new man at the helm. Corey was on his way.

Then, it seemed like the young Corey had developed the same off-speed pitch that Jeff was throwing. R.C. had to wonder if his team was playing in Olsen Field instead of Kyle.

The Bears managed to climb ahead. At halftime, the home team was behind.

And supporters of the home team knew how detrimental this was. Last week's show was not televised so the people who vote in the AP poll could not see the home team's occasional slip-ups. All they saw was a 35-9 win.

But this week's show was televised all over the Southwest and, for a nominal fee, other parts of America. There was no avoiding

After one possession in the second half, R.C. decided that he would save the young Corey for another week. He finished the day completing only three passes out of 11 attempts.

"I'm not happy with my per-formance, but I'm not disap-pointed," Corey said. "I feel more comfortable with each game. It gets a lot easier as the games go on.

Jeff came into the game. He looked impressive on a third down taking the ball himself for 15 yards to move the chains.

But it was none other than Greg, the running back who keeps his own time, who saved Jeff by running up the middle for a 40-yard score that would end up being enough for the home

Jeff ended up completing three of six passes, but for a total of minus-eight yards. His longest completion was for negative-four yards.

Although the young Corey and the elder leff combined for total of 33 yards passing, the home team still found a way made it to
