Page 2

Page

Con lem the few,

a pr

not.

lem

alsc

lege did the

ing

SPECIAI

Fu shi Au

Contri tion, a for mo Admir auto tr 21 Be able. Night Sary, It TAMU 11th fil INSPII quired Manag preferre at 29th Compu be fami Full tim Please Part-tim quette. Box 445 PART T acceptin TO HAV donor is sible (45 day. De read, shi cash in T year. Nik 8855. Evening a commu

Em

INTERNA $4,000+/r Japan, Ta Asian lang

CRUISE

Colle 82

Two mobile 846-4247. Newport Co furn., walk tu $100 alread - 2 bath. As Available No lease OK! & SUBLEASE share), 2 hu carpet & floo Furnished 1 shuttle route Kathy 846-9

CAMPUS

Monday • August 29, 19 onday • August 29,

Lisa Messer

prority Rush '94

y with a record 5

ging one of the anhellenic Presid

er said this yea

ut of rushees a

ded most sorori

le have 681 wom

ear," Beyer sai

rushees than

sh chairwoma

z said she credi

he increased i

Ve notified people

is year about th

ush week," Chav

the past, notice

en once they sig

rientation confer

however, infor

natically sent to

freshmen and th

We sent informat ale that had bee A&M," Chavez s about 4,000 wom

on not only put t

s. she said.

the past.

sororities.

BATTALION

Students prepare for Bonfire to burn ahead of schedul Recon

By Susan Owen The Battalion

Bonfire workers are getting a head start on building this year's stack as they prepare for a Bonfire date several weeks earlier than usual. Bonfire '94 will burn on Nov. 3, two days before the Texas A&M-University of Texas football game.

The game, traditionally held on Thanksgiving Day, was rescheduled after the NCAA handed out sanctions barring A&M football from television coverage during the 1994 season.

At this summer's Fish Camp orientations, "cut classes" were offered as one of several special interest programs freshmen could attend.

Members of the Aggie Bonfire Committee taught the classes at Fish Camp for the first time in an attempt to get freshmen in-volved in Bonfire.

In cut class, Bonfire co-ordinators demonstrate how to cut a tree down safely with an ax and give other information on how to help build bonfire.

Michael Owens, a senior redpot who taught cut classes at the first session of Fish Camp, said the classes were very popular with the freshmen.

Owens estimated that 100 people attended each class. Three classes were held at each of the five sessions this summer.

"We gave some history of Bonfire and explained cut, load and stack," Owens said. He said they also explained the Bonfire chain of command, in which eight senior and eight junior redpots are responsible for all students working on Bonfire. Six climbers and five brownpots also have specific duties at the cutting and stacking areas.

Buttpots coordinate volunteers from each Corps of Cadets unit, and yellowpots are in charge of students from the residence halls and Off-Campus Aggies. All are identified by the color of their hard hat, or "pot." (Climbers wear gray and buttpots wear maroon.)

Owens said he thinks the early start will help pull more people out to work on Bonfire this year.

Cut classes for the rest of the student body will be held Sept. 6 and 7. The Corps will have a cut class on Aug. 31. All students who attend cut must have cut class stickers on their stack workers begin continustudent I.D. cards.

Cutting will start Sun-day, Sept. 11 and continue until Oct. 16. Students have been preparing the cut site, about 12 miles east of campus, for several weeks.

Owens said they have cleared roads and tractor paths, made a clearing for load site and established which trees will be cut down. The Bonfire field on campus is also being prepared. Brownpot Ian Hastings said Bonfire Committee members are wiring up generators to supply electricity for lights and speakers.

The shacks and trailer that house tools and equip-ment are already on the field. "We're ready to go," Hastings said. The centerpole of bonfire will arrive Sept. 29, and when it is raised on Oct. 6, the process of stacking logs will begin.

Push, the period when ous 24-hour-a-day shifts, will begin Oct. 19, two weeks before bonfire is lit. Owens said although there is one less weekend for cutting, stack and push are the same length as they were last year.

"It's the same amount of time, it's just all moved up,' he said.

other schools.

The famous Texas Aggie Bonfire truck sits at the stack site in the Polo field on Northside of campus. A&M students have already begun to attend cut day since the Bonfire date has been moved up several weeks to November 3.

University officials looking Chavez said the to fill administration vacance with more wom cials are busy trying to fill another vacant spot within the school's administration after

Dr. A. Benton Cocanougher resigned from his position as interim senior vice president and provost in August.

President Ray Bowen said he expects to fill the vacant position this week. He has received recommendations for replacements from a selection committee made up of four faculty members and four college deans.

Cocanougher is returning to his former position as dean of the College of Business Administration.

Cocanougher said that when he took the position last August, it was with the understanding that he would only

"This is what I planned to do when I took the job," he said. "I am looking forward to get-ting back to the College of Busi-ness. There are a lot of exciting thing in the sellnes." things happening in the college. Cocanougher said he thinks the year has been successful for him. "When the University asked me to do this, I felt like it was important," he said. "It was certainly a busy year."

Cocanougher will be taking the place of Dr. Gary Trennepohl who has served as interim dean of the Colle Business Administration Cocanougher left that pos last year.

Trennephol said he is p Cocanougher is returning. "We (the College of ness Administration) ap ate that he was able to the University," Trenn said

we're looking forward to him back in our college."

his former position as a ate dean of the Colle Business Administration to spend a year sitting in dean's chair and to get a for the trials of tribulation the job," he said. "We had a good year, will be nice to have him canougher) back.'

Bowen said he was die pointed Cocanougher der to leave his position. "I talked with him ab the possibility of staying the position, but he wan return to his college," said

"When he took the po he only committed to stay til the end of August. "Dr. Cocanougher w his position during a c time for the University done a wonderful job," he stiphomore bio-m

Student leaders meet with delegates from other By Jan Higginbotham THE BATTALION Texas universities at Roundtable discussion Texas A&M University offirelations A&M students have with their

By Melissa Jacobs The Battalion

The first Student Body President Roundtable discussion was held earlier this month to make plans for the upcoming Big 12 Student Body President Conference and to discuss issues of importance at Texas universities.

Brooke Leslie, student body president of Texas A&M University; Zach Brady, stu-dent association's president of Texas Tech; and John Black, student association's president of the University of Texas, met along with their appointed delegates at the University of Texas in Austin.

The Big 12 Conference will be held March 2 to 5 at Kansas State University and four students from each of the Big 12 universities will be attending.

"This will give us a chance to come together and share ideas," Leslie said. "It will give us the opportunity to get to know students from the other universities so we can work together."

Leslie said she plans to work with the other students on things such as campus security at football games and organizing welcoming committees and functions.

"We will also discuss varying issues," she said. "It will give us the chance to build bridges with students from other schools

Krista Kirkland, vice president of public relations and marketing, accompanied Leslie to the roundtable discussion. Kirkland said she hopes to create friendships at the Big 12 Conference. "It will be a bonding thing, and we'll discuss things that happen on campus," she said.

"We thought it was a good idea to invite the Big Eight schools because they let four new schools into their conference, and we want them to know we appreciate it.'

Leslie said the roundtable discussion gave her a chance to get to know the other student body presidents which will have future advantages.

"A&M is very much lacking in Aggies who sit on the legislature in Austin," she said.

'Now, if A&M needs help from a legislator, I can call Zach and ask him to call one of his contacts in Austin.

Kirkland also said the roundtable discussion was very advantageous.

"We strengthened ties and now we can go into the Big 12 with ties of our own, she said.

The roundtable group also discussed the multicultural course curriculum issue.

"That was a very heated discussion," Leslie said. "I pretty much just told the other schools what we thought about the and we told them where we came from trasted them," she said. and gave them our views.

Administrative relations was a major topic of discussion and Leslie said the since we are thinking of changing ours."

ships with administrators," she said. The roundtable discussion resulted in a few changes concerning the Student Regent Bill, which began when A&M and the University of Texas got together to discuss the possibility of putting a student on each of the Board of Regents. Efforts by the two schools to create a student regent position are still in the orks. "We are no longer going to support it through Austin," Leslie said. "We are go-administrators are far beyond those of We've always boasted of our relation-

ing to do it locally."

Kirkland said the University of Texas, Texas Tech and A&M have different opinions about the bill.

"We discussed what would happen if we made a coalition with the Texas Student's Association," she said.

"All the president's had different opinions and some were very strong for it and some were very strong against it. Kirkland said the structure of student government at each campus was also discussed.

Each student association is very dif-

We are very interested in the way the different governments run their elections

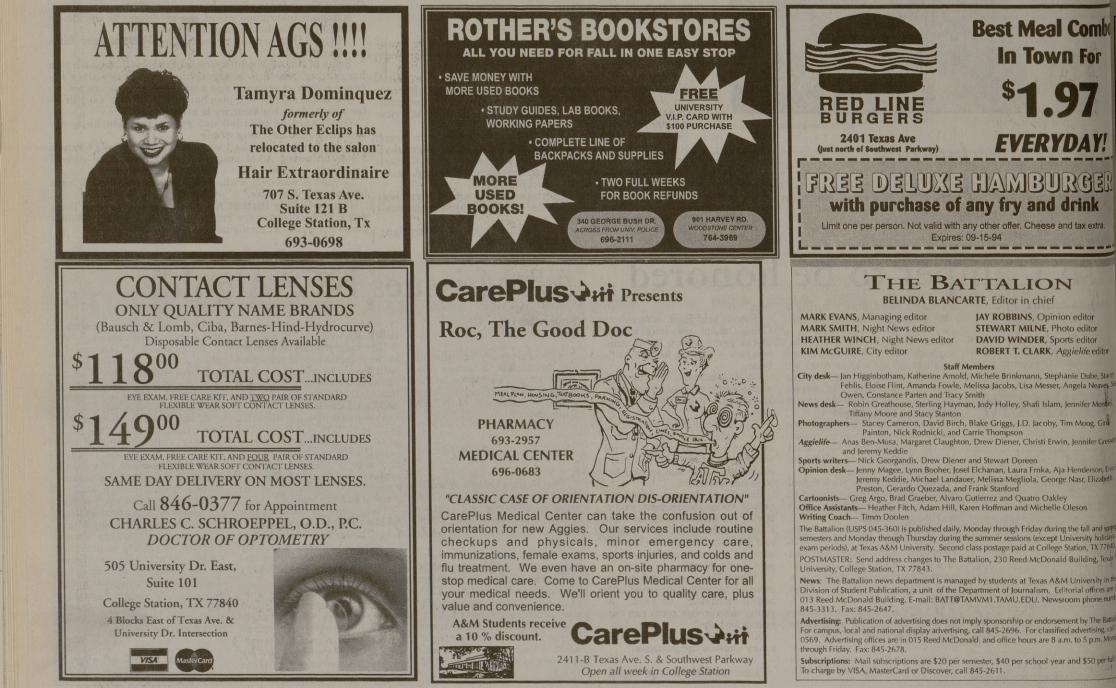

cey Williams

phanie Tuffle

"But from a selfish view

Trennepohl will retur

"It was a very good ex ence for me because I was

GRID S This system co

'grid lock', Hel

50

DALLAS 4939 Belt L Mockingbird o (Lincoln Square) (