Smith

full and couldn't block my fall." Smith was transported by ambulance to Brazos Valley Medical Center where he underwent surgery to remove blood from his brain tissue.

Sgt. Maj. Tom Epting, a military science instructor at A&M, said the immediate attention Smith received from his instructor, friends at the complex, the University Police Department, the Emergency Medical Technicians and the doctors at the medical center probably saved Smith's life.

"Right after the accident, the cadets there reacted immediately by calling the EMTs," Epting said. "The doctor was able to get in communication with Jason's parents before he went into surgery. All involved responded in a timely manner. It was a real heads-up reaction."

Epting explained the situation to other cadets at a recruiting meeting that night.

"I explained it at the end of the meeting so I could conduct an orderly meeting without people leaving," Epting said. "I knew what the reaction would be."

Cadet Malcolm Hester stepped forward and suggested that all the cadets pray for Smith. Hester led them in the prayer.

Epting said that of the 50 people in attendance that night, at least 30 showed up at the hospital.

"It was really great to see everybody united like that," Epting said. "It's good to be an Aggie."

When Smith awakened after the surgery, he gave the Aggie thumbs up and asked to hear the Aggie War Hymn.

Smith said his involvement at A&M was incentive to recover quickly.

"I still can't ride horseback yet," Smith said. "I want to convince them to let me ride so I can lead my platoon during home football game march-ins."

Smith said he intends to be able to ride by Sept. 10, the date A&M plays the University of Oklahoma, in A&M's first game at Kyle Field.

"I think I can do it really easily," Smith said. "I'm doing a lot better."

Tim Barba, executive officer of Company G-2, said Smith is doing great.

"He's made leaps and bounds in recovering since the accident happened," Barba said.

Smith said he wants to thank all the people who have been friends to him and who have prayed for him.

"There's a book that everyone was asked to write their name in when they visited me," Smith said. "I'd like to see it so I can know who to thank."

"I have a lot of good friends," he said. "I know they've been a big help to me in my recovery. I'm so pleased to be back at A&M and in the Corps. I'm back in my boots."

Whistleblowers sue S&L cleanup agency alleging harassment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Resolution Trust Corp. employees, including a Dallas lawyer, have sued the agency for $2 million, alleging it engaged in a pattern of retaliation against them for trying to expose waste, fraud and abuse.

Other plaintiffs are two attorneys from the RTC's Denver office and an asset manager in Valley Forge, Pa.

Dallas attorney Juan Luis Burgos-Gandia is an administrative leave while agency officials review their decision to fire him. Burgos-Gandia contends the RTC retaliated against him when he tried to alert officials to the fact that a law firm was over-billing the government by charging $1,000 an hour for S&L cleanup work.

Others are contemplating joining the lawsuit, including L. Jean Lewis, the Kansas City investigator who prepared criminal referrals on a failed Arkansas savings and loan that mentioned President Clinton.
