

Lubbock bishop takes over second scandalized diocese

LUBBOCK — Bishop Michael J. Sheehan, fresh from handling accusations that a Lubbock diocese priest had molested children, assumed duties Tuesday in the New Mexico archdiocese rocked by a sex scandal.

Sheehan, 53, will remain as bishop over the 51,000 Catholics in the 25-county Diocese of Lubbock.

Pope John Paul II accepted the resignation Tuesday of Santa Fe's Archbishop Robert F. Sanchez.

The Vatican said the pope appointed Sheehan as apostolic administrator, or acting head, of the Santa Fe archdiocese.

Seven women have alleged they had sex with Sanchez.

Sheehan said he had no blueprint but truth and directness for handling what he called a formidable challenge.

"We'll be getting through the pain of these difficult days just like the church gets through the pain of Holy Week and Good Friday," he said before leaving to meet with church officials in New Mexico.

Sheehan said Sanchez called him Monday night to offer support and prayers.

Sanchez brought many blessings to the church, Sheehan said.

"He's a friend. I grieve with him and the Church of Santa Fe during these distressing times," he said. "I promise to do everything I can to bring healing and peace."

Sanchez had issued a statement asking forgiveness for any pain caused by the allegations, but has neither confirmed or denied them.

Last December, Sheehan came to the defense of a comatose O'Donnell priest accused in news reports of molesting children years ago.

Sheehan encouraged phone calls from people who felt victimized by the Rev. Rodney Howell, who has since died of cancer.

Sheehan said the Howell case may have played a part in his selection for the Santa Fe assignment, which he called temporary.

Sheehan also was thrust into the national spotlight in August 1988 when parishioners at St. John Neumann Catholic Church of Lubbock reported receiving messages from the Virgin Mary.

Sheehan took a cautious approach as hundreds said they saw the sun dance in the sky and visions of Jesus in the clouds.

Women charged in teen death

Brownsville police arrest first two suspects in murder case

BROWNSVILLE — Authorities investigating the shooting death of a high school honor student charged a 72-year-old folk healer and the mother of the student's former girlfriend with capital murder Tuesday.

Sheriff Alex Perez said the Brownsville women were accused of hiring someone to kill 18-year-old Joey Fischer on March 3 at his Rancho Viejo home.

"There are other individuals who have not been arrested yet," Perez said. "We know the motive, but we are not saying it yet."

A detective said investigators were searching for two other people in the case.

Dora Garcia Cisneros, 55, and Maria Martinez de Sanchez, a folk healer originally from Mexico, were arraigned in Cameron County District Court and held without bond.

"It just doesn't make sense. It's not logical," said Cisneros' attorney, A.C. Nelson.

Nelson said Fischer had been dating Cisneros' daughter, Cristina, until the teen-agers broke up eight to 10 months ago.

"There was no animosity," he said. "Joey was a good boy, and Cristina is an exceptionally good girl."

Nelson said Cisneros, wife of Brownsville surgeon David Cisneros, was shocked by the charges.

"She said, 'There's just no way,'" Nelson said. "She was as shocked when Joey was killed as anyone else. She grieved for him."

Martinez didn't have an attorney at the hearing before Justice of the Peace Tony Torres, who denied both women bond.

Martinez's 48-year-old niece, Francisca Sanchez, told The Brownsville Herald today that she is a "curandera" — a folk healer — who mainly cures stomach pains and minor sicknesses.

"They're accusing her, but I don't know what that's all about," said Francisca Sanchez. She added that her aunt didn't do "bad things."

Police said Fischer, an honor student at St. Joseph's Academy in Brownsville, was shot at close range in the head and chest.

Investigators once speculated that he was a mistaken victim in a drug-related shooting.

The charges did not say how much money the women allegedly promised the gunman.

Sheriff Perez said investigators have identified the other suspects, and that more arrests were possible.
