

Congress hopeful is millionaire

AUSTIN (AP) — Edgar J. "Bubba" Groce twice lost bids for U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson's seat. Now Wilson, D-Lufkin, wouldn't mind trading places with him.

"I wish he had won the election and I'd won the lottery," Wilson said Tuesday, the same day Groce got a check representing the first installment of his share of Saturday's $58.4 million lotto jackpot.

Groce, a businessman from Cleland in Southeast Texas, is one of three winners splitting the grand prize.

Garland engineer Ralph Townsend claimed his share Monday. A Laredo man called to say he had the third winning ticket and was on his way to Austin to stake his claim, said lottery spokesman Steve Levine.

Groce was presented with an oversized check made out for $974,819.94 at an Austin news conference. Like the other winners, he will receive installments of $973,000 every Aug. 15 for the next 19 years.

Asked whether he wishes he could trade his windfall for the congressional seat, Groce didn't have to think too long.

"No sir. I'd like both," Groce said. "I'd just rather keep my money and let the people decide whether they're going to put me in Congress."

Groce got 13.2 percent of the Democratic primary vote when he ran against Wilson in 1992, and 32.3 percent this year, according to figures from the state Democratic Party.

He said he hasn't ruled out running again. But he doesn't plan to use his lotto winnings to bankroll another try.

"I don't think that spending my own money would be the answer to it. I mean, (unsuccessful presidential candidate) Ross Perot spent how many million dollars of his?" Groce said.
