Problems erupt over rebuilding Kobe

People want to return to life as it was before the earthquake.

KOBE, Japan (AP) — City officials have a new vision for earthquake-ravaged Kobe: Tear down crowded, squat apartment buildings and businesses and redevelop the area with high-rise apartments, wide roads and green parks. For Akitoshi Yoshida, his dream for the future is to return to life the way it was before his neighborhood was devastated by the Jan. 17 earthquake.

Surveying the rubble of the bathhouse he ran for 43 years, Yoshida says all he wants is a new bathhouse, built on the site of the old one.

He'll give authorities the land, throw away the pride of being master of his own place, if only he can once again stand at the door and call out "Irasshaimase!" — "Welcome!" — to people stopping by for a hot bath.

"I'll work for a monthly salary," said Yoshida, 65. "You build it, I'll work there."

In Kobe and neighboring areas ruined by the earthquake, thousands like Yoshida dream that life could somehow return to the way it was.

City planners want to move on, look ahead.

The emerging debate has highlighted old and painful themes in Japanese urban development. Cities tend to be ugly, cramped jumbles that give little sense of planning. The powerful have historically dictated how cities are built, with little initiative taken by citizens.

Tetsuo Tamai, a city planning historian at Chiba University, said Japan still suffers from the lingering mentality of the medieval castle town whose shape would be dictated by the local baron.

"The people on top make the plans, and force the people at the bottom to live according to them," Tamai said.

Finding a new way in Kobe will not be easy. Efforts to impose a new urban vision have not been welcomed so far. Protests broke out in mid-March as residents denounced the Kobe city government's approval of a development plan for five key areas devastated by the quake.

Many prefer to rebuild the hodgepodge neighborhoods, instead of making way for new apartments, better roads and parks.

Even before urban renewal began, legislators will have to vamp old laws that restrict land use, zoning and construction. One of the biggest hurdles is ownership of land, which is tightly held
