West Texas ranch fined after mishandling waste

The Associated Press

EL PASO - A company contracted to recycle New York City sewage sludge on a West Texas ranch will be fined $12,800 for mishandling 160 tons of the waste material.

MERCO Joint Venture spread the material last September on about 20 acres of rangeland in Sierra Blanca, only to discover later the sludge did not meet Texas standards and should have gone to a New York recycling plant.

Subsequent tests showed the sludge was safe and did not pollute MERCO's ranch, which is about 90 miles southeast of El Paso. But the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission decided to levy the fine as a way of cracking down to prevent a repeat, said agency spokesman Ed Clark.

"We said to the community there, 'You do not have to worry about this project.' So when a problem occurs, the actions of the (commission) are going to be stringent," said Clark.

MERCO spokeswoman Kelly Sarber said the company accepts responsibility for the mishap and will "do whatever is required" by MERCO has a six-year, $168 million contract to haul sludge from New York City and apply in on the ranch. Some researchers say the material can make arid rangeland more productive when used as a fertilizer.

But environmentalists have protested the project because they fear the sludge will pollute the land and water with heavy metals and pathogens.

Bill Addington, head of Save Sierra Blanca, said the incident in September indicates a lack of oversight.

"It's better for her to have been acquitted," she said. "Peple may forget about it."

Ron Going, a sophomore philosophy major and a member the College Democrats, said th campaign probably won't dwe much on Hutchison's misgi

"This will come up in the campaign," he said. "And it is be normal knock-down-drage." politics for a Texas campaign

Budget

The administration estimates that balancing the budget by · Using a combination of spending cuts and tax hikes would cost each Texas taxpayer $713 more a year in taxes. The state would lose $2.1 billion in federal money for crime, education, infrastructure and the environment, and another $1.1 billion in defense spending. The average Social Security recipient would lose $568, while the average Medicare recipient would receive $484 less.

• Using spending cuts alone would cut $1,033 for the average Social Security recipient and $881 per Medicare recipient; and trim $2 billion from defense spending in Texas and $3.8 billion for education, crime, infrastructure and the environment.

The administration contends the near $500 billion deficit-reduction package enacted year is slashing the deficit ancing the budget this de would drain too much my from the private sector, adr tration officials have said.

The Senate is set to debat amendment Feb. 22, with o ing hearings starting Tuesday decision we've been agonizing over. We don't make decisions like that lightly. We have adequate confidence right now

"But I have to tell, you, in a sense we have a hair trigger on this. It wouldn't take much to undermine this.'

"I'm very pleased," William Cottle, nuclear vice president for the utility, said. Utility executives, in a more than two-hour presentation to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, assured the federal panel

Monday they had addressed numerous concerns and were ready to restart the plant.

"We will proceed cautiously," Cottle said. "Though the startup of Unit 1 is obviously an important milestone, we will not relax. We will not back off our improvement program. We recognize our goal to become world-class will have only begun." Monday's meeting was de-layed for several days because HL&P crews had to replace failed backup batteries in two ventilation systems at the plant.

That and a number of other problems were addressed individually at the session Monday.

Sixteen long-term issues, including such items as tornado precautions, fire safety respo es, maintenance and staffing engineering backlogs have resolved, the utility said. Among those items also the question of reliabilit pumps which failed a year prompting the shutdown reactors. "These components have be declared operable to sup power operation here at 50 Texas," Ted Cloninger, vice ident for nuclear engineer told the federal panel, ad that "extensive efforts," ing correction of material ciencies and preventive mail nance, have been taken to enso 1 1 1 the reliability of the pumps.
