Hear Ye, Hear Ye...

Former Baylor university women's basketball coach Pam Bowers, left, waits outside the federal courthouse in Austin on April, 13 with her attorney Lanelle McNamara, right, and Donna Lopiano, executive director of the Womans Sports Foundation, before the start of a hearing in her $4 million federal lawsuit over her dismissal last month.

Two A&M track members named to SWC academic team

From staff and wire reports

DALLAS — The Southwest Conference has named 15 student-athletes to its 1993-94 track and field academic honor team, including two students at Texas A&M.

George Vindiola and Leigh Anne Walker were placed on the team in recognition of outstanding on and off-the-field performances.

The primary purpose of the honor team is to award those student-athletes who represent outstanding scholarship while also contributing to their institutions through leadership and example.

To be selected to the honor team, the student-athletes must:

- * have met the institution's definition of an outstanding student-athlete;
- * have won one or more varsity letters;
- * have been in residence at least two semesters or in the final season of eligibility, and * have a minimum 3.0 cumulative grade point average.

Field of study as well as academic, athletic, extracurricular and community accomplishments and involvement are also taken into consideration for inclusion on the team.

Eight women and seven men representing all eight SWC institutions are on the 1993-94 track and field honor team:

George Vindiola, Texas A&M; Leigh Anne Walker, Texas A&M; Jason Deffen, Baylor; Dawn Rosser, Baylor; Vinko Barcot, Houston; Cayolye Asfahl, Houston; Emily Massad, Rice; Danny Jordan, SMU; Jennifer Max, SMU; Gregg Marsh, Texas; Heather Case, Texas; Greg Riddle, TCU; Robin Scheiffer, TCU; Jayson Lavender, Texas Tech; and Amanda Malouf, Texas Tech.

Raines, ChiSox club Red Sox as Chicago's lead-off man homers three times, drives in 5

The Associated Press

BOSTON — Tim Raines hit three homers and Wilson Alvarez won his 11th straight decision as the Chicago White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox 12-1 today.

Raines hit solo homers leading off the first and third innings and a two-run drive in the eighth.

He scored five runs and drove in four.

Frank Thomas also homered for the White Sox, his sixth of the season.

Joey Cora had a three-run triple after Danny Darwin (2-1) walked the bases loaded in the fourth.

Chicago added three runs in the seventh and four in the eighth on the homers by Raines and Thomas.

Alvarez (3-0), who held the Red Sox to one run and four hits in six-plus innings, hasn't lost since last Aug. 11.

He won his final seven decisions last season, defeated Toronto in the AL playoffs and has allowed just five earned runs in three starts this season.

Moon: Goodbye to Oilers, hello to Minnesota Vikings

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Warren Moon, flanked by his family and agent, said goodbye to his Houston Oilers ties on Monday, choosing to talk about his fans instead of his detractors.

It was a clean break, with no bitterness showing through.

"This is a day I thought would never happen so soon, but a day that's become reality," Moon said. "This is my final day as a Houston Oiler and my first day as a Minnesota Viking officially."

Moon was traded along with his $3.25 million salary to the Vikings last week for a fourth-round pick this year and a conditional third-round choice in 1995.

"One thing I wanted to accomplish here was to get this team to be a winner and we got that done," Moon said. "I wanted to become entrenched in the community and we got that done."

Another thing was to win a championship, and we didn't get that but maybe the Oilers can still get it. My efforts from now on will be with the Minnesota Vikings."

Moon said he knew his departure was a business decision brought on by the NFL's salary cap.

"Economics play a big role in what goes on in sports and players get caught up in business decisions," Moon said. "I'm just lucky that I got another opportunity."

Moon became a focal point of criticism when the Oilers reached the playoffs seven straight years but never got past the second round. Houston won only three playoff games in Moon's 10 years with the Oilers.

His wife, Felicia, has told of racial slurs directed to her during games.

"There are bad apples everywhere," Moon said. "If I do some things they don't like up there, I'm sure I'll hear that too. I do know that I got more support than negative stuff here."

Moon said angry fans were tougher on his family than on him.

"People aren't going to walk up to me and say stuff because they don't have the nerve to do that," Moon said. "It's been tough on my wife and family."

Leigh Steinberg, Moon's agent, said Moon's contract with the Vikings was for two years, but Moon declined to say that would be the end of his career.

"I never dreamed I'd still be playing," Moon said. "Who knows how long I'll be able to play after this contract is over."
