Protesters sack, burn border city election site

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MATAMOROS, Mexico— Angry protesters on Wednesday sacked and burned the election headquarters in this border city after guards began to beat demonstrators.

Isidro Canales, who witnessed the confrontation, said opposition party leaders were trying to enter the building when they were rebuffed by a group of camouflaged guards armed with night sticks.

Canales said the guards beat one woman, sending her to the hospital.

That attack angered the people and they began to riot, witnesses said.

Several others were injured. The burning started after guards used tear gas to disperse the crowd outside the building where votes from Sunday's balloting were being counted.

A pile of furniture smoldered Wednesday afternoon near the doors of the blackened election headquarters.

People milling in the street displayed ballots they said came from the building and showed proof of vote fraud.

Nursing home head denies problems

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN— The former head of a Hondo nursing home where seven handicapped children died in the last half of 1991 says neither state investigators nor her staff told her of problems at the home.

"I was very proud of the fact that the facility was running very well," said Barbara Doyle.

Doyle testified Tuesday at the end of a two-day disciplinary hearing in Austin. She said she took a troubled nursing home in 1990 and turned it into a quality facility before she left in December 1991.

But mothers whose children died at the nursing home and two former staff nurses disagreed with Doyle.

The Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators has charged Doyle with violating state nursing home laws.

The board could revoke her license.

Doyle said no one told her the Heritage Manor needed improvement.

State unveils buyers guide for insurance

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN— Gov. Ann Richards had some advice Wednesday for Texas insurance consumers: You'd better shop around.

Richards and other state leaders unveiled a new consumer guide and a beefed-up hot line for insurance shoppers.

Their hope is that the steps will lead to more comparison shopping and more competition, thus better services and lower prices.

"That's how the market is supposed to work and that's the way our flexible price system is designed to work," she said.

The system allows companies to charge up to 25 percent above or 30 percent below the standard rate for insurance. But the system relies on consumers doing their part, Richards said.

"With flex band, companies still have room to compete with each other, but do not have room to exploit the Texas consumers. The consumer is the key. With the range of price options that are available to insurance buyers, they indeed do need to go shopping," Richards said.

Claire Koriotoh, chairman of the State Board of Insurance, said insurance rates have risen overall about 1.9 percent since the flexible price plan went into effect in March.

Insurance companies had been asking for bigger rate increases — in some cases as much as 26 percent — before the system was approved, Koriotoh said.

"Overall, we've seen what we hoped we would see, and that is rate stability. We haven't seen any wide fluctuations at all," she said.

"Basically, our hot line is going to be one of the key tools to seeing that insurance consumers get a little bit more sophisticated," Koriotoh said.

Callers can get rough rate estimates as well as information on the stability and consumer service records of insurance companies.

But they should not rely on the hot line as their sole source of information, Richards said.

"The state is not here to do their shopping for them. We can supply all of the information that is available. But taxpayers are not in the business of paying their money for people who are too lazy to do their automobile or homeowners insurance," Richards said.

The hot line number is 800-252-3439.
