Project improves Americans' health

□ The Healthy People 2000 campaign has made progress against heart disease, cancer and stroke.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A program to improve Americans' health is making progress against the killer diseases but is faltering in caring for the poor, reducing teen pregnancy and persuading couch potatoes to start exercising.

At the halfway point in a decade-long campaign called Healthy People 2000, federal officials said Tuesday the project is showing mixed results and may require increased efforts to achieve goals set in 1990.

"We have good news but not good enough," said Dr. J. Michael McGinnis of the U.S. Public Health Service, which is coordinating the national program.

McGinnis said that deaths from heart disease, cancer and stroke are all moving down at a pace that will achieve the target values by 2000. But the rates of obesity, teen pregnancy, homicides and pneumonia are actually worse than five years ago.

Also getting worse, McGinnis said at a news conference, are efforts to provide disease preventive medical care for the poor.

"We are failing to close the gap between the rich and poor in health care," said McGinnis.

"We are failing to close the gap between rich and poor in health care."

— Dr. J. Michael McGinnis, U.S. Public Health Service

Financial barriers to preventive services existed in 16 states at the beginning of the program and now exist in 17 states, the report said.

Healthy People 2000 is an effort by the PHS, state health departments, professional organizations and voluntary organizations to systematically promote healthful habits and good medical care.

Among the improvements: —Life expectancy for Americans at a record 75.8 years. The average number of years free of health problems remains at 64.

—Among black Americans, improvements in prenatal care, infant deaths and deaths from accidental injuries, heart disease, stroke and liver disease.

—Among Hispanics, more women being screened for breast and cervical cancers.

Among the national trends getting worse: —Homicides: 8.6 per 100,000 at start; 10.5 now, and goal is 7.2. The rates for young black males have risen steeply, starting at a baseline of 91.1 per 100,000 and rising to 134.2. The goal is 72.4 per 100,000.

—Among black Americans, more hospitalizations for asthma and more cases of AIDS.

—Among Hispanics, less access to primary health care due to a lack of health insurance coverage.

Alleged con man dupes Yale

□ A student doctored his transcripts, forged recommendations and claimed to be related to Kelsey Grammer of 'Frasier'.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Lon Grammer desperately wanted to go to Yale University. As a mediocre student at an obscure community college, that would have seemed a long shot. But Grammer managed to get in anyway.

Two years later, he was a month away from picking up an Ivy League diploma when police picked him up instead.

The 25-year-old man was expelled, and Yale is pressing larceny charges, saying he stole two years' worth of a high-priced education from the school and the government. He owes $61,475 in grants and loans, authorities said.

Grammer arrived at Yale in 1993, transferring from Cuesta Community College in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where transcripts showed he had compiled nearly a straight-A average. He also presented Yale with an outstanding recommendation from Cuesta's dean of students and favorable letters from a political science professor and science instructor.

But the grades were doctored, some of the recommendations were from people who didn't exist, and those who do exist say they never wrote them, according to court papers.

Cuesta's records show his real grade-point average was a C, and his high school in Concord, Calif., told Yale that his transcripts, test scores and letter from the principal were fakes.

Grammer was caught when a detective from the Lebanon, N.H., police department contacted campus police about a forged driver's license and registration on a leased Jeep.

Some students said they weren't surprised by the turn of events, noting Grammer's background seemed shady. Among other things, he claimed he had played minor-league baseball and was related to actor Kelsey Grammer.
