Easter Party features food, games, Bunny

The annual MSC Hospitality Easter Party begins Saturday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at Hensel Park - Area 2.

The event will feature food and games, and the Easter Bunny will make a special appearance.

MSC Hospitality is a Texas A&M University non-profit student organization.

A&M professor receives international recognition

Alex Mintz, Texas A&M political science professor, has received the International Studies Association's Karl W. Deutsch Award.

The award is given to the best international relations scholar under the age of 40 in a world-wide competition.

It recognizes scholars who have made the most significant contribution to the study of international relations through a body of publications.

The World Academy of Art and Science established the award in 1981.

In the past three years, it was given to top scholars from the University of Chicago, Columbia University and the University of Southern California.

Former success sparks third recycling event

A third Recycling Day will be held Saturday to salvage recyclable materials at the Brazos Valley Landfill from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The Recycling Day was scheduled following the success of the Jan. 30 Recycling Day in which 46,000 pounds of recyclable materials, representing 1,200 cubic yards of landfill space saved.

Materials to be recycled at Saturday's event include all major appliances, latex and water based paints, auto batteries, all tires, inner tubes, rubber scrap, aluminum cans and scrap, plastic milk jugs, pop bottles, newspapers, lawn movers, water heaters, scrap metal, glass bottles and jars, stereo components, speakers, hard back books and oil-based paints.

A&M Real Estate Center appoints new director

James W. Christian will become director of the Real Estate Center at Texas A&M University on May 1.

He replaces Richard L. Floyd, who was named Texas A&M's associate vice president for finance and administration.

An internationally known economist with extensive professional experience in housing and finance, Christian will lead the nation's largest publicly funded real estate research organization.

scholarship for freshmen.

The school districts agree to meet this amount which makes up the loan program. The recipients of the award pay back the funds by teaching at one of its schools following their certification at one of A&M's teacher education programs.

"The school district benefits from this program by increasing the number of minority teachers," James said, "and the student benefits by receiving a grant to go to school and hopefully give back to an area of critical need (education)."

If the student does not teach at the school district, he or she must repay the amount awarded from the school district. Funds received from Texas A&M do not have to be paid back.

Cathy Garcia, sophomore journalism major, is a recipient of the award and said the program was a good idea because there are too few minorities in teaching. "It's a good way to encourage minorities to go into teaching," she said.

The 10 school districts participating in the program include Bryan, College Station, Conroe, Dallas, Katy, Northside (San Antonio), Pharr-San Juan-Alamo, Richardson, San Marcos and Spring Branch Independent School Districts.

This program represents one of the College of Education's minority student services' many efforts to increase minority teachers, James said.
