Ten biology sections added to summer school schedule

By JEFF GOSMANO

The Battalion

The Department of Biology has added ten additional sections to this summer's course schedule which will allow up to 300 more students to take biology courses.

New summer courses include introductory and upper-level microbiology, botany, microbiology and zoology classes. The new courses include MICR 206, 351, 352, ZOO 219, 220, and BOTN 304.

Dr. Dave Owens, professor of biology at Texas A&M, said it is important that students be aware of these course additions because the new classes and sections are not listed in the summer registration manual.

Students should check with biology professors or advisers to find out when these new classes are offered, he said.

Owens said graduating seniors will benefit most from the additional classes.

"This will be a tremendous help," he said, "especially to graduating seniors. This will also allow more students to start on coursework or retake a class."

The provost's office has provided the funding for the new courses, he said.

Bryan to test sewer lines to identify leaking pipes

Bryan will begin smoke testing its sewer lines this week to uncover leaks in the sewer lines.

"It's important that we identify and repair these leaks to keep rain and other runoff out of the lines," said City Engineer Bruce Karr in a released statement.

"Runoff water that reaches the sewer lines is treated with the rest of the wastewater. Since treating water costs money, we're doing our best to keep infiltration to a minimum," he said.

The procedure consists of blowing air combined with nontoxic smoke into the sewer system.

The smoke reveals leaks because it will flow against the path of intruding water, causing it to rise to the surface.

The smoke poses no threat to residents, though, in the past, it has led to false alarms reported to the fire department.

The Bryan Fire Department asks that residents be reasonably sure of the smoke's source before reporting a fire.

The following subdivisions will be tested between now and July: Copperfield, Nottingham Forest, Brookhaven and Wheeler Ridge.

The week includes a poster drive to generate awareness.

Correction

A photo appearing in Monday's issue of The Battalion said the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity has sponsored Fight Night for the past 17 years, however the fraternity has sponsored the event for the past 16 years. In addition, USA Boxing is sponsoring this year's Fight Night. The Battalion regrets the error.
