Sailor pleads guilty to murder of gay shipmate

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

YOKOSUKA — An American sailor charged with killing a homosexual shipmate pleaded guilty to murder Monday in a U.S. military court, but said the killing was unpremeditated — a move that could spare his life.

Airman Apprentice Terry M. Helvey, 21, of Westland, Mich., entered the plea at a pretrial hearing for a Navy court-martial set to begin June 1.

He was arrested after the body of 22-year-old Allen Schindler was found in a pool of blood in a public restroom in Sasebo, southern Japan, last October.

Schindler was so badly battered that his mother had to identify him by tattoos on his arm.

Helvey and Schindler were shipmates on the amphibious assault ship USS Belleau Wood, based in Sasebo. Sasebo is 30 miles north of the southwestern port of Nagasaki on the island of Kyushu.

Helvey is charged with premeditated murder, which carries a maximum penalty of death.

But he pleaded guilty to committing murder with intent to inflict great bodily harm. That would make the killing unpremeditated, and result in a maximum of life in prison and a dishonorable discharge.

'What is rigged?'

Jeopardy clues skewed for women, former game show writer says in book

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The answer: A television game show accused by a former employee of sometimes rigging questions to favor women contestants.

The question: What is "Jeopardy!"?

Harry Eisenberg, a former writer for the popular show, said in a new book that clues and topics were altered at the last minute to be more "female-friendly," like replacing a category on weapons with one on clothes.

The show's producers said "Jeopardy!" is fair and denied any wrongdoing.

"We have an unaggressive female champion. Let's give her some easy stuff," producer George Vossburgh is quoted in the book as telling his staff before the taping of a June 20, 1989, show, Riddle said.

One time, questions about basketball star Michael Jordan were replaced with questions about ballet dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov, Riddle said.

Gilbert

'took advantage of an employment situation of their own volition.'

In a press conference in early March, A&M football coach R.C. Slocum said he understood why it was easy for the situation to get out of control.

"It is human nature to take advantage of the situation," he said. "They are sorry about the incident and the embarrassment it caused the school.

"It is an incident they can learn from," he said.

The Battalion contacted Wrotenbery, but he was unwilling to discuss his letter or his father-in-law's disassociation on record.

Wrotenbery did say that he has contacted Texas A&M System Board of Regent Chairman Ross Margraves about "facts regarding the situation that would clear (Gilbert's) name."

As of Friday, Margraves could not be reached for comment at his office, and his home phone number is unlisted.

Texas A&M President William H. Mobley would not comment on record about the fairness of penalizing Gilbert, though he claims he knew nothing about the payments to the athletes. Gilbert himself replied to this issue in a letter to the 12th Man Foundation.

He denied knowing about any rule, policy or procedure with respect to the hiring of student athletes that he has not followed.

"I would have never thought it necessary to stand watch over Aggie student-athletes to make sure they did not take 'advantage of an employment situation of their own volition,'" Gilbert stated. "Had I been asked to monitor those activities above and beyond what I would have done for my ordinary employees, I would have done so."

Mobley said the student-athletes are not escaping from the incident as easily as it may seem.

"The sanctions weren't light," he said. "Being an athlete and working all year to get to a bowl game, and then you can't play - it's a big sanction."

Several athletes will get additional sanctions, and all players are to pay back the illegal payments.

Gilbert said in his letter that he wishes to have his name cleared, if not by other people coming forward, then by his actions.

"I hope in the future that (Head Football Coach) R. C. Slocum and others will confirm that I have not and would not do anything to reflect negatively on A&M," he said. "I sincerely hope that my continued cooperation and devotion to A&M in taking the course that I have set for myself will bear witness to that fact."

THIS YEAR A LOT OF COLLEGE SENIORS WILL BE GRADUATING INTO DEBT.

Under the Army's Loan Repayment program, you could get out from under with a three-year enlistment.

Each year you serve on active duty reduces your indebtedness by one-third or $1,500, whichever amount is greater, up to a $55,000 limit. The offer applies to Perkins Loans, Stafford Loans, and certain other federally insured loans, which are not in default. And debt relief is just one of the many benefits you'll earn from the Army. Ask your Army Recruiter.
