Clint Black to hold auction

The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - A night of dancing, dinner and a celebrity auction will be hosted in Texas by country singer Clint Black and wife Lisa Hartman Black this month to raise money for flood victims in the Midwest.

Clint Black will raise money for the Midwest flood victims.

Proceeds will go to Operation Heartland, which was launched by Black last summer to help flood victims. The fund has donated about $130,000 to food banks, farmer advocacy groups, child care programs and homeless outreach projects, according to a release from Black's press agent in Los Angeles.

Items to be auctioned include boxing gloves autographed by Sylvester Stallone, an autographed brassiere from Cybil Shepherd and a guitar from the band Aerosmith.

Tickets to the evening will cost $75, and $150 for those wishing to attend a champagne reception before the event on Nov. 22 at the Lake Longhorn Grill in Houston.

The event follows the last night of Black's "Black & Wy" Tour with Wynonna Judd in his hometown of Houston. Black played clubs in Houston for about a decade before his 1989 single "A Better Man" kicked off a string of country music hits.

Hartman Black is an actress, best known for the television series "Knots Landing."

'Thread'

Eagles songs during their club days.

Outstanding performances to listen for on "Common Thread" include the loner's anthem "Desperado" performed like musical poetry by Clint Black.

Honky-tonk heartbreaker Alan Jackson does a soulful rendition of "Tequila Sunrise."

And one of the most powerfully creative forces in country music, Vince Gill, gives a passionate version of "I Can't Tell You Why."

Other cuts to listen for are Billy Dean's mournful "Saturday Night" and Lorrie Morgan putting her heart and soul into the reflective ballad "Sad Cafe."

The unique vocal talents of each performer can be heard on each cut; however, the album manages to retain the essence of the Eagles' sound.

The area benefiting from this project, Walden Woods, is a 2,680 acre tract of land surrounding Walden Pond that was the inspiration for many of Henry David Thoreau's famed literary works.

The area has long been considered the birthplace of modern conservation movement and is visited each year by more than half a million people from around the world.

As Don Henley said, "If we're going to have country music, we need to save some country."
