Calling: GTE says equipment not causing problems

"I called my mom and when I hung up, the phone rang again and it was her," Galban said. Jason Jaynes, a freshman computer science major, said he sometimes has trouble disconnecting the phone line. "I made a collect call," Jaynes said. "I then hung up and called someone else. When I hung up on them, the line was still connected to the first person even though they weren't on the line anymore." Felicia Jones, AT&T troubleshooter analyst, said that although there are several possible explanations for the Jaskas' billing problems, the problems do not originate with AT&T's service. "They have to make sure the other end hung up," Jones said.

"That is one way it could have overlapped. It could also possibly be the local company's switching equipment." Oscar Gomez, vice president of regulatory and government affairs for GTE, said the switching equipment in Bryan College Station is probably not causing the problem. "In Bryan College Station, we have digital technology that is state of the art," Gomez said. "I have yet to find a problem in our switch." "This customer is going through extremes to bring attention to a situation that we have more than adequately explained," Jaska said she has been offered several explanations for her phone bills. "GTE said this was happening because of three-way calling, but we canceled it and we still have the problem," she said. "They then told us we could no longer use our answering machine, fax or cordless phone. What business can you ask me to have a fax or answering machine," Jaska said. Morrison said he will send technicians to try to recreate the situation and determine if called-party hold is creating the Jaskas' extra charges. "There may be a billing problem or it could be something with the way they are calling," Morrison said. "It could be possible that this is happening from the way they wired inside their house, or it could be that I am creating the problem," he said.

Drive: Aggies needed to bleed maroon this week

Leslie said she has seen positive results from similar challenges in the past and will be donating blood tomorrow with Toby Boenig, student body president-elect. The drive is Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. People can donate at five campus locations: Sbisa, MSC, the Commons, Lounge F on the Quad and the Wehner building. Donors must be 17 years or older and weigh at least 110 pounds. Each donor will have a complimentary cholesterol test and mini-physical. Donors will get a T-shirt, Chick-Fil-A sandwich coupon and a chance to enter a drawing April 21 for prizes from local sponsors. Russell Singleton, Alpha Phi Omega blood drive coordinator, said APO will give 900 hours of service during the blood drive this week. "We are sponsoring the drive in the spirit of our rivalry with the University of Texas," Singleton said. "We wanted to harness that energy and challenge them." When the competition is over and the results are compared between the schools, Singleton said, the only reward for either school is the satisfaction of helping others and building spirit. The University of Texas held its drive at the end of March and had a goal of 3,000 pints. Cindy Sweatman, BloodCare's Texas A&M consultant, said that BloodCare's drives have been an

Aggie tradition since 1959. The number of blood donors has decreased in the past few years compared to A&M's enrollment, she said. Blood donations at A&M reached a high in 1989 with 5,574 pints collected, Singleton said. Only 2,705 pints were collected in 1994, he said. Alan Elias, BloodCare's director of donor recruitment, said that about 4 million blood transfusions are needed nationally. "Without blood from the community supply collected at drives, such as the Texas A&M drive, many medical and surgical procedures would not be possible," Elias said, "and the lives of cancer, cardiac and organ transplant patients, as well as seriously ill newborns, would be lost."

Fundraiser: Aid needed for medical expenses of student

KTSR and Aggie 96. Door prizes, including free pizzas, in-line skate rentals, manicures and hair cuts, will be given away. Anyone donating at least $5 at the door will be eligible for door prizes. Ring Fling T-shirts, designed by C. C. Creations, will be on sale for $12, and CNC Photographics will donate a percentage of photo sales back to Shockley. Don Ganter, owner of the Dixie Chicken, said he could not turn Presley down when she presented her idea to him. "He is an Aggie and I bleed maroon," Ganter said. Presley said everything at the fundraiser is designed to generate money for Shockley. Joe Shockley said he has faith that everything will eventually work out for his son's benefit. "I'm just thankful I still have him," Shockley said. "I don't remember the first time he ate real food when he was a baby, but I'll never forget what he ate the first time food went into his mouth after the accident." "Not too many parents would get excited about feeding their 26-year-old son applesauce, but to me, it's pretty exciting," he said.

AQUATICS
The Aquatics staff consists of over 60 positions including lifeguards, head lifeguards, SCUBA staff, and administrative assistants. Special information on the natatorium will be touched upon at the open forum.

MEDICS
Rec Sports Medics serve as First Responders to provide first aid and Basic Life Support care for participants in Rec Sports events and rec facility patrons. The Department is looking to hire over 35 Emergency Medical Technicians. Anyone holding current Texas Department of Health EMT certification is eligible.

FACILITIES
The Facilities staff will consist of over 120 positions including facility receptionists, maintenance workers, facility cashiers, equipment room attendants, weight & fitness room attendants, maintenance supervisors, member services clerks, weight & fitness room supervisors, assistant facility supervisors and facility supervisors.

FITNESS
A new staff of 40-50 students to lead fitness classes and instructional clinics will be hired. Experience teaching aerobics, step, hip-hop, funk, box aerobics, body shaping, aqua exercise, water conditioning, or aqua step classes is preferred. Training will be offered to new instructors.

Clinics in a variety of sport activities, including, but not limited to, golf, SCUBA, fitness walking, and squash will be offered throughout the year.

The Department of Rec Sports will be holding two open forums for students interested in employment for next fall in the Student Recreation Center. The meetings will be held:

- Tues., April 18, 7-8 p.m., 274 Read Bldg.
- Wed., April 19, 7-8 p.m., 267 G. Rollie White

Information presented will include jobs in the following areas:

- ★ Aquatics ★ Facilities ★ Fitness ★
- ★ Intramurals ★ Medics ★
- ★ TAMU Outdoors ★ Promotions/Publicity ★

Supervisors in each of these areas will be on hand to explain their area and staff needs for the new building. Deadlines and application processes will be presented.

The fitness staff is seeking students with previous experience or desire to teach these or other instructional clinics. Fitness activities will be taught primarily in the early morning, noon hour, and evenings.

INTRAMURALS
Become an intramural official! Training occurs over a two-week period before play in a sport begins. Training includes both classroom sessions and on-court/field clinics.

TAMU OUTDOORS
TAMU Outdoors is comprised of an outdoor equipment rental, retail sales operation, resource information, a premier rock climbing facility, basic skill development clinics and adventure trips. Job opportunities in the outdoor program include trip leaders, outdoor center staff and rock climbing supervisor.

The program needs students who have experience and interest in outdoor activities. Applicants who possess leadership abilities, the desire to take initiative and accept responsibility, are invited to apply.

PROMOTIONS/PUBLICITY
The Promotions/Publicity staff consists of students with an interest and talent in promotions, publicity, public relations, marketing, desktop publishing, photography and art. The team is responsible for all the advertising, printed and visual materials produced by the Department. Rec Sports employs student assistants, photographers, graphic/layout assistants and artists.
