administration, and he kept it. Gruetzner said the critics of this bill are the same people who criticize everything the president does.

"It's the same song by the same people," he said. "It's a political thing."

Dr. Norman Luttbeg, a political science professor, said the bill is a political public relations effort to assure the re-election of the members of Congress.

"This bill will not have much affect on crime," he said. "It is an attempt to make the people think Congress did something good for them. It's a public relations effort to get these people re-elected."

"Physical Plant will continue to do its job."

Sugg replaced Joe Estill as director of the Physical Plant in 1990, after being hired by Robert Smith, A&M's former vice president for finance and administration.

Estill now serves as the facilities construction division manager of the A&M System's Facilities Construction and Planning.

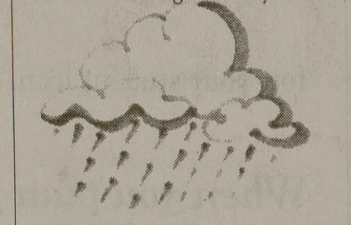

Sugg received his bachelor's degree from the Air Force Academy in 1966 and his master's degree in civil engineering at the University of Texas at Austin in 1974.

The A&M Physical Plant Department employs over 1,100 people and is responsible for all campus utilities, such as air conditioning, water and phone service. It is also in charge of campus landscaping, cleaning and recycling.

developed within the Physical Plant.
"I've learned that Physical Plant exists to meet the needs of others," he said. "If you can't do your job then we are not doing ours. I created an environment where employees were allowed to do their best."
Sugg said he also made strides in the quality of work life at the plant.
"From a management perspective, we have evolved into a working environment where people are no longer controlled and directed," he said. "I hope it continues."
Sugg said his only regret in resigning is leaving people who work at the plant.
"These people are the jewels of the University," Sugg said.

This summer the A&M System Board of Regents canceled a $120 million proposed power plant that Sugg had worked on for two years. In June, a University-hired consulting firm determined the project was a bad investment.
"I felt disappointed it was canceled," he said, "but I don't challenge the decision that was made."
He said that although the cancellation of the plant did not cause his decision to retire, but it did have an effect on the timing.
Gaston said Sugg did not mention the canceled project in the resignation letter, but Gaston said he would not be surprised if it was one reason he resigned.
"I know he's worked hard on that project," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if he is worn out."
Sugg said he will not stay in Bryan-College Station after he resigns. He is planning to move to the West Coast, possibly Oregon, which he said is where his wife has always wanted to live.

Sugg said he decided to leave in January because he thought four months was a sufficient period of time to help Gaston.
L.R. Johnson, associate director for Physical Plant administration and operations, has worked with Sugg for the last four years.
"Joe Sugg is one of the best people I've known," Johnson said. "He is a credible person and I believe what he has done here is in the best interest of the University. I will miss him."
Johnson said four different directors have led the Physical Plant since he came to the University in 1963.
"I have worked with four directors and I will accept the challenge of working with an interim and a new director," he said.

Scholarship Opportunities
For Outstanding Undergraduates

The following scholarships are currently open for competition:

INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS

Rhodes Scholarship
Terms: 32 awarded annually. Two years of full support (tuition and fees and maintenance allowance) at one of the Oxford Colleges with a possible extension for the third year.
Eligibility: Unmarried citizens of the United States with at least five years of residence. Must be between the ages of 18 and 24 as of October 1, 1994; age restriction may be relaxed for veterans. Must have attained at least senior standing at the time of application. Selectors will evaluate "literary and scholastic attainments; truthfulness, courage, devotion to duty, empathy for and protection of the weak, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship; exhibition of moral force of character and instincts to lead and to take an interest in one's contemporaries; physical vigor, as shown by a fondness for and success in sports."
Application Procedure: By nomination of Texas A&M University.
TAMU Deadline: September 19, 1994.

British Marshall Scholarship
Terms: Up to 30 awarded annually. Tenable at any British University and covers two years of study in any discipline at either undergraduate or graduate level leading to the award of a British degree.
Eligibility: United States citizens under the age of 26. Minimum GPA of 3.7 in courses taken after the freshman year. Selectors look for distinction of intellect and character as evidenced both by their scholastic attainments and by their other activities and achievements. Applicants are expected to present a definite academic program designed to further their intellectual interests and objectives which will assist them in making a significant contribution to their society.
Application Procedure: Application available in the Study Abroad Office and the Office of Honors Programs and Academic Scholarships.
Application Deadline: Mid October.

Fulbright Grants (Graduate Study Abroad)
Terms: Approximately 700 awards to over 70 countries, for graduate study or research abroad in academic fields and for professional training in the creative and performing arts; increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other countries through the exchange of person, knowledge and skills.
Eligibility: Applicants "must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, who will generally hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant and in most cases will be proficient in the language of the host country." The successful applicant devotes several months to the development of his or her project. Usually, the application process begins in the spring, researching and drafting your proposal and curriculum vitae.
Application Procedure: Applications are available from the Study Abroad Office. Before receiving the Fulbright application, the student must go through an interview process with the Fulbright Program Advisor.
Application Deadline: Early September.
