National Merit Scholars to spend weekend at A&M

More than 65 National Merit and National Achievement scholarship finalists from across the country will be on the Texas A&M campus this weekend to preview the University.

The high school seniors, who will be staying in Lechner Residence Hall, will attend honors classes, eat at Sbis Dining Hall and tour the campus.

Pet care emphasis of veterinary open house

Texas A&M's College of Veterinary Medicine will sponsor an open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

The Owens Country Sausage hitch of Belgian horses will be at the event, and visitors will get the opportunity to learn about their pets and to repair their stuffed animals in a veterinary operating room.

The events will be at many locations in the veterinary school's teaching, research and clinical facilities at University Drive and Agronomy Road on A&M's west campus.

RHA, restaurant sponsors field day to benefit charity

Texas A&M's Residence Hall Association and Freebirds World Burrito will sponsor a field day Saturday on Keathley Beach.

The games will include a tug-of-war, three-legged race and a potato sack race.

Two $250 prizes will be donated to the favorite charity of the winning team and the dormitory with the highest turnout.

Scholar awarded grant to study Shakespeare

Hilaire Kallendorf, a Texas A&M senior English and Spanish major, was awarded a $2,500 grant to study Shakespeare.

Kallendorf, who has a 3.96 grade point ratio, was picked from a pool of more than 1,000 applicants.

She plans to complete her research in Austin at the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center, which houses a rare books collection.

Conference gives insight to female grad students

A conference for women in science and engineering at Texas A&M titled "What They Don't Tell You in Graduate School" will allow participants to exchange ideas and information about challenges that women face in science and engineering.

The event will take place from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the Biochemistry-Biophysics Building on West Campus.

The registration fee is $12, which includes refreshment breaks, a luncheon and handouts.

Fees

Kyle Greenwood, president of the Agricultural Economics and Agribusiness Association, said he welcomed the fee.

"The money we pay for the computer access fee, in our department never see," Greenwood said. "By paying this fee I know my department can directly benefit by upgrading our computers."

Once the new Student Recreation Center is built, students will be required to pay a sport recreational fee of $50 for the fall and spring semester and $25 for each summer session term.

The revenue generated from the fee will fund the financing, construction, operation, maintenance and improvements of the facility, which is expected to be completed during the 1995 spring semester.

Students registered for less than full-time hours will be exempt from the fee.

The fee was approved by a student referendum April 1, 1987.

In addition, the Regents authorized the College of Medicine to increase its application fee from $35 to $45.

Korea

fought with South Korea against its northern Communist neighbor in 1950-53.

But some among the 20,000 soldiers at Fort Bliss are quick to point out this assignment's defensive nature.

They said it's not like the Persian Gulf War.

"We went to Desert Storm in anticipation of combat," staff Sgt.

Darrell Young said at a nearby deli.

"This is only a defensive standpoint."

His lunch buddies agreed.

Families had been expecting a South Korea deployment for three or four months.
