Elections

tion regulations need improvement but they are not in bad shape."

A committee was appointed by Leslie last year to revise election regulations to make elections run smoother. Last year's problems included students scratching names off voters' packets and closed polling sites.

Chris McNeely, chair of the Student Senate's Rules and Regulations Committee, said the final revisions will be done when they can be done right.

"We've done the thought processes, we just have to get them down on paper," he said.

Tobin Boenig, speaker of the senate, said there were a lot of loop holes in the old regulations and they weren't air-tight.

"The election commissioner had to make decisions in the past but he really couldn't go on the rules," he said. "One example is that you aren't supposed to carry campaign material to the ballot, but what exactly is campaign material?"

Boenig said he hopes people realize that the Student Senate wants to make the election regulations as effective as possible and that's why it's taking so long.

"I want to emphasize that we want to make these as air-tight as possible."

United Way execs indicted for misuse of charity funds

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The former president of United Way of America and two former executives have been indicted on charges they spent the charity's money on vacations, apartments and personal air travel.

William Aramony, 67, president of United Way from 1970 to 1992, was named in a 71-count federal grand jury indictment announced Tuesday by the U.S. attorney's office.

Also indicted were Stephen J. Paulachak, 49, a United Way executive from 1971 to 1988 and president of a spinoff company that was indicted; and Thomas J. Merlo, 63, chief financial officer of the charity from 1990 to 1992.

The alleged diversion of funds caused a shakeup at the national charity organization when it was first reported by the news media two years ago. Contributions to local United Way organizations fell off sharply but have since stabilized.

United Way of America is the national service and training center for local United Way organizations and is financed by dues from the local groups.
