Strawberry put on disabled list

Substance abuse problem benches Los Angeles outfielder

The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES — Darryl Strawberry, who disappeared from the Los Angeles Dodgers for a day, has a substance abuse problem and has been placed on the disabled list, the team announced Monday night.
General manager Fred Claire said Strawberry will immediately enter a treatment center, and could not predict when the outfielder will rejoin the team.
"Darryl Strawberry has admitted having a substance abuse problem and has requested assistance from the Dodgers," the team said in a statement.

Claire did not say specifically whether Strawberry, who has been treated for an alcohol problem, was now having trouble with drinking or drugs.
Strawberry's attorney, Bob Shapiro, said: "He is not going to be playing on opening day, he is going to be in a drug treatment center."

The Dodgers start their season Tuesday at home against Florida.
Strawberry met with Claire on Monday to discuss his mysterious absence Sunday, which prompted an all-day search by the Dodgers. When the Dodgers located him Sunday night, Claire said Strawberry did not have a sufficient explanation for his disappearance.
Claire, speaking at a news conference, would not disclose Strawberry's initial explanation for leaving the team.

In 10 appearances this season, Clemens is 3-4 with a 2.81 ERA. He has struck out 34 and walked 25 in 45 innings of work.
Johnson said that his performance has been behind in the past many times this season and he hopes to improve on their ability to strike often and early.
"We are walking way too many guys," Johnson said. "It's not we are getting shelled, we are beating ourselves."
Johnson said that he hopes the tide is turning and that the Yankees will soon return to form.
"The guys know that we are there yet," Johnson said. "We got to keep pushing hard."
After facing the Bearcats at A&M will remain at home to face Dallas Baptist in a three game series this weekend and UT-San Antonio April 12.

replacement could be found since most big schools have their schedules already set, Groff said. Several teams were suggested but they were "not the type of games we're interested in."
LSU Assistant Athletic Director Herb Vincent said the main reason A&M was dropped from the schedule was to add another home game. LSU will replace A&M with the University of Houston in 1996 and the University of Texas-El Paso in 1997. Both games will be played in Baton Rouge, La.
Vincent said the new schedule changes will give LSU seven home games and each home game is estimated to give LSU $1.1 million in revenue.
Before the Southeast Conference realignment LSU had seven conference games with 4 non-conference games, Vincent said. Two of the non-conference games were Tulane and A&M, which left LSU with two other possibilities for non-conference opponents. With realignment, the Tigers now have eight conference games and three non-conference games. Tulane will stay on the Tigers' schedule, but A&M was dropped to give LSU choices on their two remaining non-conference games.
"It gives us the opportunity to play other games and there is more leeway in scheduling," Vincent said.
Groff said the schedule changes with LSU were unfortunate but may be a "blessing" for A&M when A&M joins the Big Eight Conference in 1996. In the new Big Eight, A&M will have eight conference games.

"It may work out for us," Groff said.

LSU leads the all-time series 26-18-3, but A&M has won four out of the last five games. LSU will return to the A&M schedule in 2004 when the Aggies travel to Baton Rouge. In 2005 the series returns to Kyle Field.

Rangers fall to Yankees

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jimmy Key had his perfect opening day reconquered Monday, pitching the New York Yankees to a 5-3 victory over Texas Rangers.
Key, 5-0 in openers, allowed only one hit in seven innings before being pulled by David Hulse and Will Clark. Wade Boggs had four singles for the Yankees, and Dale Tartabull and Mike Stanley homered.
Kevin Brown, 11-2 against the Yankees coming in — the best among pitchers with 10 decisions against the Yankees — gave up five runs and 10 hits in five innings.

Astros take Montreal 6-1

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Mitch Williams was Wild Thing again. This time his new team got him off the hook.
Williams walked home runners in the top of the 12th, and Jeff Bagwell singled in one run. Ken Caminiti hit a two-run homer in the bottom half, giving the Houston Astros a 6-5 opening-day victory over the Montreal Expos Monday.
Williams, who ended 1993 giving up the World Series title to Toronto's Joe Carter, relieved to start the 12th with a score tied at 3. He threw three straight strikes over 90 mph, striking out Larry Walker and retiring Darrin Fletcher on a ground to shortstop, then got into trouble again.

A&M right fielder Chad Allen believes the new league will inspire kids to want to play ball, which will definitely increase the popularity of the game.
These same kids might get the chance to play in this league someday, but for now, the league will give players coming out of college this year a larger playing field.
Each of the eight teams in the league will carry six players that have no professional experience, which is 48 slots that were not open to college players last year.

"I could get a lot of guys with all-pro veteran experience, but that wouldn't allow the college players who were overlooked in the draft an opportunity to play pro ball," Lazarko said.
Allen agreed and said it gives players a second chance.
"This league is a great chance for a person who doesn't get drafted to improve his skills, get paid and possibly be seen by the pros," he said.

Lazarko said the perfect example of a quality college player who did not get drafted was former A&M second baseman and all Southwest Conference player Eric Gonzalez, who will be playing for the Corpus Christi team.
The league will have three national tryouts over the next two months. The two-day tryouts will be in Port Charlotte, Huntington Beach and Dallas.
The teams will be in Tyler, Beaumont, Amarillo, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Harlingen, with the out-of-state teams in Alexandria, La. and Mobile, Ala.

From there, there were three changes and two ties, the last 70-70 when Hill nailed a 3-point shot with 1:30 left.
Arkansas called a timeout when the Razorbacks returned to the court they had trouble getting an open shot. As the shot clock ticked down, Thurman finally one go from the right side, giving the Razorbacks the lead for good. They closed the game by going for-6 from the free throw line while Duke missed two shots, including an ill advised 3-pointer. Chris Collins with 24 seconds left and the Blue Devils down 74-70
