fenses are also similar in that when any member of the unit, from the center on up to the quarterback, shoots himself in the foot on a regular basis, the whole offense is wounded.

In Houston's case, they have been their own worst enemy this season. In their 41-16 loss to Southern Methodist last weekend, the Cougars' shaky offensive line allowed the Mustangs' undersized defense to rack up five sacks and three interceptions while SMU's own modified version of the run-and-shoot hit on all cylinders.

For coaches like the University of Texas' John Mackovic, defending the run-and-shoot is a matter of trying to slow it down and waiting for those key mistakes.

"(The key is) trying to keep as much containment on the receivers as possible, which everyone tries to do," Mackovic says. "They keep you off-balance."

"The biggest thing is that you have to be in a position to be around the ball all of the time. In the run-and-shoot, the ball is across the line of scrimmage all of the time."

When the Longhorns played Houston in October, Mackovic's scheme seemed to be that the best defense is a good offense as Texas came from behind to beat UH 45-38.

Texas Christian took a similar approach on Oct. 31. The Horned Frogs tried to outgun the Cougars but came up short in Houston's 49-46 win.

That game again showed how vulnerable the run-and-shoot is to turnovers. TCU had touchdowns on a Tony Rand interception and a Lenoy Jones fumble recovery, in addition to another touchdown on a blocked punt, making for a final score that was much closer than the game itself.

What both of those games proved in the end is that, at least in the SWC, a team needs a good defense to win on a consistent basis. Houston, Texas and Texas Tech have all three made that painfully obvious.

Which brings us to A&M's "Wrecking Crew" defense, who will have the ghost of Astro-dome trips past to deal with Thursday.

The last time the Aggies played in the 'Dome, David Klingler led UH to a 36-31 win, putting a major dent in A&M's Cotton Bowl hopes. And even last year, Klingler and company put a scare into the Aggies at Kyle Field, losing 27-18.

It would be tempting for A&M defenders to relax against Houston. The Cougars' offensive line is weak with the pass and the run. There are no tight ends or full-backs to try and block outside linebackers Marcus Buckley and Steve Solari. And Jimmy Klingler, like his brother, is not known for having a knack for evading pass rushers.

Consequently, it will be interesting to see what A&M defensive coordinator Bob Davie will throw at John Jenkins' run-and-shoot. He has already proven this year that he can adjust to radical shifts in opponents' offensive schemes, as witnessed against Rice and, most recently, Louisville. That leaves the run-and-shoot as the final frontier for Davie's crew to conquer.

Young, 49ers blow by Falcons, 41-3

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — The San Francisco 49ers made sure there wouldn't be an end-of-the-game "Hail Mary" winner for Atlanta this time.

Steve Young passed for three touchdowns and the 49ers defense came up with six turnovers Monday night to crush the Falcons 41-3 for the second time in three weeks.

The 49ers (7-2) climbed back into a tie with New Orleans for first place in the NFC West and the Falcons fell to 3-6.

Young's scoring passes covered 12 yards to Odessa Turner in the first quarter, 21 yards to Ricky Watters in the second and 19 yards to Jerry Rice in the final period.

Merton Hanks fielded a bouncing punt less than two minutes after the Rice touchdown and returned it 48 yards for another score.

The Niners, who buried Atlanta 56-17 three weeks earlier in San Francisco, have twice been victims of "Hail Mary" passes in Atlanta — losing 17-14 last year and 28-24 in 1983.

Tom Rathman scored the other touchdown on a 2-yard run and Mike Cofer kicked field goals of 40 and 32 yards.

Atlanta got a 33-yard field goal from Norm Johnson with two seconds left in the half, cutting the lead to 14-3. It capped a 75-yard drive in which Billy Joe Tolliver accounted for all the yardage while completing six of eight passes.

The tone was set early when Keith Jones took in a short pass from Tolliver and fumbled it away, Bill Romanowski claiming it for the 49ers on the Atlanta 48.

It took nine plays for Young to convert it into a lead the 49ers never lost. Young completed four passes for 34 yards and Watters ran for 17 yards in the drive that ended with the 12-yard pass to Turner with 4:54 left in the first period.

The 49ers failed to convert another first-quarter turnover into points.

Three plays after the Young to Turner touchdown, Don Griffin intercepted a Tolliver pass off Andre Rison's hands at the Atlanta 43. San Francisco failed to move and had to punt.

San Francisco also wasted a 43-yard run by Watters to its 48 after Johnson had punted 37 yards on a fake field goal, out of bounds on the 49ers 2.

Young set up his 21-yard scoring pass to Watters with a 20-yarder to Brent Jones at the Atlanta 31 late in the second quarter.

Cofer's first field goal capped a 25-yard, eight-play drive and the 32-yarder came after Rison's fumble was recovered by Michael McGruder on the Atlanta 35.

Deion Sanders dropped the ensuing kickoff and Amp Lee recovered at the Atlanta 26, setting up Rathman's 2-yard scoring run.

Baseball expansion draft protection list released

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Tim Wallach, Carlton Fisk and Bryan Harvey were among those left off protected lists Monday as major league teams decided which players to expose during next week's expansion draft.

Pittsburgh playoff star Bob Walk also will be available when the Colorado Rockies and Florida Marlins each pick 36 players in next Tuesday's draft.

Major league teams were required to submit a list by 2 p.m. EST Monday of the 15 players each wanted to protect. The complete lists, which were sent to the Rockies and Marlins, the commissioner's office and the Major League Baseball Players' Association, were not to be made public and were cloaked in secrecy.

Wallach, Fisk and Walk all agreed to waive the no-trade rights they earned as players who have spent 10 years in the majors, including the last five with the same team.

"I don't think I'm going to be drafted but if there's a team that might draft me, it would be the Marlins because they seem to have the money," Wallach said Monday. "But I don't really have a preference where I go. I'd rather stay in Montreal because we have a chance to win. The guy who is going to take my spot on the protected list might be a guy who might help us win next year."

Besides those on the protected list, there are two kinds of players who are not eligible for the draft — those with no big-league experience and fewer than three years of pro ball if they signed at age 19, or those with no major-league experience and fewer than four years of pro ball if they signed at 18.

salvage their season and that has made the short week a little more exciting.

"The smaller amount of practice has scared us a little because we have figured that they will give us their best game," he said.

"Right now, we are clicking on offense and we are a little bit better team-wise, so handling the short week should not be difficult."

Both Dausin and Solari said the short week worries will be dismissed once the game starts.

"When that kickoff comes off the tee, the adrenaline will take over and anything negative will be lost," Solari said. "All the preparation will take over and it will be time to play. This will be a great game for us to get exposure and play like we are capable of."

"Game time is when everything is forgotten," Dausin said. "We will be ready to play."

Solari agreed that the Aggies will have to be prepared to strap on the chinch straps and play. The contest, which will be televised on ESPN, will bring out the best effort Houston can muster. He said the Cougars 41-16 loss to SMU last Saturday should not play a part in the game, but only time will tell.

"All that happened last week is just that, last week," Solari said.

"Houston will be a different team Thursday night, especially since they are playing us. It seems like everybody plays us tough and everybody remembers the last time we played at the Astrodome (a 36-31 A&M loss) so nothing should be taken for granted."

"We are going to have our hands full going into the Astrodome."

Slocum concurred with Solari's statements.

"That loss to SMU will have no effect on our game," Slocum said. "The team we play in Houston will be a totally different team than played up in Ownby Stadium last Saturday. They will be playing in the Astrodome in front of their home crowd."

"We will have our work cut out for us."

Dausin said that A&M should have no problems overcoming all the negatives associated with the short week and Houston. He added that the national exposure for Aggies will provide a good medium for the rest of the country to see what A&M has to offer.

"We have an opportunity to show the nation that we are for real and I am excited about the game being on ESPN," Dausin said. "I thought we had a good showing against Louisville last weekend where we showed that we have a good program."

"This game provides us a way to show that we are having a good year. We will be ready, short preparation or not."
