Sports Briefs

A&M soccer team fit to be tied

The Lady Aggie soccer team played Southern Methodist to a 1-1 tie in Dallas on Wednesday night, bringing A&M's record to 10-3-1.

A&M freshman forward Tina Robinson scored a goal early in the second half to give the Aggies a 1-0 lead. But SMU countered.

Mustang Courtney Linex scored a goal midway through the second half to tie the game at one.

Volleyball team sweeps

The Lady Aggies ran their winning streak to nine by sweeping the Texas Tech Red Raiders Lubbock Wednesday night.

A&M won the match 15-13, 15-13, 15-9. In the win, the Aggies moved to 21-4 overall and in Southwest Conference play. Senior outside hitter Sheila Morgan led A&M with 10 kills.

Ducks Unlimited set for banquet

By Derek Baden

Special to THE BATTALION

Fall hunting season has arrived, and any Aggies that are concerned with preserving waterfowl populations may want to check out the Texas A&M chapter of Ducks Unlimited.

The A&M chapter of Ducks Unlimited will host their annual banquet on November 19 at the Knights of Columbus hall located on Palasota Drive in Bryan. Tickets are $35 and will include dinner, refreshments and a hat.

"The banquet is the chapter's annual fund-raising event with proceeds from ticket sales, raffles and an auction going towards DU wetlands projects in the United States, Canada, and Mexico," chapter president Jeff Bauknight said.

The chapter has seen some hard times since it's beginning in 1987.

"We weren't very organized the first couple of years and, as a result, we experienced a high over rate among committee members," Bauknight said. "Last year, the Brazos Valley chapter stepped in and helped us achieve some organizational membership has doubled since then."

Ben Bailey, area director for DU and co-chairman for the Brazos Valley chapter, sees A&M chapter as a little brother.

"We're willing to help them out in any way we can," Bailey said. "Last year we took the reins helped the chapter get back on its feet. This we've pushed them back out."

"We're teaching them to fly on their own." Ducks Unlimited is a grass roots organization that has raised more than $750 million dollars for lands conservation. In 1992, Texas DU chapter raised approximately $2.3 million.

The A&M chapter has set a goal this year at $10,000.

For membership or banquet information, call Bauknight at 846-2104.

Kickers

"I've been talking to David Davis about once a week," Bennett said. "He calls and makes me feel comfortable and gives me advice."

Both Venetoulis and Bennett said they often feel immense pressure during the game because their kicking duties single them out.

Venetoulis said his pregame jitters are consumed by his confidence in his abilities.

"Before the kick, my heart is pounding and I feel like I'm about to faint," Venetoulis said. "It's kind of like showing off, but not in a bad way. It's like you know you can do it and you have something to prove."

Bennett said he tries not to allow nervousness to hinder a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"It's one of those things where you get one shot and you have to make it count," he said. "As a walk-on, you've been on the outside looking in. When you finally get on the inside and in a starting position, you really take pride in being in there because there's a lot of other people who could be there instead."

Slocum said that both players are not only physically capable of being top kickers, but are always mentally prepared to handle making mistakes.

"They're really out on an island when they miss," Slocum said. "But it takes a special person to cope with that."

"At Baylor, Terry missed the first field goal, then came back and kicked one at the end of the first half, a 46-yarder, that was critical to our momentum in the game."

"At Oklahoma, we had a punt blocked and the next punt (by Bennett) was about 55 yards."

Because Slocum's coaching responsibilities are divided among different areas of the team, the kickers are usually on their own at practice, which calls for a little self-poling.

"Being out there, we could probably play cards, sunbathe and we could do whatever we want because nobody knows (what we're doing)," Venetoulis said. "We've had people before (walk-ons) who left to go to Whataburger or something."

"But James and me, we set our minds to what we need to do and do it."

Kyle Burnett/Terry Bennett appears to be in the thought during the Aggies' victory over Louisiana State Kyle Field on Sep. 4.

Rush

venerable Dave Winfield, Toronto acquired the services of Paul Molitor and Dave Stewart. The questions about the age of these two players was very much a concern, but the Jays gambled and might be holding the lucky hand because of it.

Molitor finished in the top three of batting average this season and is on fire in the post-season, hitting a robust .583 through Wednesday night's play.

When the trading deadline rolled around, the Blue Jays once again acquired a player who could help them in their attempted title run, outfielder Rickey Henderson.

Henderson, who is arguably the best lead-off hitter baseball has ever seen, has acted as an offensive catalyst for the Jays. He has solidified their batting lineup and made it hard for pitchers to pitch around the Jays big-bruisers in the middle of the lineup.

The keys to their success should be noted by other teams.

The Blue Jays spent two or three years building the team with talent. Then, for the stretch run, they went out and purchased a name player to strengthen their championship chances.

Maybe the rest of baseball world should follow the lead of the Blue Jays. Even though Canada's world champions America's pastime about as right as a meter dash winner the Summer Olympics coming from Norway.

National bias aside, the Blue Jays should be commended for the accomplishments they should be seen as blueprint for building championship teams.
