Bicycling makes breathing easier

Vote today at Freebirds World Burrito for the C.S. Bikeway Master Plan

By KEVIN COCHRAN

Thirteen-trillion cubic yards of motor vehicle exhaust is annually thrust into the air we breathe, ultimately poisoning our crops, destroying our forests, and harming us humans. For every gallon of gasoline our automobiles burn, twenty pounds of carbon dioxide is spewed into the air, in addition to nitrogen oxide, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and others. In fact, driving motor vehicles creates more air pollution than any other human activity.

Motor vehicle pollution is so catastrophic in cities such as Rome, Athens, Mexico City, Sao Paulo, Budapest and others, that bans on operating motor vehicles are commonplace. Also, when two-thirds of the land area of Los Angeles is dedicated to roadways and parking, you know something is wrong.

Here in Texas, we have our own problems: the highest emissions of nitrogen oxides in the country at over two times the California levels (the next highest state). Further, Houston, Dallas/Fort Worth, Beaumont/Port Arthur, and El Paso have seriously harmful motor vehicle ozone emission levels, and San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi are in danger of being added to the list. In ten years could College Station be next?

We must look beyond the entrenched modes of transportation and endorse alternative transport systems, like bikeways, that provide easy and safe mobility, while not harming our environment or sapping our economy. City engineers have to design for shared roadways, and motorists have to learn to share them. Bicyclists then must learn to ride responsibly. But first we need to overcome the problem of a nonexistent bikeway plan. Now you can change that.

Dennis Tram escaped with minor injuries following a bicycle accident near the Reed McDonald Building. Four months ago a man was killed while biking on Wellborn Road.

October 28 the College Station City Council will vote on the Bikeway Master Plan immediately following a public hearing at City Hall Council Chambers beginning at 7 p.m. Freebirds World Burrito and the Texas Bicycle Coalition will make statements and present lists of names of those who support bikeways in C.S. Our goal is twofold: to provide the City Council with 2,000 or more signatures and to have at least 50 supporters attend the hearing.

By adopting the Bikeway Master Plan designed by city transportation officials, College Station will be entitled to apply for more than $1 million in federal funding for bikeways. Upon funding the city will develop a continuous loop of bike lanes, routes, and paths linking the university with residential, commercial, and entertainment areas, Wolf Pen Creek amphitheater complex, and local schools.

Senate

Simmons said officials in Parking, Traffic and Transit Services and the Fiscal Department have not returned her calls regarding the proposal, and hoped to be contacting them next week to discuss the feasibility of implementing the system.

Under Student Senate steering procedures, the proposal required to be sent back to committee after the first reading. Simmons said the Senate's Student Services committee will still revise the proposal and expects the Senate to vote in favor of the bill at its next meeting.

In other action, Ben Dale, chair of the academic affairs committee and Sen. Matt Hurt introduced a proposal mandating honors students not be penalized if an honors class converts to a regular section. Under the current regulations governing honors courses, a student can make a contract with the honors department to convert a regular section into an honors class, if the student agrees to doing extra work outside the classroom, maintains a 3.25 GPA, and has previously taken at least two hours of honors courses.

However, if a class converts to a regular section, a student with fewer than nine hours of honors courses will be denied a contract. Under the proposal, the one-hour stipulation won't apply to the class converts.

Sen. Ben Dale said the current system is unfair to students. "If an honors class doesn't have enough students enrolled, it will convert to a regular section, and the prospective honors student has no way of knowing that until registration is over," Dale said. "Basically, we have honors students being penalized for something that's beyond their control."

In other business: - The Senate passed a resolution to thank the College Station City Council and Texas A&M for their efforts in the decision to widen Texas Avenue.

- A resolution was passed empowering the Legislative Student Group to represent the views of the student body before the Texas Students Association during its Fall Conference Oct. 28 in Houston.

Why is Freebirds taking such an active stance on this particular issue? In addition to the need for business environmental and social responsibility, and the chance to enhance life for A&M students, the two-restaurant chain, founded in Isla Vista, California (adjacent to U.C. Santa Barbara) where 80% of students use bicycles as their primary means of transportation. In fact, a bike-sharing window will be introduced soon at Freebirds in California.

Besides the positive environmental effects of bicycle riding, Freebirds is concerned about safety. Each year in this country approximately one-half million people are admitted to a hospital emergency room and over 1,000 people die due to bicycle-related accidents. In Texas, there are at least 50 bicycle fatalities per year. The health and fitness benefits of bicycling speak for themselves. Once bicycle travel is made safe and more efficient with the development of planned bikeways, we can all breathe a little easier. So vote today at Freebirds World Burrito for the C.S. Bikeway Master Plan.
