AMTRAK WRECK
Tugboat pilot radioed about runaway barge

The Associated Press

SARALAND, Ala. — An investigation into Amtrak's deadliest wreck focused Thursday on a tugboat operator who radioed to authorities that he was having a problem with a runaway barge.
The barge had struck a railroad trestle over the foggy backwaters of a bayou just before the train carrying more than 200 people plunged off it and exploded, killing at least 44, early Wednesday.
"The fact is, he was lost," Coast Guard Capt. Michael Perkins said of the pilot of the tugboat MV Mauvilla. "While he was trying to gather up his barges, the train came along and the accident occurred."
A giant crane stabilized the Sunset Limited coaches before divers resumed their search for bodies Thursday.
The body of a 5-year-old girl was found floating about 100 feet from the submerged car of the Los Angeles to Miami train, said one of the divers, Mark Lampkin of Orange Grove, Miss. At least two people were missing.
The tugboat pilot, Andrew Stabler, has been questioned by the FBI and his vessel impounded. The barges were moored a quarter mile from the crash site 10 miles north of Mobile.
Perkins said that Stabler radioed in at 3:06 a.m. Wednesday — 12 minutes before the train crash — that he had struck a bridge, but mistakenly thought he had hit a span on the Mobile River. Instead, he was on Bayou Canot, one of several bayous, streams and creeks that feed into the river at its delta.
U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena told "CBS Morning News" that Perkins radioed only that a barge had come loose. "Unfortunately, he did not indicate it had hit the support," Pena said.
The train's speed wasn't known; the speed limit on the bridge was 70 mph. It had just left the Mobile station.
Results of mandatory drug and alcohol tests given Stabler and three crewmen were unavailable, the Coast Guard said.
The barges were lashed two aside and filled with coal, coke and wood chips. Some apparently broke loose upon impact, and Stabler was trying to corral them in the fog.
"It is clear the barge did hit the bridge," Pena said.
Stabler refused to answer questions without consulting his lawyer. "I'd like to tell my side. People get things and turn them around," Stabler told The Associated Press.
Warrior & Gulf Navigation Co., owner of the tugboat, said in a statement the vessel was pushing barges north in the fog-shrouded Mobile River. The bayou the train crashed into feeds into the river. The bayou isn't navigable, although barges sometimes tie up there temporarily.
"The vessel found itself not in the river channel but in the Bayou Canot," said Andrew Harris, general manager for terminals for Warrior & Gulf. "Details are still unclear, but the vessel was trying to return to the river as the Amtrak train approached the bridge where the accident occurred."

Parliament radifies historic Mideast treaty

The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin declared he won "freedom of action" to pursue Mideast peace after parliament ratified the historic Israel-PLO accord on Thursday.
Rabin said the 61-50 vote allowed the government to implement the agreement on Palestinian self-rule in the occupied lands and continue attempts to reach peace with Israel's Arab neighbors.
The margin was less substantial than Rabin had hoped for, but it put a convincing end to calls for early elections or a national referendum that would have slowed down the peace momentum.
"Now we shall build a new Middle East," Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said after the vote.
PLO spokesman Yasser Abed-Rabbo praised the result, telling Israel army radio from Tunis it was a "positive step" and that support for the treaty was larger in the street than in parliament.
Rabin had staked the credibility of the peace initiative as well as the future of his government on winning the vote, saying it would constitute a formal vote of confidence.
Eight legislators abstained from the vote, and one was absent in the 120-seat Knesset, or parliament. The result clearly embarrassed Likud, which failed to enforce party discipline.
One of the three Likud members who abstained, Meir Shitreet, said his party's opposition to a peace deal backed by the majority of Israelis was "political suicide." He said on Israeli radio that seven Likud members backed the agreement privately.
"There is no need for new elections. The parliament very clearly approved the agreement. The margin is very clear," Rabin's spokesman Oded Ben-Ami told The Associated Press.
Rabin said he will now focus on the painstaking task of establishing Palestinian autonomy in the occupied Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho, and on pursuing peace negotiations with Jordan, Lebanon and Syria.
"This gives the government freedom of action to implement what it brought to the Knesset, he said on Israeli radio.
Ben-Ami voiced hope for the resumption of Middle East peace talks in Washington next month and for detailed negotiations on what promised to be "a long and bumpy road."
Peres, speaking later on Israel television, said Israel and the PLO hoped to formalize their current unofficial contacts within two to three weeks, with the PLO naming several delegates for face-to-face talks.
As part of the accord, Israel will free 11,000 Palestinian detainees, said Palestinian leader Hanan Ashrawi.
Confirming a report in the Jerusalem Report magazine, Ashrawi said the release could not come immediately. Prison services spokesman Dubi Ben-Ami denied the plan but acknowledged that the detainees' fate was still unclear.
Another 2,000 maximum security detainees will be moved from the occupied territories to Israel, the magazine said.
Ashrawi also said Jan. 1 "could be a target date" for PLO chief Yasser Arafat's arrival in the areas of future autonomy.
Gonen Segev of the right-wing Tsomet Party said the hard-liners will now start "an information campaign" to force changes in the agreement.

2000 Summer Olympic Games to be in Sydney

The Associated Press

MONTE CARLO, Monaco — Stability and reliability won out over political risk and uncertainty Thursday as Sydney narrowly edged out Beijing for the right to host the 2000 Summer Olympic Games.
In a secret ballot by the International Olympic Committee, Sydney beat Beijing on the final round by just two votes — 45-43.
Dropping out in the previous rounds were Istanbul, Turkey; Berlin; and Manchester, England.
The decision to return the Games to Australia for the first time since the 1956 Melbourne Olympics was announced live to a worldwide television audience by IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch.
"In choosing Sydney over Beijing, the IOC went for the safer candidate, a glamorous, cosmopolitan city with superior sports facilities and technology."
"We know this is the perfect decision," said IOC director general Francois Carrard. "The Olympic movement is in good hands."
Beijing had offered the powerful symbolic impact of holding the Games of the new millennium in a nation of 1.2 billion people as it opens up to the rest of the world.
Awarding the Games to China would have prompted further outcry from human rights critics, including members of the U.S. Congress.
There may also have been concern over the uncertain political future in China, ruled by 88-year-old Deng Xiaoping.
"If there was a difference in the vote it was clearly between the risk-takers and the not risk-takers," said Dick Pound, a powerful executive board member from Canada who had lobbied for Beijing.
Some members felt it was too soon for China to get the Games, with 2004 a more realistic target.
"Of course we are disappointed, but they (the Australians) conducted themselves in a sportsmanlike way, and we are happy for them," said Wei Jizhong, secretary-general of the Chinese Olympic Committee.

"As the president made a national call to arms and a bipartisan appeal to join together to solve this crisis, the Republicans failed to respond in the same spirit," said a memo to supporters shipped out by the White House's "War Room" on health care.

agement major and student body president, said he hopes students of all genders and ethnicities will feel the building is for them and respect the tradition of removing their hats when entering the building.
"I think the new words are great," he said. "I would hope that all people would understand that there are no political undertones with the request to remove one's hat. I hope people will not get caught up in the politics of it all because that's not what it is about."
"I hope they understand that the MSC is a memorial for all Aggies who gave their lives for their country."
Hartman said, "Ideally, I'd like to think that people will realize now that the MSC is for and that they will respect what the building stands for. I want people to take an ownership in the building and feel it is a center for everyone."
