'Woza Albert!' wins several awards

By JENNY MAGEE

Reviewer of THE BATTALION

The Texas A&M production of the play "Woza Albert!" was named the best production at a theater festival held at the University of Texas at El Paso on Nov. 11-15.

The play, which addresses the themes of racial, social and political struggles in South Africa, received both the Critic's Choice and the Director's Choice for the best play at the competition, a branch of the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival.

"Woza Albert!" will now be considered for performance at a regional festival which will include plays from Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and New Mexico.

Six plays will be selected from over 800 nationwide productions to be performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The play, produced by Theatre Inkululeko!, was originally performed on Nov. 6-8, and three new performances have been scheduled for Nov. 20-22 in 201 MSC.

A&M theater arts professor Roger Schultz, who directed "Woza Albert!," said that he was excited to see this kind of talent at A&M.

"Rapulana Seiphemo and Clinton Sam, the actors, are extremely talented young men," Schultz said. "Their performance was absolutely infectious. The audience was almost instantaneously on their feet with their applause."

Seiphemo and Sam received nominations for a scholarship competition for their performances.
