Businessman tells students to retain values

By Eloise Flint The Battalion

Drayton McLane, Jr., owner of the Houston Astros, said students should uphold and enforce values such as honesty, integrity and Christian principles when they make the transition from college to the work force.

McLane's speech was part of a series of speakers and events taking place during Resurrection Week.

McLane said when his family purchased the Houston Astros in 1992, they set forth the goal of

Mouston Astros in 1992, they set forth the goal of maintaining those values. "Life is competitive, difficult and tough at times," McLane said. "Life is tough for the best of us, and values are what see us through the tough times

McLane said one reason his family purchased the Astros was his realization that the Lord blessed them far beyond what they deserved.

"This might be an unusual way to make a con-tribution, but nothing uplifts people like a sport-ing event," McLane said. "Baseball players are paid based on statistics, but I tell them they are in the entertainment business because if we don't have 35,000 to 40,000 people at each game then we can't pay them." McLane is chairman of

McLane Company, the world's largest distributor of food products and general merchandise to convenience stores

McLane joined his father in McLane the business with the agreement to work under a few conditions

"I had to start on the night crew and work with them which taught me how to deal with other people," McLane said. "He did it to teach me that I didn't know as much as I thought.

McLane said students should start at the beginning when they start a new career. "With education and experience you can easily earn the respect of others and zoom your way up," McLane said. "It taught me the value of working with people and recognizing the impor-tance of what they do and the need to make them feel important.'

McLane said students sometimes segment their lives into scholastics, personal affairs and religious beliefs.

"You think life is busy now while you're in school, but when you get an occupation life is overwhelming and you'll find Christian faith to be very important," McLane said.

Steven Murray, president of Christian Business Fellowship, said McLane was chosen to speak because he upholds the principles that the group stands for. "We bring in people to talk about the role of Christianity in the workplace," Murray said. "Sometimes people feel you have to check in your Christianity at the door, and we don't believe in that. Dr. Stephen McDaniel, advisor of Resurrection

Week, said he is pleased with student participation in the celebration.

"The main focus is to call people's attention to what Easter is really all about," McDaniel said.

ham and to expand the facility's capacity. On April 7, 1992, an uncon-trolled release of natural gas liquids from the storage cavern re-sulted in a series of explosions that killed three people, injured 21 and caused $9 million worth of dam-ages. The explosions could be felt 120 miles away. An investigation into the explosion said the cavern was too full and that safety equipment designed to prevent natural gas liq-uids from escaping didn't work, according to Brian Schaible, a spokesman for the Railroad Commission.

A cloud of gas developed, which was ignited from an unknown source, he said.

"We do not believen Tuesda were in violation our permit."

At the time of the explo the cavern contained 338,999 rels of natural gas liquids. In 1 when Seminole's application approved by the commission, company stated the cavern's cap ity would be 150,000. "We do not believe we were violation of our permit," Neals Seminole has applied for p mission to expand the storage cility capacity up to one mi barrels. Seminole has stated it doesn't intend to store 1 cavern more than 300,000 b rels at a time.
