

AGGIE  CINEMA

For Information Call 847-8478

An MSC Student Programs Committee

The ALTERNATIVE Film Series PRESENTS

MONSTER IN A BOX

TONIGHT
7:00p.m. & 9:00p.m.
Admission is $2.50

A SPECIAL FRIDAY NIGHT DOUBLE FEATURE

The Making of Do The Right Thing

7:30p.m.

ONLY A $1.50 For Both!

All films will be presented in Rudder Theatre Complex

Announcements: Because of circumstances beyond our control Bram Stoker's Dracula has been cancelled. Also, Blade Runner has been postponed until Spring of 1993. We apologize for any inconvenience.

9:00p.m.

MSC TOWN HALL CLUB

PRESENT

toad the wet sprocket

with special guest gin blossoms

THURSDAY, DEC. 3
DEWARE FIELDHOUSE
TICKETS $10 / $13 PUBLIC
INFO. CALL 845-1234

A&M soccer headed to nationals

By K. LEE DAVIS

Sports Writer of THE BATTALION

The Texas A&M soccer team will be traveling to Austin this weekend to take on other university teams from across the nation in an attempt to bring a national title home.

The National Collegiate Club Soccer Association national tournament will be held this weekend with 16 teams participating.

The teams will be split into four groups of four, where they will play a round-robin tournament to decide which two teams from each division will advance to the quarterfinals.

The Aggies (8-1-2, 3-0 in post-season) will play North Dakota State University at 9:30 a.m. Friday, with a match against the University of Nebraska-Omaha at 5:30 that day.

The round-robin portion of the tournament will conclude on Saturday morning, with A&M slated to play the University of Arizona at 10:30.

The quarterfinals will start at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, with the semi-finals and championship game to follow on Sunday at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. respectively.

The Aggies earned the right to go to the championship tournament by winning their conference tournament two weekends ago.

At the Texas Collegiate Soccer League Tournament, A&M defeated Southwest Texas State 4-0, beat the University of Texas in a penalty kick shootout after the teams were deadlocked at one, and then got past Baylor in another shootout 7-6 to take the tournament.

Barone lands third recruit of fall period

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Texas A&M has signed Chris Pulliams, a 6-7 forward from Fork Union (Va.) Military Academy, to a national letter-of-intent, A&M basketball coach Tony Barone said Wednesday.

Pulliams is the third and final signee for the Aggies in the early signing period, joining Victoria guard Jimmy Smith and Fort Worth Dunbar guard Anthony Burks. Barone said he expects to sign two more players in the spring.

Pulliams attended high school at San Antonio MacArthur, where he averaged 16.1 points and 6.1 rebounds per game as a senior and 16.2 points as a junior. Pulliams was a two-time all-city and all-district selection at MacArthur. He was named to the Class 5A all-state team last season and was honorable mention All-American by Blue Ribbon.

"Chris is a tremendous shooter and an outstanding swing prospect," Barone said. "We think he can play at least two positions for us."

Sullivan

Continued From Page 7

Despite a spate of injuries, including a recent hip pointer, Clay will play against A&M Saturday. But as for his protection, that is another story. The Frogs have only seven healthy offensive linemen, and TCU's lone tight end, freshman walk-on Greg Harriss, will miss the game entirely. That leaves Sullivan in a quandary as he prepares for a well-rested A&M squad, the toughest opponent on TCU's schedule.

"We're not very healthy at all," Sullivan said with a resigned chuckle. "We can't afford to get anybody else hurt."

Foster

Continued From Page 7

back to Nov. 7, 1991. That night, Texas A&M traveled to Fort Worth on one of the coldest nights in the history of the state of Texas. The weather, combined with A&M's athletic dominance of TCU, made for some bone-crunching plays and a game that will take a long time to be forgotten in Horned Frog country.

By the time the night was over, the number of TCU players who had been carried off the field was greater than the number of points they scored in the Aggies' 44-7 destruction and demoralization of the Frogs. Among those who were carried off the field was TCU receiver Kyle McPherson, who had his head handed to him on a platter by A&M death-squad linebacker Quentin Coryatt.

After that game was over, ESPN college football analyst Lee Corso (name sound familiar?) praised the A&M squad and said himself that this was probably the hardest-hitting football team in the nation. He also said later during the season that when the Aggies met Florida State in the Cotton Bowl, it should be one of the toughest defensive struggles of the season because of the speed of the two units. And it was.

This, the same man who said A&M wouldn't be No. 3 this week, was praising the Aggies last season at this time. Just check this year's Texas A&M media guide, and you will see a photo of Kyle Field at last season's Texas game with a sign in the crowd that says "We love Lee Corso!" Apparently, the feeling was mutual.

The point being, Corso is not taking shots at the Aggies because of a personal dislike of Texas A&M. This man loved the Aggies last season, but this year said they shouldn't be ranked third. There's a big difference in saying a team is no good and saying they should be ranked fourth, not third. His statement concerning this season's A&M team is merely an opinion, a belief about who is the third-ranked team based on his honest analysis, not on a personal vendetta.

So give Corso a break. He's only saying what he believes. Maybe he did graduate from Florida State, but if the Aggies pound TCU like they did last season and take Texas down hard right in Corso's ESPN backyard, he'll have to give them credit.

As will everyone else.

Keep Alcohol from

Shattering the Tradition

Texas Aggie Bonfire
November 24, 1992