The Boys Choir of Harlem

Bringing gospel and jazz styles to Rudder tonight

By Amber Clark
THE BATTALION

For inner-city New York school children, community organizations offer an initial step toward making a change for a better life. For 25 years, The Boys Choir of Harlem has been serving to keep kids between the ages of eight and 18 off the streets and in a productive direction.

Tonight at 8:00 in Rudder Auditorium the MSC Opera and Performing Arts Society will present the small church choir that has grown into a world-renowned performing arts institution.

Under the direction of founder Dr. Walter J. Turnball, the 450 singers have a repertoire that ranges from classical to gospel to jazz. Singers are arranged in three groups, including the concert choir and the recently-reorganized girls choir. The performing choir, consisting of 35 to 40 boys, is the select group of members chosen to perform on tour.

Turnball has received recognition for his talents aside from the creation of the Boys Choir of Harlem. He was recently named "One of the 15 Greatest Men on Earth" by McCall's Magazine, and has been granted several honorary degrees for his work.

Dianne Mueck, advertising representative for OPAS, said people are interested in the choir for its profound effect on the lives of inner-city children.

In 1987, the Boys Choir of Harlem Academy was established to provide fourth- through eighth-grade students with the high standards of academic achievement, proper conduct and punctuality. Within the next few years, the program expanded to include a high school and the addition of girls to the student body.

Classes at the academy stress academic curriculum at a college preparatory level. The course work is supplemented with social services, counseling and recreation. Students who tour with the performing choir receive credit for each performance. Mueck said programs like the academy can only benefit the community.

"People that might not have had a chance at life now do," Mueck said. "And their music appeals across the board to just about everyone."

The Boys Choir of Harlem has performed at several special events, including the rededication of the Statue of Liberty, the Columbus Quincentennial Ceremonies and Nelson Mandela's arrival in the United States. Their works are also found on the soundtracks of Jungle Fever, Malcolm X and Glory.

The choir makes 80 to 100 appearances annually, as well as television performances. The choir also tours internationally, and has been on eight European and three Asian tours.

But despite the heavy schedule, the Boys Choir of Harlem remains dedicated to providing musical and academic training.

Andi Stevenson, chair of OPAS, said the choir performed at A&M several years ago, but the organization invited them again to benefit the students.

"I don't think most students at this university have seen them," Stevenson said. "They're absolutely amazing."

Stevenson, a senior English and political science major, said the choir is known for its appearances with other well-known entertainers. The choir recently performed a concert with Ray Charles, Stevenson said, and people tend to associate the Boys Choir of Harlem with quality style and entertainment.

"They have really good name recognition," Stevenson said.
