and provost, but at the same time, I'm more excited about my new position teaching," Gage said.

He said he is excited about the opportunity he has to teach and to serve as director of the center because it combines his administrative and teaching skills.

Sandy Crawford, administrative assistant to the president, said she will definitely miss working with Gage.

"I worked with him for four years. He was a terrific boss," she said. "He is an organized, detailed individual. We had a very good working relationship."

Crawford said she worked as Gage's assistant while he was senior vice president and provost and changed offices when he asked her to make the move with him.

Crawford will continue to work in the Office of the President as Dr. Bowen's assistant.

Chancellor Mobley said he was pleased with the job Gage did as interim.

"He did incredibly well," Mobley said. "It is difficult to be an interim in any position. He had challenging issues to deal with."

Mobley said he is pleased Gage is staying with the University because he has made so many major contributions.

Gage said he will encourage Bowen to communicate with all internal and external groups tied with the University and to keep the lines of communication open.

"He should know that he is inheriting a quality University which I believe is still on the rise," he said. "I will be working with him on issues that are ongoing, but in no way looking over his shoulder."

"I hope I have made contributions in a positive way," Gage said, reflecting on his term as interim president. "I hope many of the things I have done will continue to have a positive effect for years to come."

which benefits 160 students each semester.

The "Aggie Pride" license plates cost $30 more than the license plates required by the state, and features A&M's familiar logo. The scholarship fund gets $25 from plate sales and $5 is retained by the Texas Department of Transportation for administration fees.

A&M supporters can apply for the plates at Brazos County tax offices and at A&M's University Relations office.

The University of Texas at Austin and Texas Tech University have sold 1,487 plates each, followed by the University of Houston's 727, Baylor's 347, Texas Christian University's 260 and Southern Methodist University's 211.

The University of North Texas leads the non-Southwest Conference schools with 231 plates.

Rostenkowski

Holder said the two-year investigation, which began as an embezzlement and drug probe of low-level employees at the House Post Office, would continue.

Many of the charges have been the subject of news stories during the investigation, but the alleged kickback scheme and witness tampering were not.

"Several of the people on Rostenkowski's payroll were instructed to cash their paychecks and return the cash to the Chicago district office manager or to endorse the checks and surrender them to the office manager," Holder said.

"Then, as these people performed services, whether personal, official or campaign-related, they were paid in cash."

The scheme generated "a supply of untraceable cash, often amounting to several thousand dollars at any one time," Holder said.

Pressed several times on whether Rostenkowski personally received funds from this stash of money, Holder declined to elaborate.

The obstruction occurred, according to the charges, after Rostenkowski asked a House employee to engrave brass plates that would fit onto wooden bases of crystal sculptures of the Capitol. Rostenkowski had ordered the items to present as personal gifts, the charges say.

to benefit students in the College of Liberal Arts as well as in other colleges."

Jones said experience has prepared him for the duties ahead.

"The associate dean position was very instrumental in my understanding of how the University works," Jones said. "It allowed me to understand different problems and to grow as an administrator."

"My experience in the Marine Corps taught me a lot about organizations and people, as far as how to motivate people and how to overcome problems. In sports I learned the importance of competition and excellence."

Dr. A. Benton Cocanougher, interim senior vice president and provost, said he is excited about working with Jones.

"I am confident he will provide outstanding leadership for the college," he said.

Dr. William Perry, dean of faculties and associate provost, who chaired the search committee, said Jones should do well in his new position based on his previous experience as interim dean.

"He had a desire to build a community within the college and build strength in scholarship," he said. "He also appeared to work well with constituents."

Before assuming the interim position in May 1993, Jones served as associate dean for academic services and undergraduate affairs of the College of Liberal Arts.

He took over as interim dean after Dr. Daniel Fallon announced he was leaving the University capital.

In Byumba, near the Ugandan border, rebel leader Dennis Polise told The Associated Press that rebel demands for a ceasefire include allowing civilians in Kigali to go wherever they want, and stopping the massacres.

Polise accused the United Nations of standing by during the bloodshed, saying that many massacres "occurred under the noses of the blue helmets," referring to the headgear worn by U.N. peacekeepers.

The United Nations reduced its contingent in Rwanda from 2,500 to about 450 last month at the height of the massacres. It has authorized an additional 5,500 peacekeepers, but it is not clear when they might arrive.

Tony Burgener, a spokesman for the International Committee of the Red Cross in Geneva, said more 500,000 displaced people are now stranded in the Gitarama area without food and drinking water.

He said the rebel advance had cut off the main supply route from the south and that the plight of the displaced people is unclear if Gitarama falls. He said the refugees have no other place to go.

Most of the fighting in Kigali was concentrated around Gadhafi Corner, an intersection on the west side that controls access to the highway to Gitarama.

A U.N. source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the insurgents captured the intersection overnight and cut off the army's last avenue of retreat from the capital.

Rebels earlier had captured hills overlooking the highway to Gitarama, but despite rebel fire from the high ground the government was still able to move troops from Kigali to Gitarama.

After a night of light fighting in most parts of Kigali, U.N. officials resumed efforts to evacuate some of the displaced people stranded at the national stadium and the Milles Collines Hotel. Kabia said 188 people were evacuated from the stadium Monday and 129 from the hotel.

Before the evacuations began, there were more than 12,000 people who had sought refuge at those U.N.-protected sites and nine others from the ethnic savagery. Kabia said the United Nations would attempt more evacuations Tuesday.
