Rangers outgun Tigers in home run derby

With the win, Texas moves within 1/2 game of the AL West lead.

DETROIT (AP) — Rusty Greer and Juan Gonzalez homered on consecutive pitches in the fifth inning as the Texas Rangers ended a slugging slump Tuesday night by defeating the Detroit Tigers 8-6.

Ivan Rodriguez, who also homered for the Rangers, ended droughts of 31 innings without an extra-base hit and 62 without a home run.

Bobby Higginson homered for the second straight night and Travis Fryman connected for the first time since May 24 for the Tigers.

Darren Oliver (4-2) went 5 2-3 innings, allowing seven hits and striking out eight for the victory.

He left the game with a 7-4 lead after giving up Higginson's seventh homer and doubles by Ron Tingley and Chad Curtis in the sixth. Jeff Russell pitched the ninth for his 10th save despite giving up an unearned run on first baseman Jack Voigt's error.

Sean Bergman (3-5), looking for his third straight win, lasted just 4 1-3 innings. He allowed six runs on six hits, three of them homers.

Greer's three-run homer broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth. Gonzalez, who gave Texas a 1-0 lead with a sacrifice fly in the first, hit Bergman's next pitch into the left-field seats for his fourth homer.

A leadoff homer by Rodriguez in the second put the Rangers up 2-0. It was their first homer since Gonzalez connected June 12 at Milwaukee.

The Tigers, who stranded four runners in scoring position through the first three innings, drew into a 2-2 tie without a hit in the fourth.

Two walks and two wild pitches brought in one run and a sacrifice fly by Curtis tied the score.

Ivan "Pudge" Rodriguez hit his third homer in Tuesday's game against Detroit. He is second in the All-Star voting at catcher.

Touting TCU's Thomas

The center's prospects for the NBA draft look good despite his size and attitude.

Thomas also has had to overcome talk that he's somewhat arrogant on the court. He's been known to scowl and stare down opponents.

"I don't really worry myself about that," Thomas said after a workout this week for his hometown team, the Dallas Mavericks. "I just go out and play hard. People are going to say I have an attitude, (other) people are going to love the way I play."

The Mavericks were the ninth team Thomas visited, and he says he has two or three stops left before the June 28 draft.

As that day approaches, Thomas' stock has risen. Projections that originally had Thomas going in the lower first round have been replaced by thoughts he could be a lottery pick.

Devils defeat Detroit, 4-2

New Jersey has a two game advantage in the best of seven series.

to prevail after dropping the first two games at home.

The Red Wings, who went into the series with an 8-0 home record and a 12-2 playoff mark, led 2-1 midway through the third period but gave up goals to Scott Niedermayer, Dowd and Stephane Richer in the final 10:13.

On the winner, Detroit defenseman Paul Coffey blocked a shot by Bill Guerin and lay on the ice even as the Devils passed the puck around Detroit's zone.

Tommy Albelin got the puck to the right point for Shawn Chambers, whose slap shot was blocked by goalie Mike Vernon into the slot. Dowd then backhanded the puck into the vacated net.

Richer added an empty-net goal with 20.9 seconds to play as New Jersey pulled within two victories of its first title in franchise history.

Tyson receives warm welcome home from fans

The former heavyweight champion refused to answer questions outside his house.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Tyson came home to a hero's welcome Tuesday after three years in prison, basking in the cheers of fans and shielded from questions about his rape of a beauty queen.

"The powers that be didn't want you here and didn't want me to speak to you," the former heavyweight champ told a sweltering outdoor rally of more than 500 in Harlem. "But we'll beat them because God's on our side."

Many in his hometown were divided over whether to embrace or shun Tyson. A candlelight vigil for abused women, prompted by his return, was held Monday night.

The Rev. Al Sharpton, who helped organize Tyson's return, had insisted it would be a sober homecoming for a prodigal son and dismissed reports that a parade and gala celebration had been planned.

But a festive atmosphere prevailed Tuesday and a block party took shape in front of the Apollo Theater in Harlem, where a reggae band played on a flatbed truck and hundreds of well-wishers gathered for the rally in 90-degree temperatures.

The street was blocked and many people, men and women alike, wore Tyson shirts. Speakers compared Tyson to Malcolm X, and read a letter of support signed by 52 Harlem churches.

Tyson was pleased with enthusiastic crowd. He said about his conversion to Islam in prison, but did not specifically address his conviction. He maintained his innocence.

Tyson gave out $200 checks for various social programs, and said he ultimately planned to give away $1 million.

He closed by saying a little nervous with these people, but me Lord bless you.

Everywhere the former heavyweight champion was greeted by cheers and applause. In the moments scores of people waited patiently in oppressive heat of the office where Tyson met with Sharpton.

When the boxer appeared a third-floor window, the erupted into wild cheers, raised a clenched right fist quickly disappeared.

Another crowd gathered in front of a restaurant for a conference about his comeback fight.
