Poetry reading tonight

Native American bridges cowboy, Indian culture

By JULIE POLSTON

Feature Writer of THE BATTALION

The English Department and Inkshed Press will sponsor a poetry reading by Crow Indian poet Hank Real Bird tonight, Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the University Center Gallery.

Susan Kouyomjian, coordinator for guest speaker presentations for the English Department, said she met Real Bird at a Cowboy Poetry Gathering in Nevada in 1990. "We were totally taken by storm with his poetry," she said. "Real Bird's work awakens people to certain ideas, notions and ways of life, and encourages people to be who they are."

Real Bird, who was born on the Crow Indian Reservation in southeastern Montana, was raised by his grandparents in the traditional Crow Indian way of life.

"The only security that I ever felt was when I was chopping wood or hauling water for my grandpa," he said. "It was beautiful. I was blessed to be able to live that life."

The Crow Indian language is his primary language; in fact, Real Bird said he did not learn English until the first grade.

In addition to his Native American culture, Real Bird is also a cowboy. He participated in the Montana High School Rodeo Association for four years, and was a cowboy on Padlock's branding wagon by the time he was 15.

"The rodeo was the only job I ever had when I was growing up," he said. "All I ever wanted to be was a cowboy."

Real Bird said one reason the Indian and the cowboy are similar is because nature is very important to both cultures.

Kouyomjian said Real Bird is a bridge between the cowboy and Indian cultures.

"He is a cowboy Indian," she said. "He has a foot in both cultures. Therefore, his writing is very unique because it encompasses both worlds and speaks to all types of people."

Real Bird graduated from high school in 1964 and decided he wanted to be a teacher. He attended college at Western Montana College where he was a member of the school rodeo team his freshman and sophomore years. Real Bird then went to Montana State University to finish school and continue with the rodeo.

After receiving his bachelor's degree in elementary education from MSU in 1971, Real Bird returned to the reservation to teach a fourth grade class at the Crow Agency School.

Real Bird went back to school to obtain his master's degree from Eastern Montana College. Currently, he is Dean of Students at Little Big Horn College in Montana.

Real Bird said his poetry shows people the sacredness in different ways.

"We use good thoughts to people hearts that are good," he said. "It's very simple, and how my life is."

Annual Christmas decoration festival lights up College Station's Central Park

By JENNY MAGEE

Reviewer of THE BATTALION

College Station's Central Park will be lighting the path to Christmas with the ninth annual Christmas in the Park Lighting Celebration which will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 1 at 6:30 p.m.

More than 45,000 lights will be strung across the trees and through the water in the 47-acre park. The display will be lit at the end of a live performance of Christmas music.

The celebration will include horse-drawn and tractor-drawn hayrides, a bonfire and a live nativity scene with the Bryan Future Farmers of America.

Kass Prince, executive director of the Brazos Valley Arts Council, said the celebration is a program of the arts council in August 1989 in an effort to display Texas art.

"Our mission is restricted to Texas artists," she said. "But we don't restrict the medium of the art."

Store curator Letitia Alston said the gallery has shown oil and watercolor painting, bronze and wood sculpture, pottery, jewelry, and paper art.

"We show about eight exhibits a year that range from very representational art, like the western exhibit we just completed, to abstract," Alston said. "This coming year we will exhibit a glass show, which we've never had, and we'll also host a ceramics show. Local Color is where you'll see new artists in the Brazos Valley for the first time."

Prince said the gallery offers something unique to Texas artists.

Friday and Saturday featuring hayrides, choirs and photo opportunities with Santa Claus.

Walker said "quite a few" college students attend the celebration.

"It is something a little more exciting than an average Tuesday night," she said. "A lot of people even end up getting engaged; it is a pretty romantic event for College Station."

Christmas in the Park began in 1984, financed by the Jack Lester family through 1987. It is now sponsored by Waltman and Associates, attorneys at law.

The park is located at 1000 Krenek Tap road.

Local gallery shows Texas art of all types
