over $3 million has been raised by the faculty and staff," he said. "Outside donors see that figure and are immediately impressed that the entire campus is pitching in."

Jaedicke, a former student, said it's gratifying to see faculty and staff participating in the campaign.

"Most of the faculty and staff spend a great deal of their lives here," he said. "So it's good to see the faculty, not just the former students, giving some back to the University."

The Capturing the Spirit campaign has already raised more than $367 million, which does not include any money from the state government.

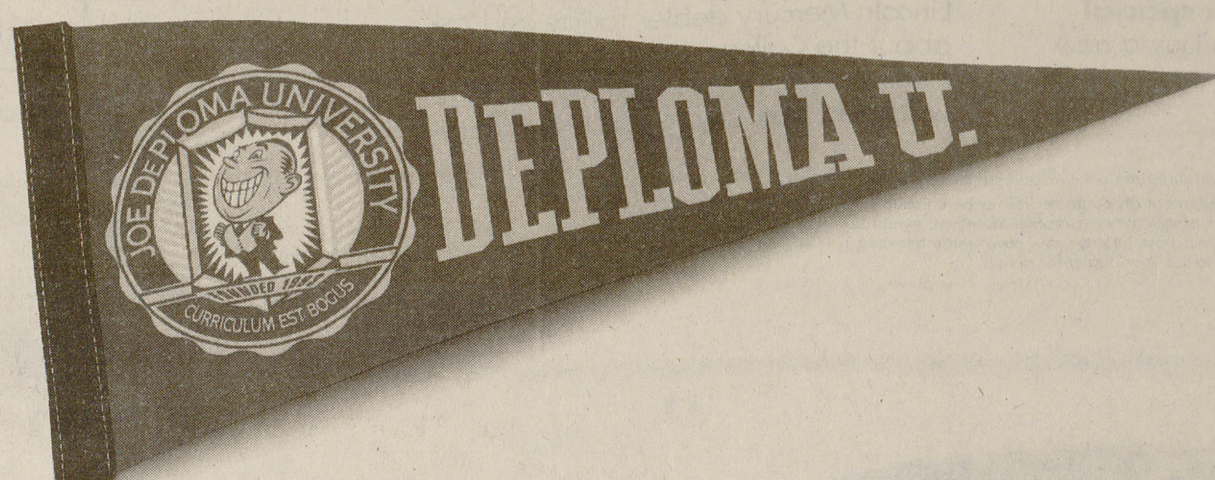

Prescott said the campaign is ahead of schedule in its fund-raising efforts, and he expects to reach the $500 million goal.

"We have reached 73 percent of our goal in 72 months," he said.

Prescott said the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, the College of Liberal Arts, the College of Architecture and a division of finance administration have already set up funds with the campaign.

"There are 15 endowment funds from the campus," he said, "and new ones are being set up at the time."
