Soccer: Brazil beats U.S. 2-0

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Brazil, appearing to play at half speed for much of the game, completely outplayed the United States and beat the Americans 2-0 Sunday in the opener of the U.S. Cup '93 tournament.
 Careca scored after just 41/2 minutes and the Brazilians then seemed content to go up and down the field at a scrimmage-like pace. Luiz Carlos Winck finally got a second goal with three minutes left.
 Brazil, 4-0 against the United States, outshot the Americans 12-4, including 9-1 in the first half. The best U.S. chances were by Roy Wegerle 10 minutes into the second half and by Ernie Stewart with seven minutes to go.

Bruguera wins French Open

PARIS (AP) — After five sets and four hours of grueling baseline tennis, Sergi Bruguera succeeded Sunday in doing what no one has been able to do in three years — beat Jim Courier at the French Open.
 Playing in his first Grand Slam final, the 22-year-old Spaniard prevailed 6-4, 2-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 to halt Courier's French Open winning streak at 20 matches and thwart his bid to join Bjorn Borg as the only man to win three straight titles.
 Bruguera, the first Spaniard to win the championship since Andres Gimeno in 1972, collapsed onto his back on the red clay after Courier hit a stretch backhand volley into the net on the second match point.

the action of the Citizen Cup, slipped down to the first row and approached the court, stabbing Seles in the back with a nine-inch, curved, serrated boning knife, narrowly missing one of her lungs. When asked later why he did this, his explanation was simply that the thought of Seles as the number one player was disturbing and he believed Graf should be number one.
 Strangely enough, the WTA had originally said that Seles' absence would not affect her ranking and they of course wished her a speedy recovery. Sadly, no one knows when the hard-willed, grunting 19-year-old will return to the sport which she has dominated the last two years.
 Seles had been playing powerful tennis over the last year and a half, but was recently bedridden for over two months, making her return to tennis at the site of the incident, the Citizen Cup. Unfortunately, her injury came at the absolute worst time, just two weeks prior to the French Open, a title she had claimed three consecutive years in a row. She now is recovering and hoping to return to action in time for Wimbledon.

 As for the assailant, he got exactly what he wanted. Graf will return atop the charts and he will joyously watch her regain that position from a German prison cell.
 I agree that most things in life aren't fair, but Seles had no control over the incident and should not be ranked lower for being stabbed. She had earned and successfully held that position for quite some time. One incident, forcing her out and requiring time for recuperation, should not allow for the Graf fan to get what he wanted.

 This situation has implications far beyond the tennis realm. What about other sports and other athletes at their number one spots respectively? NBA benches are dangerously close to the crowd, so too are dugouts in Major League Baseball. What is to prevent crazed fans from saying injuring Michael Jordan during a time out or attacking Jose Canseco while in the on-deck circle?
 Security concerns aside, the point is, Seles' ranking should not have been affected by this event.
 The man who harmed her, nearly killing her, got exactly what he wanted. It is a travesty to see the wrongdoer get what he wanted and the victim lose everything she had.
