Man takes shots at Prince Charles Successor to British throne remains calm after stunt

The Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — Britain's Prince Charles, eager to boost his image after the breakup of his marriage to Princess Diana, has proved one thing: he can stay cool under fire.

The 45-year-old heir to the throne hardly flinched Wednesday when a young man ran out of a crowd, lunged at him and fired two blank shots from a starter's pistol during an outdoor ceremony marking Australia's national day.

The prince saw the man run toward him and froze momentarily as the shots rang out. Afterward, he calmly adjusted his cuff links.

Within minutes of his assailant's arrest, Charles carried on with his speech. He joked with the crowd, and later assured guests at a cocktail party that he was fine.

"He played it cool. He wants everyone to know he is OK," said Sydney Lord Mayor Frank Sartor. Others on stage were knocked from their seats in the commotion.

Police said the assailant, 23-year-old university student David Kang, wrote Prince Charles last month to complain about Australia's treatment of several hundred Cambodian boat people held in detention camps.

The prince's staff had written back that Charles could not become involved in the matter.

Kang was jailed and charged under a federal law to protect international VIPs. If convicted, he could be imprisoned for a maximum of 20 years.

He is scheduled to appear in court early Thursday.

The prince did not comment to reporters. His aides said he was unconcerned about his safety and would continue his tour of Australia.

New South Wales state Police Minister Terry Griffiths described the attack as a "stunt, not an assassination attempt."

"There was no risk to the prince's physical being at any stage," he said.

Griffiths criticized Buckingham Palace for insisting on low-level protection so the prince could be close to the public. The palace's instructions were "that there be no security forces between prince and the public," he said.

Buckingham Palace did comment on the incident.

Charles and other members of the British royal family regularly shake hands and talk with ordinary people at public events.

At Wednesday's celebration in a downtown Sydney park, more than 10,000 people witnessed the attack.

Kang, sitting in a crowd of grass near the stage, stood up, the prince prepared to deliver a speech and fired one blank.

A loud crack rang out as smoke rose from the pistol.

Kang then jumped a low fence and ran about 30 yards from the stage, lunging toward the prince. Another shot went off as he tripped over a lectern and fell a few feet from Charles.

Security officers and dignitaries wrestled the man to the ground while bodyguards shielded the prince.

Woman found dead on train tracks

The Associated Press

BEAUMONT, Texas — Police are still trying to determine the identity of a 17-year-old American Indian from Oklahoma whose body was found severed on a set of train tracks.

The woman's body was found on the tracks at about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

A Conroe woman told police she dropped off a female hitchhiker with a similar description in Houston about 24 hours before her body was found.

Beaumont is about 90 miles east of Houston.

An autopsy showed the apparent cause of death was the train running over her, but police are treating the case as suspicious, Beaumont Police Dept. Don Bailey said.

Officials said they do not know how the woman ended up on the tracks, but said the autopsy showed signs of additional injuries. Officials are running toxicology tests.

The Conroe woman told police the hitchhiker was traveling with a Rottweiler dog, identifying herself only as "Kim," Bailey said.
