Oilers face turning point

Houston's problems difficult to overcome

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have either achieved their formula for a winning season or they've started a free fall. A 1-4 record last season led to an 11-game winning streak. Don't count on that happening again. They're off to another 1-4 start, but all the Oilers' other nightmares about this season are coming true.

Quarterback Cody Carlson is injury-prone as feared; the offensive line isn't the same without perennial Pro Bowl guard Mike Munchak; and yes, many of those fans who booed Warren Moon, wish he hadn't been traded.

"It's real simple at this point," quarterback Bucky Richardson said. "We can either hang our heads and give up, or we can decide to fight like hell and keep going. I'm going to keep fighting."

The offense and defense no longer blame each other. They've realized there are enough problems for everyone.

Some players talk in cliches about concentrating harder or finding chemistry but cornerback Kris Dishman puts into words what no one has wanted to admit since the salary cap assaulted the Oilers' roster.

"We just don't have the talent," Dishman said. "To be honest with you, that's it."

"Last year, when we were 1-4, we had bad bounces, this year the ball is bouncing our way and we're not making the plays. There's no comparison to this team and last year's because we don't have the talent."

The Oilers lost defensive ends William Fuller and Sean Jones to the salary cap and replaced them with Kenny Davidson from Pittsburgh, and Lamar Lathon, a linebacker last season.

The defensive line has more sacks after five games than last year's line, but they've become weary of stopping the run. The defense has allowed three 100-yard rushing performances this year compared to only six over the previous two seasons.

The defense ranks No. 1 in the AFC and No. 5 in the NFL in total defense but they are 28th against the run.

"We just can't stop the run," safety Marcus Robertson said. "If you can't stop the run, there's almost no reason to have any defensive backs. We've got to be able to make people pass the ball."

"If I'm making a lot of tackles, something is wrong."

The biggest talent drain is in the offensive line. There are three new starters — guards Kevin Donnalley and John Flannery and left tackle Brad Hopkins. Only center Bruce Matthews and right tackle David Williams are holdovers.

They have become a defensive end's dream. The line, only two years ago among the most protective of its quarterback, has allowed 23 sacks in five games this season.

Carlson is no Moon but he hasn't even had a chance to be Cody Carlson. He suffered a partially separated shoulder in the season opener and has since received a broken nose and has knee and ankle problems.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Men's cross country moves up rankings to No. eight

The Texas A&M men's cross country team continued to push its way up in the rankings, becoming the eighth-ranked team in the District VI cross country poll this week.

The team first moved in to the top ten last week after winning the Red Raider Open in Lubbock. The number eight ranking came via the Aggies' first place finish in the northwestern State Invitational in Natchitoches, Louisiana.

Men's tennis travels to Austin

A large portion of the 19th-ranked Texas A&M men's tennis team will hope to serve their national championship hopes this weekend as they travel to Austin to compete in the Pre-Qualifying division of the Men's All-American Championships, the second leg of the Collegiate Grand Slam.

The tournament, which will be held at the Penick-Allison Tennis Center on the University of Texas campus, will feature players from schools in the Southwest Region including Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana. The players will compete for two berths in the qualifying portion of the Men's All-American.

Competing for A&M in the tournament will be team members Bernardo Martinez, Carlos Tori, Robbie Krause, Eduardo Martinez, Eric Horan, Ricardo Rodarte, Brad Holland, Keavan Benkowitz and Satyen.

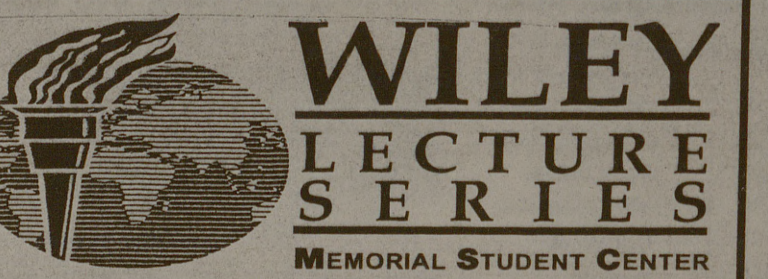

Women's tennis team hosts invitational

The Texas A&M women's tennis team will kick off its home season today as it hosts the Texas A&M 4-Way Invitational, beginning at 8:30 a.m. at the Omar Smith Tennis Center.

A&M will be up against players from Baylor, LSU and Southwestern Louisiana in the tournament.

The Lady Aggies will be without two of their top players, as junior Wilson Pate and sophomore Nancy Dingwall will both sit out of the tournament.

The 4-Way will be a flighted tournament, with two singles divisions (denoted as A and B) and one doubles division. Competing in the "A" singles for the Lady Aggies will be senior Christine DiNardo, junior Lonna Logan and freshman Sissy Carvin, while junior Anna Strakosova and sophomores Julie Beahm and Michelle Prejean comprise A&M's "B" contingency. The doubles teams for the Lady Aggies will be Beahm / Strakosova, Carvin / Prejean and DiNardo / Logan.
