□ The head coach wants a championship in the SWC's final
By Kristina Buffin
THE BATTALION
After losing in the round of the NCAA Tournament last season, the Texas women's volleyball team is looking for redemption. Though schedule this season, Lady Aggies are hoping to the rest of the country, they already know themselves that they are legitimate contenders for both a South Conference and national title.
"It is definitely an aim of the SWC crown," sophomore outside hitter Kristie Smith said. "We had an amazing season last year but nothing the feeling of winning Southwest Conference."
The Lady Aggies posted a SWC record last season and finished second in the SWC after the final round of the conference tournament. The disappointment of this loss has driven the team to improve in the offseason.
"That game is definitely a defining force this season," setter Suzy Wente said. "The conference teams are stronger this season and they are just competitive as us. Playing that game is definitely a defining force this season," setter Suzy Wente said. "The conference teams are stronger this season and they are just competitive as us. Playing that game is definitely a defining force this season..."

to myself and my daughter that it can be done."
Wente thanked her family coaches and teammates standing behind her and reporting her since coming back to campus.
"I think A&M is the greatest place on earth," Wente said. "I've had so much support from my coaches. I'm sure that was at any other university would have been written off."
"My parents and family have been behind me 100 percent and my teammates have the belief in me that I can come back and do it."
While Wente was gone during the spring, the Lady Aggies installed a new offensive scheme, something the team leader has had to adjust to.
"I played all summer and I'm back into playing shape," Wente said. "We've changed a quicker offense, so I've been relearning and trying to get the rhythm down."
Wente's comeback thrilled Corbelli and the team. "Suzy could be one of the most inspiring players," Corbelli said. "She's had her share of setbacks and has handled them well."
Despite all that has happened recently and her being mentioned as an All-American candidate, Wente still hopes to make her greatest dream come true.
"I would be thrilled (to be an All-American), but that's not my goal," Wente said. "My biggest dream is to get an SWC championship ring in my senior year and in the final year of the conference."
