Soccer receives SWC affiliation

A&M will join four other conference schools this fall in competition.
Staff and Wire Reports

In 1993, the Texas A&M soccer team was born with high expectations and lofty goals. One of those goals was attained Friday when the Southwest Conference voted in favor of conference affiliation for five SWC schools with soccer programs.

Joining A&M for a one-year stint in SWC soccer will be the University of Texas, Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Texas Tech. The school that wins the SWC race next year will be the only SWC soccer champion ever. The following season, Texas Tech, UT and A&M will all join the Big 12 while SMU and TCU join the Western Athletic Conference, along with Rice.

In its first two years of competition, A&M was a member of the South Region, one of four such regions in Division I play, which also contained nine-time defending NCAA champion North Carolina and national powerhouse Duke.

The Aggies will return 10 starters and nine of their top ten scorers from the 1994 team that posted a 15-2-2 record, including an 8-0 mark at the Aggie Soccer Complex. Despite the strong record, the Aggies were not invited to the NCAA Championships despite ending the match on a 10-match winning streak.

However, for the first time ever, A&M received votes in the Intercollegiate Soccer Association of America Top 20 poll.

In their two years as a program, the Aggies have compiled a 30-5-3 record, a .829 winning percentage.

The 1995 season begins for A&M with an exhibition on Aug. 26 against a team of A&M alumni. The regular season starts Sept. 3 against Marquette University and the Aggies' first-ever conference game will be at home against TCU on Sept. 18. The SWC Championships tournament will be held Nov. 2-5 in Dallas.

WINDER

talks the talk, but does not walk the walk. The bar tastes good about every third day or when you are starving to death.

Chuck Quits — This is a popular candy bar named after Phoenix Suns forward Charles Barkley. The bar has set numerous sales records, but has never won the championship for best taste. The company who owns Chuck Quits threatens to quit producing it every time the bar does not win it all, but keeps bringing it back season after season.

Wild Pitch — This lovely white chocolate bar based on the career of Mitch Williams is a replica of a major league baseball. The inside is filled with creamy chocolate which makes a mess every time you take a bite. Guaranteed to go everywhere but your taste buds. The slogan is, "It's as if your mouth is the strike zone, and Mitch is the pitcher."

The Happy Clapper — Not actually a candy bar, but in fact a recording of San Antonio Spur Jack Haley encouraging people to eat one. Next year at all Spurs games, Haley will go into the stands and help people munch on sweets, because let's face it, he's not going to be playing.

LACROSSE: California tourney highlights second year did this by holding various fundraisers, including cleaning Kyle Field, stuffing envelopes and selling T-shirts and sweat-shirts. With one tournament under their belt, the team is now striving to hold its own major tournament this fall. The members are planning to extend welcomes to a large variety of schools.

"We're inviting teams from the California tournament because they get more funding, especially travel funding," McNurlen said. "We're also trying to bring in Arkansas, Kansas State, Colorado and Texas Tech, which just got a team this year." During the spring and fall semesters, the team practices for two hours a day, five days a week on Simpson Drill Field. A majority of the players have very little experience with lacrosse. Many practices are spent each semester with the more experienced players teaching the new players the fundamentals of lacrosse.

The new players are brought along first with the basic skills of lacrosse—cradling, scooping ground balls, throwing and catching, and then with offensive and defensive drills and scrimmages.

Despite the strain of having to play and show others the moves at the same time, McNurlen said she enjoys teaching almost as much as being on the field.

"I love having someone else catch on and get their skills going," McNurlen said. "Sometimes it can be difficult drawing the line between friends and authority, but I love to teach."

The lacrosse team does more than just practice and play, however. In its two years, the team has been involved in numerous community organizations. In April, the team participated in Big Event for the second time,

"When I came here I played on a men's team because I wanted to play so much."

in an area nursing home. Although the fall semester is their off-season, the team will host their own invitational next semester. Next spring, they plan to play a full schedule, traveling throughout Texas to play other schools and returning to California for another tournament.

Olsen, who had never played lacrosse before noticing a flier in her dorm, said the team is a wonderful experience for anyone, regardless of their playing ability.

"It's a great experience for incoming freshmen who haven't found their spot yet on campus," Olsen said. "I can't imagine not playing now."

Weak-hitting Marlins bash Houston

Florida's Chris Hammond hits the first grand slam by a pitcher in nine years.

MIAMI (AP) — Chris Hammond hit the first grand slam by a pitcher in nearly nine years and Terry Pendleton went 5-for-5 to help the Florida Marlins beat the Houston Astros 9-7 Monday night.

The Marlins, whose .224 batting average entering the game was last in the major leagues, had a season-high 19 hits. Alex Arias went 4-for-4.

Hammond put his team ahead 4-2 with a one-out homer in the second inning, but the left-hander didn't pitch long enough to earn the victory. He departed with an 8-3 lead and the bases loaded in the fourth, and Mark Gardner retired Craig Biggio and Jeff Bagwell to end the inning.

Hammond's grand slam was the first by a pitcher since Bob Forsch of St. Louis hit one against Pittsburgh's Mike Bielecki on Aug. 10, 1986.

Pendleton had three singles, a double and a triple to tie his career high for hits in a game. He also committed two errors at third base.

Florida left fielder Jeff Conine's consecutive-game streak of 307, second only to Cal Ripken among active players, ended. Conine, who has been slowed by a strained left hamstring, had played in every game in Marlins history.
