Cop-killing 'gangsta rap' goes to trial

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — An attorney for Houston man accused of killing state trooper said Wednesday, cop-killing rap song may have provoked his client and prompted the shooting.

Opening statements and witness testimony were presented on the first day of the capital murder trial of 19-year-old Ronald Ray Howard. Howard is accused of killing Department of Public Safety Trooper Bill Davidson in April 1992, after Davidson pulled over Howard's vehicle for missing a headlight.

Defense attorney Allen Tanner said that on the night of the incident, Howard drove 120 miles from Houston to Victoria listening to "gangsta rap," an outlaw genre of rap that focuses on drugs, sex, violence and a hatred for police.

Tanner said the music may have prompted Howard to shoot the officer.

He said he plans to offer evidence during the punishment phase of the trial to prove the anti-cop music affected Howard's decisions that night.

"We hope to show that for many years Ronald listened to this gangsta rap music, and all he talked about was selling drugs, killing cops, hating white people — real violent music," Tanner said. "We think that over a period of time this music had a tremendous effect on him."

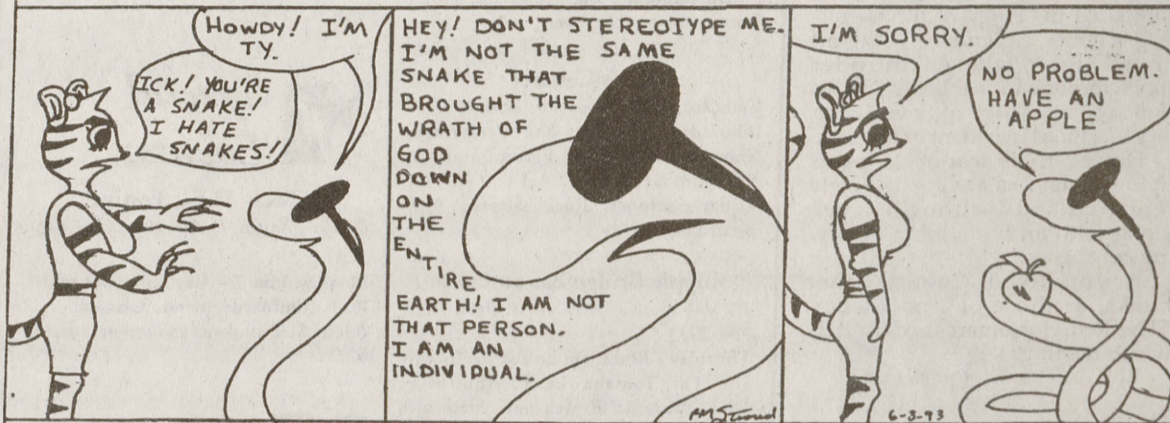

According to grand jury testimony, Howard, who later confessed to the shooting, said, "That DPS trooper pulled me over for nothin'. I shot him."

dog in 20 minutes," he said. "They could have killed me too."

Garcia said he was stung about 20 times on his head, arms and body as he tried to let the dog loose from his chain.

The bees attacked him as he tried to throw water on the dog.

BROWNSVILLE — An aggressive swarm of bees have stung to death two dogs, but officials are uncertain whether the bees were Africanized.

Carlos Garcia said "millions" of bees attacked Ivy, his 1-year-old German Shepherd, outside his house Monday morning.

"They covered him up. ... I couldn't see the dog. I had never seen so many (bees). The dog ran (under a storage shed) ... and they still went after him," Garcia said.

"They're so wild they killed the

Garcia said he was stung about 20 times on his head, arms and body as he tried to let the dog loose from his chain.

Rice search committee seeks change with new president

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Rice University announced Wednesday it has selected Malcolm Gillis, an economist, tax specialist and dean at Duke University, as the sixth president of the prestigious private school.

Praising his intelligence, experience and ambition, Rice officials said Gillis was the unanimous choice of the search committee, which has considered several hundred people for the post over the past seven months.

Gillis, currently dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at Duke, begins his new job July 1. He said he had no set agenda except to continue and enhance Rice's commitment to academic achievement.

The 52-year-old Gillis replaces George Rupp, who announced his resignation last October reportedly because of a dispute with the board over fund-raising tactics. Rupp, who spent eight years at Rice, has since been named Columbia University's president.

"Today, Rice University is at least as well-positioned as any university to assume a pivotal role in leadership in higher education," Gillis told more than 100 people who had gathered for the announcement.

Later, Gillis said he first had to learn more about Rice before he could make any "intelligent proposals." He indicated no great changes were imminent, but he admitted to doing things "a little differently."

"I think out loud a lot. And I want to think out loud a lot with my faculty, with my administrative team and the board," Gillis said. "I tend to be very open, frank, while trying to be as diplomatic as possible."

Rice officials would not disclose Gillis' salary. Rupp reportedly made $190,000 annually.

Stephen Hackney, a student and member of the search team, said he was struck by Gillis' "energy, enthusiasm, directness and intelligence."
