THE BATTALION

Endowments resulting from a contract between Coca-Cola USA and Texas A&M are helping boost the budgets of several Texas A&M University entities.

Robert Smith, vice president of finance and administration, said the University asked Coca-Cola USA to provide $5.2 million for the funding of seven endowments.

He said the money was deposited last Friday and the different groups will begin drawing interest from the accounts at an estimated 6 percent interest rate.

The endowments were distributed as follows: $1 million to Sterling C. Evans Library, $1 million

Library, Student Government among entities to benefit from endowments for minority scholarships, $500,000 for scholarships for dependent children of support staff, $500,000 for visual and performing arts, $500,000 for athletics, $300,000 for the Residence Hall Association, and $200,000 for Student Government.

Student Body President Brian Walker said the interest from the $200,000 Student Government endowment will help fund programs sponsored by about 30 committees operating under Student Government, and possibly create new ones.

"We can't allocate all the funds to programs operating under us," Walker said. "Many times a program like Muster will be funded by us and have to rely on donations also. Hopefully, this money will help some of them become a little more self-supportive so they won't have to rely so much on donations."

Walker said Student Government was allocated $74,000 last year. He said the optimum budget would be $103,000.

RHA President Chris Thompson said he would like to see the interest from the $300,000 RHA be used to fund new programs.

"RHA Casino Night in the spring is our biggest program," Thompson said. "I'd like to see the money go toward establishing a similar program during the fall semester."

Thompson also suggested the money go toward setting up a general hall improvement fund.

"Maybe somewhere later down the road, we could set up something like a hall improvement fund halls could borrow from if they wanted to start a new project, and they didn't have the necessary funds," Thompson said. "I know the southside dorms are interested in setting up a volleyball court but not all the dorms have the money. This kind of fund could help them out."

MIDNIGHT YELL PRACTICE

For those students and faculty planning to travel to this weekend's Texas Tech-Texas A&M football game, a midnight yell practice, with the A&M yell leaders, will be held Friday in Lubbock at the parking lot one block north of the Civic Center, between Fourth and Sixth Streets.

Hutchison

Lewis said Earle was a political opponent of Hutchison's and is prosecuting her for the U.S. Senate job he wanted. He also said it is a conflict of interest for Earle to prosecute Hutchison because his wife worked for Gov. Ann Richards during the same time Hutchison was state treasurer.

"Much is at stake for the Democrats," he said. "Richards, Earle and Mauro (land commissioner) and all the other politicians in Austin have a big problem with Hutchison at the top of the ticket in 1994."

Lewis cited Hutchison's garnering of one of the largest statewide votes in Texas history. She won the Senate election in June with 67 percent of the vote.

James said if one person can claim politics in this situation, it is Bob Krueger, Hutchison's opponent in the June runoff election for the Senate seat she now holds.

"Earle knew about this during the campaign and sat on it," James said. "He could have indicted Hutchison during the election, but that is not his policy. If she'd have been indicted, he (Krueger) might have been a U.S. senator.

"When Hutchison says it's politics, that's just silliness," he said.

Van Hightower said, "Romney Earle doesn't play those games. He has taken on both Democrats and Republicans."

Everyone agreed they would like to know the outcome of the trial before the deadline to announce candidacy for the 1994 Senate elections.

But, Lewis said, he doesn't expect the trial to take place for a long time because the judge in the case, a Democrat, will let it string out as long as possible.

He questioned the entire legal process involved in Hutchison's indictment, saying that the grand jury was not drawn at random but appointed by the prosecution and judge.

Lewis said 10 of the 12 jurors were Democrats and the other two didn't vote in the last primary.

Van Hightower said it is easy for those in political life to get themselves in trouble.

"There are gray areas in the roles of being a public official and a political official. There is a tremendous pressure to raise money, and short cuts are taken by 99 percent of politicians."
