

Parents

Class of '90, nominated their parents for A&M Parents of the Year last winter.

Liz Benton, Parents of the Year sub-chair, said the committee considers each application and letter of recommendation that is submitted for each nominee.

"We read through each one of them before we vote," Benton said. "We try to select the parents that deserve to be honored the most."

Benton said the Van Duyns will be recognized at many A&M functions throughout the year, including acting as judges at the variety show on Parents' Weekend in the spring.

Donna Van Duyn said she and her husband, who is a retired colonel from the Air Force, are used to the busy life that being parents of the year calls for.

"We've had very busy Air Force lives," Donna Van Duyn said, "so we don't want to be unbusy. We went to Fish Camp and the orientations and the football game this weekend. We find out week by week what activities we're going to be involved in."

Appleton said her parents deserve the award because of their love for A&M, its organizations and its activities.

"It's become a big family affair," Appleton said. "They consider themselves to be Aggies even though neither one of them ever went to school here. They just assume that they did."
