Tourist shot after refusing to pull over in 'bump-and-rob' scheme

The Associated Press

MIAMI — Uwe-Wilhelm Rakebrand had just arrived from Germany for a vacation with his wife. While he filled out his car rental contract, a videotape playing every five minutes in the background gave tourists tips about avoiding street crime.

Don't become another victim of the highly publicized violence targeting tourists in Florida, the rental office video said. Don't stop for the "bump-and-rob" ploy.

Less than five miles away, as the 33-year-old Rakebrand drove a new red Toyota toward a Miami Beach hotel early Wednesday, the car was rammed twice from behind by a van.

Safety pamphlet in hand, Rakebrand's 27-year-old wife told him to keep going, police said.

When he did, a single shot fired from the van shattered the driver's window and hit him in the back. The van sped away.

Police had no idea why the Rakebrands were targeted and had no suspects.

"Vicious. Brutal. Disgusting. Horrible. Pick a word," said police spokesman Angelo Bitsis.

It was the eighth slaying of a foreign visitor to Florida in a year.

"We are completely out-gaged," said Liz Clark, a spokeswoman for Alamo Rent A Car, which rented the car to Rakebrand. "There is absolutely nothing the victim could have done to prevent this crime."

"Obviously, it's tragic, violence against foreigners as well as violence against Americans," White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said. "It's something that the president is very concerned about."

Rental cars in Florida in the past have been easy targets, marked with special license plates, bumper stickers and window stickers.

Rental companies this year have been removing those distinguishing features and Rakebrand, an agriculture engineer from Adendorf, Germany, was driving a car without any such markings.

"That's what makes this one so alarming, because these people did everything they could to protect themselves," said Gary Stogner, spokesman for the Florida Division of Tourism.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An abortion pill widely used in Europe but forbidden in America should be rapidly evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration for sale in the United States, a panel of experts said Wednesday.

A committee of the National Academy of Sciences said that the abortion pill RU-486 has been so extensively tested in France, Britain and Sweden that the FDA should consider it without requiring further clinical trials in the United States.

Researchers also should experiment with RU-486 for other uses, including as a "morning after" pill, and for treating breast cancer and brain tumors, the NAS report said.

Anti-abortion politics kept RU-486 off the U.S. market during the Reagan and Bush administrations, but President Clinton in January called for research into the drug.

The Associated Press

More than 60,000 women have used the RU-486 pill for abortions in Europe. The NAS report said that health officials there have found the pill in combination with another drug to be "a safe and efficacious medical treatment for early pregnancy termination."

Because of the European experience, the NAS report said, an extensive drug trial in the United States "does not appear necessary" for the abortion use of RU-486 during the first trimester of a pregnancy.

U.S. clinical trials were recommended, however, on using RU-486 for second-trimester abortions. The committee said these studies should focus on dosage and side effects, such as pain, bleeding, infection and the surgery required if the drug fails.

RU-486 also has been shown to be effective as a morning after pill, the report said. European studies demonstrated that the pill could prevent pregnancy when taken up to 72 hours after unplanned or unwanted intercourse, or after a contraceptive method, such as a condom, has failed.
