Frasier and NYPD Blue take top honors at Emmy Awards

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The medical drama ER, was in good health at the Emmy Awards — tying two records — while NYPD Blue won best drama series on Sunday and "Frasier" took top comedy.

ER won eight awards to equal marks set by Hill Street Blues, another NBC series, for most wins by a new series and most wins in one year (1981).

Showing no signs of sophomore slump, the farcical NBC comedy Frasier won five Emmys in all, including best comedy actor for Kelsey Grammer.

NBC won 28 Emmys, including trophies presented in a non-televised ceremony Saturday. CBS had 19, HBO won 15 and ABC took home just six Emmys.

the most for any show on Sunday but ER won five awards Saturday and three Sunday, including drama writing and supporting dramatic actress.

Grammer, the radio psychiatrist who can handle everybody's problems except his own, took the best comedy actor award for the second straight year.

Candice Bergen repeated as lead actress in a comedy series for her depiction of a hard-driving journalist-mom in Murphy Brown. She won the same award in 1994, 1992, 1990 and 1989, becoming the winningest performer in a lead series role.

Mandy Patinkin, the brilliant and overzealous surgeon on CBS' Chicago Hope, was named best drama series actor. Ironically, Patinkin will not be a regular on the show this year, but will make several appearances.

Kathy Baker, who plays Dr. Jill Brock on the CBS series Picket Fences, won for best drama series actress.

Frasier co-star David Hyde Pierce, who plays the show's wobbly psychiatrist, won best supporting actor in a comedy series. The show also won for comedy series directing and best writing in a comedy series.

"Does this mean that I'll never have to work again or that I'll never work again?" quipped Pierce.

Christine Baranski, the sardonic divorcee on Cybill, led off the evening with the Emmy for outstanding supporting actress in a comedy series.

Julianne Margulies, a troubled nurse on ER, won best supporting actress in a drama series. Ray Walston, the cantankerous Judge Henry Bone on Picket Fences, won the Emmy for supporting actor in a drama series.

"I have 30 seconds to tell you that I've been waiting 60 years to get up on this stage," Walston told the Pasadena Civic Auditorium audience.

NBC had a total of 96 Emmy nominations, including 23 for ER, followed by CBS with 91 and cable's Home Box Office with 50. ABC had 42 bids, while Fox Broadcasting Co. had 19.

The 47th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, co-hosted by Cybill Shepherd and Jason Alexander, was face-paced, even managing to end five minutes short of its scheduled three hours. Despite stumbling with a food-fight bit and a gag with a catapulted dummy, the telecast was easygoing and dignified, with presenters and recipients on their best behavior.

The five wins by Frasier were

This album is a smart showcase of the range she has demonstrated in previous albums. For example, Pirates and Flying Cowboys were both studio, large-cast albums. She performs several songs from this period, like "Flying Cowboys," without all of the instrument ion, but seems to pull a large sound out of her hat anyway.

Pop, Pop, however, which came after her first three albums, was Jones and a small jazz ensemble. This setup lent itself well to her spontaneous style, just as the live retrospective of Naked Songs allows Jones to jam a little and play it up with the audience in tow. Tunes like "Coolsville," one of the best tracks, prove that Jones' jazz instinct is as strong as her gift for songwriting.

This is Rickie Lee Jones — she is a true artist, motivated not by money or marquee, but by music.

During a concert Jones gave at Northwestern University two years ago with just her guitar, she stopped and started several songs, trying to achieve the "perfect" sound.

While there is no stopping Naked Songs, it comes close to capturing that "sound" Jones works for and often achieves.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Poll explores kids' name recognition

NEW YORK (AP) — Nelson who? Boris what?

Kids are far more familiar with athletes and entertainers than politicians and world leaders, according to a poll done for a new publication, Time for Kids.

The poll was conducted by Roper Starch Worldwide and is based on telephone interviews with 500 U.S. children, ages 9 to 12. Interviewing was conducted from Aug. 8-20.

The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Only 21 percent recognized the name Boris Yeltsin and 20 percent Nelson Mandela, according to the poll released Sunday.

First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton was recognized by 82 percent, just 4 percentage points lower than Tom Hanks and much higher than Rush Limbaugh, recognized by 48 percent.

Creative entrances mark film festival

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Movie promotions took on a water theme this year at the Venice Film Festival.

Denzel Washington emerged from a Venetian lagoon in a submarine supplied by the Italian navy to promote Crimson Tide.

Kevin Costner sailed in to promote his budget-breaking blockbuster Waterworld.

Then there was Italian soft-porn director Tinto Brass, who arrived in a gondola with a cargo of scantily clad starlets from his PO Box Tinto Brass.
